

Śrī Gīta-govinda

— ŚRĪ JAYADEVA GOSVĀMĪ —

Revised Edition

Commentary by
ŚRĪ ŚRĪMAD BHAKTIVEDĀNTA
NĀRĀYAṆA GOSVĀMĪ MAHĀRĀJA

Credits

Editor: Vicitri dāsī

Assistant editor: Ānandini dāsī

Fidelity check: Vraja Sundarī dāsī, Jānakī dāsī

Consultants on siddhānta: Śrīpāda Bhaktivedānta Tīrtha Mahārāja, and Śrī Acyuta Lāl Bhaṭṭa, a highly respected and learned rasa-jñā paṇḍita
in Vṛndāvan

Translation consultant: Rādhikā dāsī (B.A., Sanskrit grammar, Hindu University of Benares)

Proofreader: Sāvitrī dāsī

Cover painting: Śyāmarāṇī dāsī

Layout and graphic artist: Haladhara dāsa, Maheśvara dāsa, Jāhnavā dāsī and Tārūni dāsī

Thanks to those others who made valuable contributions but who wish to remain anonymous. Also to be mentioned is Barbara Stoler Miller, a Sanskrit professor from Columbia University in New York City, who, after studying the Gīta-govinda for many years, produced a brilliant and incisive poetic rendition that we found very inspiring.

Kārttika 2013 - 1000 copies.

Printed at Ratan Press, Vrindavan

Dedication

- SAMĀRPAṆA -

Just as one may worship the Ganges with the water of the Ganges, similarly, this book has been offered unto the lotus hands of my revered and causelessly merciful Gurupādapadma,

nityalīlā-praviṣṭa om viṣṇupāda

ŚRĪ ŚRĪMAD BHAKTI PRAJÑĀNA KEŚAVA GOŚVĀMĪ MAHĀRĀJA,

by whose inspiration it has been published.

Table of Contents

Preface XI

Introduction XIII

The substance of Śrī Gīta-govinda XX

A review of the literary principles of Śrī Gīta-govinda XXII

The Method for Entering into Śrī Gīta-govinda XXIII

Life history of the poet Śrī Jayadeva XXVI

Commentaries on Śrī Gīta-govinda XXVIII

Foreword XXXIII

On Śrī Gīta-govinda XXXIII

On Eroticism — Sacred & Profane XXXV

Act One 1

DĀMODARA DELIGHTED

Song 1 – pralaya-payodhi-jale 13

Song 2 – śrita-kamalā-kuca-maṇḍala 27

Song 3 – viharati harir iha sarasa-vasante 42

Song 4 – harir iha mugdha-vadhū-nikare 52

Act Two 66

CAREFREE KEŚAVA

Song 5 – rāse harim iha vihita-vilāsam 68

Song 6 – sakhi he keśi-mathanam udāram 76

Act Three 90

MADHUSŪDANA MESMERIZED

Song 7 – hari! hari! hatādaratayā 92

Act Four	107
AFFECTIONATE MADHUSŪDANA
Song 8 – sā virahe tava dīnā	108
Song 9 – rādhikā virahe tava keśava	116
Act Five	129
PUNḌARĪKĀKṢA PINING AWAY
Song 10 – sakhi! sīdati tava virahe vanamālī	130
Song 11 – dhīra-samīre yamunā-tīre	135
Act Six	149
STUBBORN KṚṢṆA
Song 12 – nātha hare! sīdati rādhā vāsa-grhe	149
Act Seven	159
CUNNING KṚṢṆA
Song 13 – yāmi he! kam iha śaraṇam	161
Song 14 – kāpi madhuripuṇā	168
Song 15 – ramate yamunā-pulina-vane	174
Song 16 – sakhi! yā ramitā vanamālinā	183
Act Eight	194
THE UNLUCKY LORD OF FORTUNE
Song 17 – hari! hari! yāhi mādharma yāhi keśava	195
Act Nine	208
THE INNOCENT LORD OF LIBERATION
Song 18 – mādhava mā kuru mānini mānam aye	209
Act Ten	217
CLEVER KṚṢṆA, THE FOUR-ARMED FLATTERER
Song 19 – priye! cāruṣile!	218

Act Eleven	233
EXUBERANT DĀMODARA
Song 20 – mugdhe! madhu-mathanam anugatam	234
Song 21 – praviṣa rādhe! mādharma-samīpam iha	244
Song 22 – harim eka-rasaṁ ciram abhilaṣita-vilāsaṁ	250
Act Twelve	262
PITĀMBARA PERFECTLY PLEASED
Song 23 – kṣaṇam adhunā nārāyaṇam anugatam	263
Song 24 – nijagāda sā yadunandane	275
Verse Index	287

ŚRĪ ŚRĪMAD BHAKTIVEDĀNTA
NĀRĀYAṆA GOSVAMI MAHĀRĀJA

ŚRĪ ŚRĪMAD BHAKTISIDDHĀNTA
SARASVATĪ GOSVĀMĪ PRABHUPĀDA

ŚRĪ ŚRĪMAD BHAKTI PRAJÑĀNA
KESAVA GOSVĀMĪ MAHĀRĀJA

ŚRĪ ŚRĪMAD BHAKTIVEDĀNTA
SWĀMĪ MAHĀRĀJA

ŚRĪ ŚRĪMAD BHAKTIVEDĀNTA
VĀMANA GOSVĀMĪ MAHĀRĀJA

Śrī Jayadeva and Padmāvati Puṣpa
Samādhi at Rādhā-Dāmodara, Vṛndāvana

Śrī Jayadeva discovering the verse completed by Kṛṣṇa Himself

Preface

It is our great privilege to present this revised edition of Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī's Gīta-govinda, based on the Hindi translation published in 2003 by our Gurudeva, nitya-līlā praviṣṭa om viṣṇupāda Śrī Śrīmad Bhaktivedānta Nārāyaṇa Gosvāmī Mahārāja. This new volume has been adapted from Śrīpada Bhaktivedānta Aranya Mahārāja's original English translation made available from Gauḍīya Vedānta Publications in 2005.

Śrī Gīta-govinda is the zenith of all literatures; the poet himself confidently tells his audience this fact at the beginning as well as at the end of his divine masterpiece. This great classic is an immaculate presentation of sacred amorous love, manifested in this world by a genuine Vrajavāsī, a resident of the topmost spiritual realm. It was by the desire of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu that this intimate vision of madhura-rasa was revealed in this world, providing a means for Him to relish the moods of Śrī Rādhā. In addition, it affords a view of the unimaginable, confidential reality of Goloka Vraja for the conditioned souls of Kali-yuga. This Gīta-govinda and other Gosvāmī literatures, with their pristine descriptions of the erotic mellow, are indeed the very medicine to alleviate our hṛd-roga, the disease of lust contaminating our hearts. Throughout his epic masterpiece, in the eighth verse of many of the aṣṭapadīs, Śrī Jayadeva assures us that his words are just the remedy to counteract the foulness of Kali.

The present edition is the fruit of over ten year's devoted labor. Those of us who worked on the current volume have strived to present the delicate subject matter tactfully. We hope that persons who feel that Gīta-govinda is beyond their level of qualification, will find this edition approachable. The beauty of the poetry and the inconceivable genius of Jayadeva Gosvāmī are perfectly capable to captivate and melt the heart. All of us who helped with this production are grateful to have been given this opportunity. It has been a thrilling experience, and we relished many hours of joy as we repeatedly chewed the words of Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī's sweet, astonishing poem.

We pray that today's publication will be happily received in the society of devotees, as well as in academic and cultured circles around the globe. Please excuse any mistakes that may have eluded us. If our work is acceptable to our guru-vārga, then we give all credit to our beloved Gurudeva, Śrī Śrīmad Bhaktivedānta Nārāyaṇa Gosvāmī Mahārāja, who fearlessly took the responsibility to keep Śrī Gīta-govinda in circulation, thus preserving our Gauḍīya heritage for heritage.

Praying for the blessings of Śrīla Gurudeva and Śrī Jayadeva,

This very fallen maidservant,
Vicitrī dāsī
Sevā-kuñja, Vṛndāvana

Completed on 13 September 2013, Rādhāṣṭamī

śrī śrī guru gaurāṅgau jayataḥ śrī śrī gīta-govindam

Introduction

We here with present a new edition of Śrī Gīta-govinda, the famous composition of the pre-eminent transcendental poet, Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī. This publication is born out of the causeless mercy of the founder of Śrī Gauḍīya Vedānta Samiti, ācārya keśarī nitya-līlā praviṣṭa om viṣṇupāda aṣṭottara-śata Śrī Śrīmad Bhakti Prajñāna Keśava Gosvāmī Mahārāja. May he be pleased with our offering.

To enter into the internal mood (bhāvārtha) of such a sublime text as this Gīta-govinda, one needs proper qualification. To read any great literary work and understand the words at their face value is one matter, but to appreciate the profound sentiments by which one becomes truly familiar with the text is entirely another experience. Comprehension of the literal meaning of words is generally a simple affair, whereas assimilation of their underlying emotional significance is not so easy. Therefore all ancient scriptures traditionally begin by defining specific parameters of eligibility for prospective readers. Some deeply realized authors have strictly forbidden unqualified persons to study their compositions and have even pronounced curses upon those who might dare to delve into that for which they are ineligible. What is the necessity of such strict prohibitions? They are needed because unqualified persons will inevitably misinterpret elevated texts. The result is that both the author and the unqualified reader lose the potential benefits from such literature, and instead accrue harmful effects.

In the beginning of the auspicious invocation of his book, the worshipful Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī has also clarified the subject matter of eligibility thus:

*yadi hari-smaraṇe sarasaṁ mano
yadi vilāsa-kalāsu kutūhalam
madhura-komala-kānta-padāvalīm
śṛṇu tadā jayadeva-sarasvatīm*

“If at all your heart yearns for that remembrance of Śrī Hari which bestows all happiness, if you are hankering to contemplate upon Śrī Hari with intense affection, and if you are overwhelmed with curiosity to know about Śrī Hari’s skill in His amorous pastimes, then by all means read this book. You may find this poetry very sweet and pleasing, but if you do not nurture these three desires, then this moving and lyrical literature is not for you. Only if your heart is full of intense eagerness to fathom Śrī Hari’s love dalliance will you be able to appreciate my mellifluous and inspiring poetry.”

Even after explaining the situation so explicitly, the poet Śrī Jayadeva was still unable to communicate his point to the unqualified sector of society. Mundane readers begin to read this text, being attracted by its charming linguistic embellishments. Yet in the end, because they are not competent to grasp its real essence or internal significance, they resort to insulting the crest jewel of poets Śrī Jayadeva as if his composition were something crude. And so they must, for they do not recognize the divinity of Śrī Hari. They are not even inclined to approach the precincts of sweet contemplation upon Him. Being confined to their experience of identifying themselves with the physical body and senses, they consider sensual gratification to be the utmost limit of happiness. What can such slaves to lust ever understand about the affairs of transcendental love described by Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī?

Therefore the most worshipful Śrī Kṛṣṇadāsa Kavirāja Gosvāmī has stated in Śrī Caitanya-caritāmṛta:

*kāma, prema—dōhākāra vibhinna lakṣaṇa
lauha āra hema jaiche svarūpe-vilakṣaṇa ātmendriya-prīti-vāñchā—tāre bali ‘kāma’*

kṛṣṇendriya-prīti-icchā dhare 'prema' nāma kāmera tātparya—nija-sambhoga kevala kṛṣṇa-sukha-tātparya—prema mahā-bala

“The characteristics of worldly lust and transcendental love are completely different. If mundane lust is likened to iron then spiritual love can be likened to gold. The desire to give satisfaction to one’s own senses is called lust. However the desire to satisfy the senses of Śrī Kṛṣṇa is called pure love, or viśuddha-prema. The goal of lust is one’s own enjoyment, whereas the purpose of this immensely powerful prema is simply to make Śrī Kṛṣṇa happy.”

How many people can understand the gravity of Śrīla Kavirāja Gosvāmī’s words, especially those who are continuously absorbed in their own sense gratification? For them, the supra-mundane loving pastimes of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa are nothing but the play of lusty desires. If they could love someone to the point of total abandonment of all social customs, Vedic religious principles, and bodily connections – as Śrī Rādhikā and Her friends have done – then one day they might also have some idea about the principles underlying these pastimes. Only after making such sacrifice is it possible to understand that selfless prema can be expressed only by those who do not cherish even the slightest ambition for their own pleasure.

The lion among poets, Śrī Jayadeva, like the other great Vaiṣṇava poets, took up the pen simply for the sake of giving instructions about this self-effacing transcendental love (aprākṛta prema) by which the Absolute Reality Śrī Kṛṣṇa becomes controlled. One day, Śrī Jayadeva wished to write that wherever Kṛṣṇa finds the scent of such unmotivated prema, He is always ready to fall at the feet of that person with the humble entreaty: dehi pāda-pallavam udāram – “Mercifully bestow upon Me the soft petals of Your lotus feet.” Śrī Jayadeva’s biographers affirm that he became greatly perturbed at the thought of writing these words, which formed the fourth line of the verse he was composing (Śrī Gīta-govinda 10.8). In great anxiety the poet pondered, “How can I record such words coming from the mouth of the ultimate Controller of unlimited millions of universes, Śrī Vrajendra-nandana Śyāmasundara?” Many times he asked himself, “Should I write such a thing?” And many times he decided, “Yes, I should.” Even though he wanted to do it, he could not bring himself to write this line. Śrī Jayadeva knew Śrī Kṛṣṇa to be the Supreme Bhagavān; thus his aiśvarya-bhāva, the mood of veneration, checked his pen. To settle Śrī Jayadeva’s dilemma, one day bhaktavatsala Bhagavān, who is always affectionate to His devotees, assumed the guise of Śrī Jayadeva and came to his house. The Lord took the manuscript and, with His own hand, completed the fourth line of the verse, dehi pāda-pallavam udāram, in golden letters. By doing so, Śrī Kṛṣṇa made a resounding announcement, as if beating kettledrums everywhere, to loudly proclaim His love for His devotees.

Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, the avatāra who purifies the hearts of the living beings in this age of Kali, would retire with Śrī Svarūpa Dāmodara and Śrī Rāmananda Rāya to the privacy of Śrī Gambhīrā, His small room at Kāśī Miśra Bhavan. There Mahāprabhu would relish the transcendental mellows of several rasa-granthas (sacred texts describing Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s loving exchanges with His associates) and become overwhelmed with joy. Among those literatures, the excellence of Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī’s Gīta-govinda is unsurpassed. As directly stated by Śrīla Kavirāja Gosvāmī (CC Madhya-līlā 2.77):

caṇḍidāsa, vidyāpati, rāyera nāṭaka-gīti, karnāmṛta, śrī-gīta-govinda svarūpa-rāmānanda-sane, mahāprabhu rātri-dine gāya, śune—parama ānanda

“He would hear the songs of Caṇḍidāsa and Vidyāpati, quotations from Rāya Rāmānanda’s Jagannātha-vallabha-nāṭaka, Kṛṣṇa-karnāmṛta and Gīta-govinda from the mouths of Svarūpa Dāmodara and Rāya Rāmānanda. Thus He passed His days and nights singing and listening with great joy.”

Herein lies a profound sentiment worthy of our special attention. Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu descended to this world to teach devotional service by His own personal conduct. Why did He study and taste the transcendental mellows of all these sacred texts in such a solitary and hidden place as the Gambhīrā with only one or two of His confidential associates? The issue of eligibility is relevant even in this extreme case. Furthermore, the environment in which to study esoteric literatures has also been revealed. In public Śrīman Mahāprabhu performed only nāma-saṅkīrtana, the congregational chanting of the Holy Name, while He executed rasa-saṅkīrtana in His private dwelling, Śrī Gambhīrā, exclusively in the company of Śrī Svarūpa Dāmodara and Rāya Rāmānanda. He observed this same practice in Śrīdhāma Navadvīpa – public kīrtana during the day, and at night private kīrtana behind closed doors in the house of Śrīvāsa Ṭhākura. Here jagadguru Śrī Gaurāṅgadeva, the spiritual master of the entire universe, is giving the highest instruction: “If you want to attain the highest auspiciousness, first become qualified and then study this literature discreetly. This will allow you to be a candidate for prema-bhakti. Otherwise, you will commit offenses to Bhagavān and His devotees, and you will fall down.”

Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa is śaktimān, the supreme potent entity, and Śrīmatī Rādhikā is His supreme potency. As stated by Śrīla Kṛṣṇadāsa Kavirāja:

*sac-cid-ānanda pūrṇa kṛṣṇera svarūpa
 eka-i cic-chakti tāra dhare tina rūpa ānandāmṣe hlādinī, sad-amṣe sandhinī cid-amṣe samvit—jāre jñāna kari’ jāni hlādinīra sāra ‘prema’, prema-sāra ‘bhāva’ bhāvera parāma-kāṣṭhā—nāma ‘mahā-bhāva’ mahābhāva-svarūpā śrī-rādhā-ṭhākuraṅgī sarva-guṇa-khani kṛṣṇa-kāntā-śiromaṅgi*

“Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s body is the complete manifestation of eternal existence, consciousness and pleasure. His one spiritual potency manifests in three ways. Hlādinī is His bliss aspect; sandhinī, eternal existence; and samvit, cognition and also knowledge. The essence of hlādinī is prema, unconditional love for Śrī Kṛṣṇa. The essence of prema is bhāva, spiritual emotion, and the ultimate development of bhāva is called mahābhāva. Śrī Rādhā, the very embodiment of mahābhāva, is likened to a deep mine of all precious qualities and She is the crest jewel among Śrī Kṛṣṇa's beloved gopīs." (Śrī Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Ādi-līlā 4.61–62, 68–69)

The pastimes of Śrī Rādhikā and Śrī Kṛṣṇa are the transcendental loving play of śakti and śaktimān, the power and the possessor of that power. This Divine Couple have the power to sanctify the whole world because they are completely free from even the slightest trace of lust. One should make a diligent study of these pastimes, as such study constitutes one of the limbs of bhakti-yoga. Although many devotees are conversant with this conclusion, Śrī Gīta-govinda remains inaccessible to them because they are not sufficiently acquainted with the Sanskrit language and its implications. This present edition will provide them with sufficient help to understand the meaning of the words and the emotions implied therein.

Nowadays Śrī Gīta-govinda is celebrated in the educated society as an exquisite poetic composition that exemplifies the amorous mellow, śṛṅgāra-rasa. Its author, the revered Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī, is also widely accepted as an exceptionally talented poet. However, Śrī Gīta-govinda is not merely a world-famous poem full of emotive literary ornaments arranged in proper meter. Moreover, Jayadeva Gosvāmī is not merely a poet adept in tasteful expressions through the development of his innate abilities. Śrī Gīta-govinda is the very essence of all the Vedas and Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī is the highest class of devotional practitioner (sādhaka) and perfected spiritualist (siddha), with complete mastery of all Vedic wisdom.

We see that Śrī Jayadeva commences his poem by remembering his worshipful deity with his auspicious invocation: rādhā-mādhavayor jayanti yamunā-kūle rahaḥ-kelayaḥ. "The inscrutable and extremely confidential pleasure pastimes of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava on the banks of Śrī Yamunā reign above all.”

In the second verse he introduces his praise worthy subject matter: śrī-vāsudeva-rati-keli-kathā-sametam/etaṁ karoti jayadeva-kaviḥ prabandham. “The poet Jayadeva is writing this narration after taking complete shelter of the supremely blissful amorous play (rati-keli) of Śrī Vāsudeva, Śyāmasundara, the son of the King of Vraja.”

As mentioned previously, Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī has defined the qualifications required to read this poem in the third verse:

*yadi hari-smaraṇe sarasaṁ mano
yadi vilāsa-kalāsu kutūhalaṁ
madhura-komala-kānta-padāvalīṁ
śṛṇu tadā jayadeva-sarasvatīṁ*

“If you are eager for your mind to be submerged in constant remembrance of Śrī Hari, or your heart is already absorbed in contemplation upon Him, and if you are curious to taste the mellows of His pastimes, that is, you hanker exclusively for this and nothing else, then by all means listen to these melodious, appealing and sweet verses of Jayadeva’s transcendental poetry.”

In this supra-mundane lyrical poem Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī has very charmingly described Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava’s intimate transcendental love. This composition presents both separation and meeting, which are the basis of the super-excellent position of śṛṅgāra-rasa. The poet upholds the view that when the union of lovers has been thoroughly nourished first by feelings of separation, it bestows a greater joy upon perfected spiritualists and devotional practitioners who are expert in relishing the amorous mellow.

Svayam Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa has given instructions to His intimate devotee, Arjuna, about the eligibility to hear and speak Śrīmad Bhāgavad-gītā in its eighteenth chapter, verses 67-68:

*idaṁ te nātapaskāya
nābhaktāya kadācana
na cāśuśrūṣave vācyam
na ca mām yo 'bhyasūyati (67)*

“Do not speak about this confidential knowledge and realization to those unqualified persons who have no faith and who are not engaged in pure devotion to Me.”

*ya imaṁ paramaṁ guhyaṁ mad-bhakteṣv abhidhāsyati bhaktiṁ mayi parāṁ kṛtvā
mām evaiśyaty asaṁśayaḥ (68)*

“One who explains the supreme mystery of My Gītā to the faithful devotees is sure to attain pure devotion and in the end he will come to Me.”

In these verses, Śrī Kṛṣṇa describes the characteristics of the genuine candidates for transcendental realization after first defining the disqualifications. Śrī Jīva Gosvāmī has also presented a clear analysis of the qualifications for hearing his Gopāla-campū, and has forbidden unqualified persons to read it, as they are bereft of faith and devotion. Similarly, Śrī Sanātana Gosvāmī has strictly prohibited the faithless to hear or read his Bṛhad-bhāgavatāmṛta. Such is also the case with our other Gosvāmīs, who have all given similar warnings.

The substance of Śrī Gīta-govinda

Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī thoroughly understood the nature of mankind in Kali-yuga, the age of quarrel. He knew how easily people become captivated by the sight of superficial beauty. Perceiving only an external covering of beauty, they could even overlook a potent medicinal herb, thinking it to be of no value. The poet Śrī Jayadeva was moved by the causeless compassion Vaiṣṇavas feel towards all fallen souls. To make them relish eternal bliss, he wrapped the incomparable shelter of his matchless, supremely sweet, transcendental ecstatic moods in the covering of the base sweetness of worldly conjugal love. By so doing, Śrī Jayadeva has manifested the exclusive antidote for the disease of material existence in the form of this poem.

The respected readers can now readily understand that Śrī Gīta-govinda is not about mundane sexuality. Rather, it pertains to the very same sublime transcendental rasa that the Vedas ascribe as the cause of lasting joy for all living beings. Śrī Gīta-govinda may appear as a mundane poetic composition, but it is, in fact, the embodiment of the essence of all the Vedas.

Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī has been compared to the sacred decorative marking (tilaka) upon the forehead of the entire dynasty of poets who are conversant with the principles of spiritual mellows. Sometimes he has portrayed Śrī Rādhā, when separated from Śrī Kṛṣṇa, as a jealous heroine, proud of Her eminence. Sometimes he has depicted Her weeping incessantly in the intolerable pain of separation from Śrī Kṛṣṇa; and sometimes he also shows Śrī Bhagavān in the intense anxiety of separation from Her. Yet he did not stop there. He wrote about Svayam Bhagavān Vrajendra-nandana Śyāmasundara catching the lotus feet of Śrī Rādhājī and begging, “dehi pada-pallavam udāram – Kindly decorate My head with the soft buds of Your lotus feet.” By this he has manifested the utmost extremity of love of God and also the pinnacle of Bhagavān’s affection for His devotee. This is the essence of all the Vedas.

The śrutis proclaim that the indwelling Lord, Paramātmā, is only attained when He agrees to reveal Himself.

nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo na medhayā na bahunā śrutena yam evaiṣa vṛṇute tena labhyas tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛṇute tanūṁ svām
(Kātha Upaniṣad 1.2.23)

Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa is the embodiment of concentrated bliss (ānanda). The living entity is searching exclusively for this ānanda at all times, but without success. However, His good fortune arises when he witnesses the internal emotional ecstasies of the pure devotees. On that day Bhagavān will make Himself known to that fortunate soul and bliss personified begins to search for him.

Pure devotion (prema) is characterized by its power to attract Śrī Kṛṣṇa. The practicing devotee may be sitting in his home, but once his heart is infused with devotion, blissful Śrī Kṛṣṇa, ever greedy for the taste of prema, becomes intensely anxious for his association. Like an offender, He will meekly petition his devotee with the humble entreaty, dehi pada-pallavam udāram. This is the essence of all the Vedas. The śrutis inform us that just as the Absolute Truth is far away, He is also very near.

A Review of the Literary Principles of Śrī Gīta-govinda

While carefully observing the ancient traditional methodology of literary composition, Sri Jayadeva used the logical principle of “jewels and gold”, known as maṇi-kāñcana-nyāya, which dictates that priceless jewels should be set in pure gold. In accordance with this principle, the poet has presented a narrative of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa’s priceless pastimes in the purest example of literary composition. His poetry includes many remarkable features: the sublime artistic sensibilities of musical theory (gāndharva-vidyā), all the confidential mysteries related to contemplation upon Vrajendra-nandana Śyāmasundara, and an elaborate assessment of śṛṅgāra-rasa in both meeting and separation. In Śrī Jayadeva’s own words – sānandāḥ pariśodhayantu sudhiyaḥ śrī-gīta-govindataḥ (12.24.11) – the absolute purity of all the aforementioned attributes can only be found in the poetry of this Gīta-govinda. Therefore, it is necessary that learned persons make a thorough examination of the text in order to understand the validity of this unprecedented claim. Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī’s resolute conviction is that the intoxicating effect of wine, the sweetness of sugar, the flavor of ripe mangoes and the taste of the lips of a beautiful woman, all pale into insignificance in the presence of the sweetness of Śrī Gīta-govinda because this romantic poem is fully saturated with the complete essence of śṛṅgāra-rasa.

*sādhvī mādhvika cintā na bhavati bhavatī śarkare karkaśāsi
drākṣe drakṣyanti ke tvām amṛta mṛtamasi kṣīra nīraṁ rasaste mākanda kranda kāntādhara dhara na tulām gaccha yacchanti yāvad bhāvaṁ yāva-cchṛṅgāra-sāraṁ śubham iva jayadevasya viṣvag-vacāmsi*
(GG 12.23.27)

Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī has employed varieties of rhythm, rasa and other poignant literary devices in his epic poem. His predominant meditation is the mellifluous singing of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava's amorous pastimes showcased through the medium of twenty-four songs, each consisting of eight verses (aṣṭapadī). The author has clearly revealed the immense depth of his study of musical theory based on saṅgita-śāstra and dramatic science based on rasa-śāstra. Every song is composed in a different classical melodic mode (rāga) and rhythm (tāla). To those who are expert in relishing such expertly composed poetry, it seems that Śrī Jayadeva has directly experienced Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava's meeting and separation while meditating in trance.

The Method for Entering into Śrī Gīta-govinda

The best of poets, Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī, has employed a female confidante, or sakhī, as a mediator to arrange Śrī Kṛṣṇa's meetings with Śrī Rādhā. Why? Unless one is under the personal guidance of such a sakhī and until one attains the help of the sakhīs, one cannot achieve Śrī Kṛṣṇa. This is the conclusion of all the bhakti-śāstras. The help of a sakhī and the help of guru are one and the same. Indeed, that confidential sakhī is none other than guru-sakhī. To be guru one must take shelter of the disposition of the sakhīs; and to attain Śrī Kṛṣṇa one must accept the shelter of a spiritual master who is perfectly situated in the transcendental mood of a sakhī. Herein lies the essential message of the Vedas:

*tasmād gurum prapadyeta
 jijñāsuḥ śreya uttamam śābde pare ca niṣṇātaṁ brahmany upaśamāśrayam
 (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 11.3.21)*

To know the Absolute Truth (brahma) one must take shelter of a perfect guru who is fixed in devotion to the Absolute. When Śrī Suta Gosvāmī began to narrate Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam in the sacred forest of Naimiṣāraṇya, he called it the essence of the entire Vedas. And ultimately he reveals that the very pith of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam is rāsa-līlā. Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī, who has the ability to extract the essence of all things, condensed the gist of rāsa-līlā still further, just as one might perform the impossible feat of confining the ocean within a jar. Compelled by compassion, he has manifested the nectar of immortality in the form of his epic Śrī Gīta-govinda for the upliftment of all living beings in this age of Kali.

In answer to the inquiries of Parīkṣit Mahārāja, Śrī Śukadeva Gosvāmī said:

*anugrahāya bhaktānāṁ mānuṣāṁ deham āśritaḥ bhajate tādṛśīḥ kṛdā
 yāḥ śrutvā tat-paro bhavet
 (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 10.33.36)*

The purport is that Śrī Kṛṣṇa manifests rāsa-līlā to bestow mercy upon His devotees. Yet the non-devotees are also naturally fond of romance, or śṛṅgāra-rasa. Therefore, when they hear these pastimes they, too, gradually become absorbed in thoughts of Śrī Kṛṣṇa. From this we can understand that Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa has manifested this type of apparently erotic pastime on the Earth out of compassion for everyone, devotees and non-devotees alike. Mahārṣi Vedavyāsa was moved by compassion to record it for the benefit of all, and the topmost devotee, Śrī Śukadeva Gosvāmī, with the same motivation, preached it throughout the world. After that, the best of poets, Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī, also mercifully reproduced it in his lyrical composition even sweeter than the Bhāgavatam.

In answer to the questions raised by Śrīman Śacī-nandana Gaurahari, Śrī Rāya Rāmānanda has explained:

prabhu kahe,—‘sādhya-vastura avadhi’ ei haya tomāra prasāde ihā jāniluṅ niścaya ‘sādhya-vastu’ ‘sādhana’ vinu keha nāhi pāya kṛpā kari kaha, rāya, pābāra upāya rāya kahe,—jeī kahāo, seī kahi vāñī ki kahiye bhāla-manda, kichui nā jāni tri-bhuvana-madhye aiche haya kaun dhīra je tomāra māyā-nāte ha-ibeka sthira mora mukhe vaktā tumi, tumi hao śrotā atyanta rahasya, śuna, sādhanera kathā rādhā-kṛṣṇera līlā ei ati gūḍhatara dāsya-vātsalya-bhāve nā haya gocara sabe eka sakhī-gaṇera ihā adhikāra sakhī haite haya ei līlāra vistāra sakhī vinā ei līlā puṣṭa nāhi haya sakhī līlā vistāriyā, sakhī āsvādaya sakhī vinā ei līlāya anyera nāhi gati sakhī-bhāve je tāre kare anugati rādhā-kṛṣṇa-kuñja-sevā-sādhya sei pāya sei sādhya pāite āra nāhika upāya

Śrī Caitanya-caritāmṛta (Madhya 8.195-204)

After hearing about the goal of life from the lotus mouth of Śrī Rāya Rāmānanda, Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu said, “This is the last word in regard to sādhya-vastu, the object of attainment. By your mercy I have understood the whole subject very well. However, no one can attain this extremely profound sādhya-vastu without adopting the appropriate means (sādhana). O Rāya! Be merciful to me by kindly explaining the method for attaining this goal.”

Rāya replied, “I am only speaking whatever You inspire within my heart. I do not know whether what I am saying is good or bad. Who is so sober that they can remain steady within the dance of Your energy? You are speaking through my mouth and at the same time You are also the audience. This is an extremely mysterious phenomenon.

“Now I will tell You about this highly confidential sādhana. The kuñja-līlā or rāsa-līlā of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa is exceedingly deep. Devotees established in the moods of servitude, friendship and parenthood cannot perceive this. None of them have eligibility to enter into this pastime – only the sakhīs are qualified. Without them it cannot be nourished. The sakhīs expand this līlā and only they can taste it. Indeed, no one can enter Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa’s kuñja-līlā without cultivating the moods of the sakhīs under their guidance. There is no way to obtain this objective except to absorb oneself in intense remembrance of the sakhīs (smaraṇa) while taking complete shelter of their lotus feet.”

The Life History of the Poet Śrī Jayadeva

Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī was born in the village of Kendubilva, commonly known as Kendulī, on the northern side of the Ajaya River, almost twenty miles south of the Vīra-bhūmi district in West Bengal. Śrī Jayadeva’s father’s name was Bhojadeva and his mother’s name was Vāmā-devī. Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī has revealed his place of birth in his Gīta-govinda (3.7.10):

*varṇitam jayadeva-kena harer idam pravaṇena
kendubilva-samudra-sambhava-rohiṇī-ramaṇena*

“He who appeared in the village of Kendubilva, just as the moon rises from the ocean, has collected Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s expressions of lamentation. That Jayadeva is humbly narrating this song.”

The king of Bengal, Mahārāja Lakṣmaṇa Sena, was as learned in morality and appreciative of merit as the famous Mahārāja Vikramāditya. Just as the royal council of Mahārāja Vikramāditya was decorated with the splendor of nine jewels in the form of his talented advisors such as Kālīdāsa and Vararuci, similarly, five jewels headed by Govardhanācārya and Jayadeva adorned the royal assembly of Mahārāja Lakṣmaṇa Sena. The following verse was engraved upon a stone tablet at the entrance to king's council chamber:

*govardhanaś ca śaraṇo jayadeva umāpatiḥ
kavirājaś ca ratnāni samitau lakṣṇasya ca*

Therefore it is evident that Govardhana, Śaraṇa, Jayadeva, Umāpati and Kavirāja were the names of the king's rāja-panḍitas, or royal advisors.

*vācaḥ pallavayaty umāpati-dharaḥ sandarbha-śuddhim girām
jānīte jayadeva eva śaraṇam ślāghyo durūha-drute śṛṅgārottara-sat-prameya-racanair ācārya-govardhana-spardhī ko 'pi na viśrutaḥ śruti-dhara dhoyī kavi-kṣmā-patiḥ*

Thus all the rāja-panḍitas' names have been mentioned in this fourth verse found in the beginning of Śrī Gīta-govinda. The king held them all in great reverence, and even selected Umāpatidhara as his prime minister.

It is difficult to ascertain the exact date of Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī's birth. According to Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu's main disciple, Śrī Sanātana Gosvāmī, Jayadeva Gosvāmī was a contemporary of the Bengali king, Mahārāja Lakṣmaṇa Sena. On the basis of authentic texts we know that Śrī Lakṣmaṇa Sena was reigning in 1030 Śakābda, corresponding to 1107 AD. This date has also been verified by the writings of Dr. Rājendralāl Mitra on the basis of supporting evidence gleaned from his extensive research. Therefore it is certain that Śrī Jayadeva, being a contemporary of Śrī Lakṣmaṇa Sena, lived in the 12th century. Cānda Kavi, a member of the royal council of Mahārāja Pṛthvīrāja, has recounted the glorious histories of the poets of former times in his book entitled Cauhāna-rāṣṭra. Śrī Jayadeva and Gīta-govinda are also mentioned there in. Pṛthvīrāja Mahārāja was ruling from his capital, Delhi, in the final part of the 12th century. He was killed in a battle with Mohammad Gaurī on the banks of the Dīśadvati River in 1193 AD. Thus it is clearly proven that Gīta-govinda had already been written prior to the period of Cānda Kavi; otherwise he could not have mentioned it in his book.

Many wondrous and divine events from the life of Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī have been described in Nābhāji Bhaṭṭa's text, Bhaktamāla. However, we will not repeat all those details here for fear of making this book excessively long. The human side of Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī's pastimes has now become completely covered by the passing of many centuries. Nevertheless, every year to this very day, a huge gathering takes place in Kenduligrāma to commemorate his disappearance from our mortal vision. Fifty to one hundred thousand pilgrims gather at Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī's samādhi mandira to honor him during this festival which begins on Makara-Saṅkrānti in the month of Māgha (January-February). All the assembled Vaiṣṇavas hear and recite Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī's poetry celebrating Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa's amorous meeting.

Commentaries on Śrī Gīta-govinda

There are six famous commentaries on Śrī Gīta-govinda:

- | | |
|----------------------|--|
| Rasa-mañjarī | – by Mahāmahopādhyāya Śaṅkara Miśra.
He wrote this īkā on the inspiration of Śrī Śālinātha. |
| Rasika-priyā | – by Kumbha-nṛpati Kumbhakarṇa, the king of Mewar. His reign spanned the first quarter of the fourteenth century. |
| Sañjivani | – by Vanamāli Bhaṭṭa. |
| Padadyotanikā | – by Nārāyaṇa Bhaṭṭa. |
| Bālābodhini | – by Śrī Pujārī Gosvāmī, also known as Caitanya dāsa. He was a Bengali Vaiṣṇava scholar who lived in Vṛndāvana late in the sixteenth-early seventeenth centuries |
| Dīpikā | – Ācārya Gopāla. |

Bowing in deference to Śrī Pūjārī Gosvāmī's Bālabodhinī-tīkā, I humbly present Bālabodhinī-prakāśa. Though drawing extensively from the exposition of Śrī Pūjārī Gosvāmī, this new commentary includes additional material from the other prominent commentators, along with further elaborations in accordance with the precepts of Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī.

The initial manuscript for the Hindi edition was diligently compiled by Śrīmān Bhaktivedānta Tīrtha Mahārāja. After that my daughter Śrī Madhu Khaṇḍelavāla (MA, PhD) refined and embellished the language as if infusing the text with living force. The original English translation of Śrī Gīta-govinda was prepared by Śrīpāda Bhaktivedānta Araṇya Mahārāja from the Hindi.

I pray at the lotus feet of Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī and his worshipful Śrī Rādhikā and Vrajendra-nandana Śyāmasundara, “Kindly bestow Your causeless mercy upon all those who assisted in the production of this edition and thus make them genuinely qualified to enter into this illustrious literature.”

Śrī-hari-guru-vaiṣṇava kṛpāleśa prārthī dīna-hīna
Fervently begging for a slight trace of the mercy of Śrī Hari, Śrī Guru and the Vaiṣṇavas, destitute and worthless,

Tridaṇḍibhikṣu Śrī Bhaktivedānta Nārāyaṇa

Phālguna pūrṇimā 517 śrī-gaurābda
bhāratīyābda 1924,
18 March 2003

Jayadeva Gosvāmī's Rādhā-Mādhava Deities at Rādhā-Dāmodara, Vṛndāvana

Foreword

A FEW WORDS FROM PRABHUPĀDA ŚRĪLA BHAKTISIDDHĀNTA SARASVATĪ ṬHĀKURA

ON ŚRĪ GĪTA-GOVINDA

The following discourse was delivered in 1932 on the eve of the 446th commemoration of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu's appearance.

Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī, the court poet of the Sena dynasty, has welcomed the appearance of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu in the auspicious invocation of Śrī Gīta-govinda (1.1).

“O Rādhā, all directions are covered by dense and ominous clouds. The forest floor has been cast into darkness by the shadows of blackish tamāla trees. Kṛṣṇa is naturally timid. He cannot be alone at night, so take him home with you.” Śrī Rādhā turned her face towards the bower of desire trees beside the forest path and, bewildered by intense joy, she honored the words of her friend. When she arrived on the bank of the Yamunā River, she initiated her love-play in a secret place. May the sweetness of this confidential pastime of the Divine Couple be victorious by manifesting in the hearts of the devotees.

Śrī Pūjārī Gosvāmī's commentary on the above verse does not disclose the picture in its entirety. Here, Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī has also revealed Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu to the hearts of highly advanced devotees. The poet hints at the appearance of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa in one chamber of the great Yogapīṭha of Śrīdhāma Māyāpura; and simultaneously, at the appearance of the combination of their bodies as the independent form of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu.

The path to the spiritual sky had become thoroughly obscured by the dense clouds of various dark ideologies. Due to their obfuscation, the pleasant beauty of the trees of Vṛndāvana appeared gloomy to the people of this world. When Kṛṣṇa appeared during the night (towards the end) of Dvāpara-yuga, he said, mām ekaṁ śaraṇaṁ vraja – “Unconditionally surrender to me,” and ahaṁ hi sarva-yajñānāṁ bhoktā ca prabhur eva ca – “I alone am the enjoyer and master of all sacrifices.” Those of demonic intelligence thought that the Supreme Personality of Godhead Śrī Kṛṣṇa had spoken out of egoism and pride. Thus the darkness and intoxication of atheism became dominant, deviating the multitude of souls from the path of spiritual welfare.

No one will care to listen to His words in the current age if He appears again as Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the Supreme Being. Therefore, it is essential for Him to appear combined in one form with Śrī Rādhā in order to mitigate the contempt of the public and overcome His own timidity. Realizing this, Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī says, gṛhaṁ prāpaya, “O Kṛṣṇa, combine with Rādhā and proceed to nandagrha, the home of Śrī Jagannātha Miśra at the great Yogapīṭha in Śrīdhāma Māyāpura.”

Another name of Nanda is Vasudeva. In the Fourth Canto of the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam it is stated, sattvaṁ viśuddhaṁ vasudevaśabditaṁ – “The pure consciousness in which Kṛṣṇa is revealed is called vasudeva.” Although this is a consideration from the perspective of Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s divine majesty, still Śrī Kṛṣṇa only appears in pure consciousness (viśuddha-sattva), even in His human-like pastimes.

Let the celebrations on the eve of the appearance of the combined form of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa be accomplished by means of sāṅkīrtana, the congregational chanting of the holy names. Let all other conceptions be reduced to ashes in the fire of sāṅkīrtana. May the consciousness of all living beings become fuel in the fire of love for Kṛṣṇa, His holy names and His divine abode. The Ganges has achieved oneness with the Yamunā River by the influence of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu's appearance upon her banks. May the secret amorous pastimes of Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa combined – the sāṅkīrtana-rāsa – be victorious!

On Eroticism — Sacred & Profane

ADAPTED FROM ŚRĪ CAITANYA'S TEACHINGS, CHAPTER XIV

The sexual principle is a misunderstood symbol of Reality. It can no more be banished from our consciousness than consciousness itself. The male and female forms are also not the sole and distinctive possessions of this world. There is Reality behind them as well. The soul has a body which is symbolized by the female form and which is absolutely free from any unwholesome material association.

The ascetic's repugnance to the female form prevents an unprejudiced examination of the female sex that is a necessary factor of our conception of amorous love. This amorous love is the highest subject of human poetry and the most powerful factor in all human activities. Its worthlessness is not established by refusing to recognize it as a part of our nature. It would be much more to the purpose to try to understand what it really is. The Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam is the only book that answers this all-important question.

The worship of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa is held by some modern thinkers to be dangerous, and even immoral. They apparently take exception to the erotic element, which is the prominent aspect of the highest worship of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa.

Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu teaches us that it is obligatory for everyone to pay homage to spiritual amour that characterizes the highest service of the Divine Person. This is the central topic of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, which deals with the transcendental service of the Personal Absolute.

Spiritual amour is the highest service to Divinity in his most complete manifestation. The real Nature of Divine Personality can never be fully understood by those who are unable to appreciate the pre-eminent excellence of his service by amorous love.

The conception of personality that is available to us in this world necessarily refers to the gross human physique combined with convention-ridden human mentality. These two are the definite contents of the conception. The functions of such personality can have meaning only if they supply the needs of body and mind.

Man is connected with the entities of this world for the satisfaction of the needs of his body and mind by five varieties of relationship. These five modes exhaust all possible forms of such relationship. A person may stand in the relationship of impartiality to other human beings; however, the emotional forms of relationship may be said to begin with the relationship of the servant towards his master. This is characterized by the sentiment of distant respect for the master. The relationship of friendship is closer than that of servitude. Parenthood is still more intimate. Consortherhood, as of the wife or mistress to her husband or lover, is the most intimate and comprehensive form of relationship possible with another entity. The chain of relationships is completed by the reciprocal relationships of master to servant, friend to friend, child to parents, husband or lover to wife or sweetheart.

There is no reason not to believe that the five forms of relationship are also inseparable concomitants of the personality of the Absolute Being. However, they are free from the fetters of the gross physical body and materialistic mind. Consortherhood, as of the wife or mistress of this world, is not eligible by itself to set the tune for other relationships. Mundane consortherhood is compelled to shrink, at least outwardly, into the strictly private and personal corner of the affairs of this world. It is not welcomed for influencing other activities in an explicit manner. It can act openly only within the limits of extreme privacy.

Consortherhood is nevertheless recognized as imparting its deepest charm to life in a world in which it would not be worth living devoid of this relationship. Everyone in this world is however compelled to repress, more or less, the working of this admittedly deepest principle of his individual nature, on account of the opposition of the uncongenial environment in the shape of the defective organs, through which it has to be exercised. But this cannot condemn the principle itself that is the ruling force of life. It operates with no less predominance, but with less weight of responsibility, by being driven underground by the blind opposition of an unsympathetic environment and gross sense organs.

Should we deliberately deny ourselves the benefit of the guidance of well-considered opinion in this most vital and important affair of life? All the great religions scrupulously avoid and forbid any examination of this all-important subject. The worship of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa is the only exception to this rule.

The worship of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa has been subject to much easily avoidable misunderstanding, bred by sheer ignorance and easily welcomed prejudices. The personality of Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the Eternal Divine Lover of Śrī Rādhikā, is the premier spiritual male of the Realm of Vraja, which is the Eternal Abode of the Divine Pair as depicted in Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam. This is thought to be an unworthy conception of the Absolute Personality, and even as the survival and historical myth of a national hero in the times of promiscuous sexuality and primitive barbarism.

Hostility to the Divinity of Śrī Kṛṣṇa is entertained on the ground that morality should constitute the kernel and pervading principle of religion. We should not, however, forget that this advertised morality is at best only a regulative and restrictive principle. We are so much wedded to the indispensable nature of this moral regulation that it requires no small effort of the imagination to admit that moral intervention would be uncalled for and harmful but for the actually defective nature of our present environment and sense organs. It would be irrational to do away with moral regulation as long as we are compelled to remain in our present defective condition. But there must surely be a plane that is free from all defects, being the natural and eternal sphere of the activities of our unadulterated spiritual nature. The plane of Divinity is superior to that of our conditioned souls. There is no need for any form of restrictive morality in the spiritual world, where the soul is not subject to the limiting operation of his present material and mental adjuncts.

The moral principle presupposes the existence of a strong and spontaneous tendency for evil as being innate to human nature. The good in this world is in a state of perpetual conflict with dominating evil. Moral regulation thus becomes the indispensable and permanent outward expression of the suppressed good life.

On further analysis however, we discover that moral judgement can take its stand only on an attenuated form of the evil that it ostensibly seeks to eradicate. It does not advocate acceptance of the substantive good. What it chooses to call goodness is only relatively and tentatively a lesser evil. The substantive good has remained and will ever remain an open issue, if we are content to be finally guided by a purely restrictive moral code. The above difficulty and insufficiency of the immoral code is most clearly realized in practice by every sincere person. It can never be good in itself. Empiric morality, as synthesis, is a counsel of expediency for the establishment of a certain radically defective kind of social living. Does not the existence of positive regulation obstruct the practice of real goodness? The goodness that is producible by the so-called moral regulation is not substantively different from wickedness.

It is necessary to fix our attention on this positive issue. Is the act of procreation of offspring good or evil? Is amour to be condemned or acclaimed? Can a questionable principle of blind regulation supply the answer to these real problems of life?

Amour is a hard fact of life. It is probably the controlling fact. Why should it be capable of doing harm? Or, should it be checked because of the inopportune character of our present organs and environment? Can a policy of repression of a really good principle be healthy in the long run? Is it not tantamount to refusal to think about the proper solution? Would it be honest or helpful, for humoring this criminal indolence, to gag those who put forward sound proposals for the real solution?

True, the religions have systematically avoided thinking positively on this fundamental issue. They have prescribed only regulations of the present evil life engendered by the uncongenial nature of the present environment and the defective character of our mind and body. This is not even negative help, if it is the only provision. The disease is marked, but no effort is made for its cure. But disease cannot be healed by a policy that refuses in principle to contemplate the restoration of healthy activity.

The question thus resolves itself into an enquiry, “How can the fullest natural use of this amorous aptitude be secured?” Aesthetics does not provide the answer. Aesthetics cannot overlook or heal the really unwholesome side of the mundane principle that is the only subject matter of its examination. The ethical answer, which is more to the point in one respect, has been considered and rejected.

Medical science, biology and eugenics confine themselves to the bodily consequence of the principle of amour and the reaction of these on the mind. They also cover much less ground than ethics.

The positive answer to the whole issue is given only by Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam. This has been accepted and explained by Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya. The answer elucidated by the teachings of Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya is prevented from being misunderstood by his own illustrative career.

Any person who has taken the trouble to read the accounts of the career of Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya, penned by His associates and their spiritual successors, must be struck with the total absence of the erotic element in His career. Śrī Kṛṣṇa Caitanya never mixed with women on the footing of sexual intimacy. His conduct is disappointing to those who expect to find a rich harvest of erotic activities because He was the supreme teacher of the amorous service of Divinity.

In our present sinful state, sex suggests the idea of sensuous impurity because our present self is sensuous. The sense of impurity is really nothing but the incongruity of any material, limited, unconscious substance with the nature of the human soul. We are not on the same plane with the object of our thoughts, but are yoked to it in a most unnatural way. This longing is the feeling of impurity or repugnance. So long as we continue to look upon sex with an eye of longing we can never think of it in any other way. But this longing is also part of our present acquired nature and cannot leave us until we can rid ourselves of this secondary nature itself. With this reform of nature our relation to the principle of sex also undergoes a complete transformation that is, however, otherwise incomprehensible to our present understanding. The relationship between the female form of the human soul and Śrī Kṛṣṇa is not the relation between the material female form and its corresponding male form. The amorous Pastimes of Śrī Kṛṣṇa with the spiritual milkmaids of Vraja are not the amorous pastimes between male and female of this world. The amorous Pastimes of Śrī Kṛṣṇa are not a concoction of the dismissed brain of the sensualist. The amours of this world could have no existence unless the substantive principle exists in Śrī Kṛṣṇa. But no one denies the existence and importance of the principle of amour in the realm of the Absolute in its perfectly wholesome form.

It is because we choose to regard as material the female form of the soul that we are shocked at what we suppose to be shameless sensuous proclivities of the transcendentalists. This is inevitable so long as we deliberately choose to nurse the error that the sex of our experience is the real entity and not its perverted reflection and imagine that we have been able to solve the problem of sex by transferring our sensuous activity from the body to the mind and by condemning as impure the excesses of the external sexual act on no consistent principle. Such bungling philosophy has not confined and will never convince anybody of the real nature and purpose of the sexual act. This is so because the sexual act is the eternal concomitant in this sinful world of the highest function of the spirit, which can never be minimized or abolished by all our empiric endeavours. The right understanding alone can save us from the terrible consequences of our present suicidal sexual follies.

The Personality of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu is identical with and yet distinct from Śrī Kṛṣṇa. The Activities of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu are, therefore, also identical with and yet distinct from the Amorous Pastimes of Śrī Kṛṣṇa. The Activities of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu appear in the form capable of being received by the conditioned soul without any chance of muddling by his conditioned judgment.

The perfect chant of the Name of Kṛṣṇa is available to all souls, and it is identical with the amorous service of the spiritual milkmaids of Vraja. This is the sum and substance of the teachings of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu. Conversely, those who do not perform the congregational chant of the name of Kṛṣṇa in the manner that is free from offence are not in a position to realize the nature of Divine amour. Those who miss such realization remain subject to the abject slavery of mundane lust.

Śrī Rādhikā is not specifically mentioned in the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam. But in the description of the Circular Amorous Dance, the rāsa pastimes, Śrī Kṛṣṇa is represented as leaving the circle of the dancing milkmaids in the company of a female who is more favored than all the rest. The milkmaids who were thus abruptly abandoned in the very midst of the dance praised the genuine devotion of the unnamed female who could induce Śrī Kṛṣṇa to prefer Her sole company to the combined attractions of all the others.

But although the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam mentions the above incident, the subject is not further developed in that work. This has been explained by the Gosvāmīs of Vṛndāvana, the apostles of Śrī Caitanya Mahāprabhu, as due to a deliberate resolve on the part of Śrī Śukadeva, who is the narrator of the Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, to avoid disclosing to his miscellaneous audience the 'hidden matters' of the scriptures. The 'hidden matters' can only be known by the special grace of Śrī Kṛṣṇa and not otherwise. They are not to be divulged to all persons indiscriminately.

This explanation offered by the Gosvāmīs is not opposed to the open treatment of the same subject by Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī and other writers. In spite of the Śrī Gīta-govinda and its companion works, the subject of the relationship of Śrī Rādhikā to Śrī Kṛṣṇa remains shrouded in impenetrable mystery. No language can convey to the lay reader anything but a misleading idea of the nature of the subject on which Śrī Śukadeva maintained such discreet silence. This result is hailed with unmistakable joy by Śrīla Kṛṣṇadāsa Kavirāja Gosvāmī, author of Śrī Caitanya-caritāmṛta. Kavirāja Gosvāmī pertinently observes that no joy can excel that of the narrator of the hidden subject when he realizes that unqualified persons are wholly and automatically barred from all knowledge of the subject.

Śrī Śukadeva's hesitation to divulge the secrets of the Vedas is well founded. The conduct of Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī in speaking without reserve is equally in order if we remember that his book cannot be understood at all by those who are lacking in the highest spiritual culture.

Certain uncritical writers have even thrown mud at the author of Śrī Gīta-govinda; but they are the exceptions. Generally writers have thought it wise to avoid all reference to the subject for the honest enough reason that they have failed to understand how a book that has a most obscene exterior could be cherished by all the great devotees of the country whose conduct is universally admitted to have been freed from any taint of indecency. It is this paradox that has always exercised a salutary restraining influence on the saner sections of writers with regard to the treatment of this unintelligible subject.

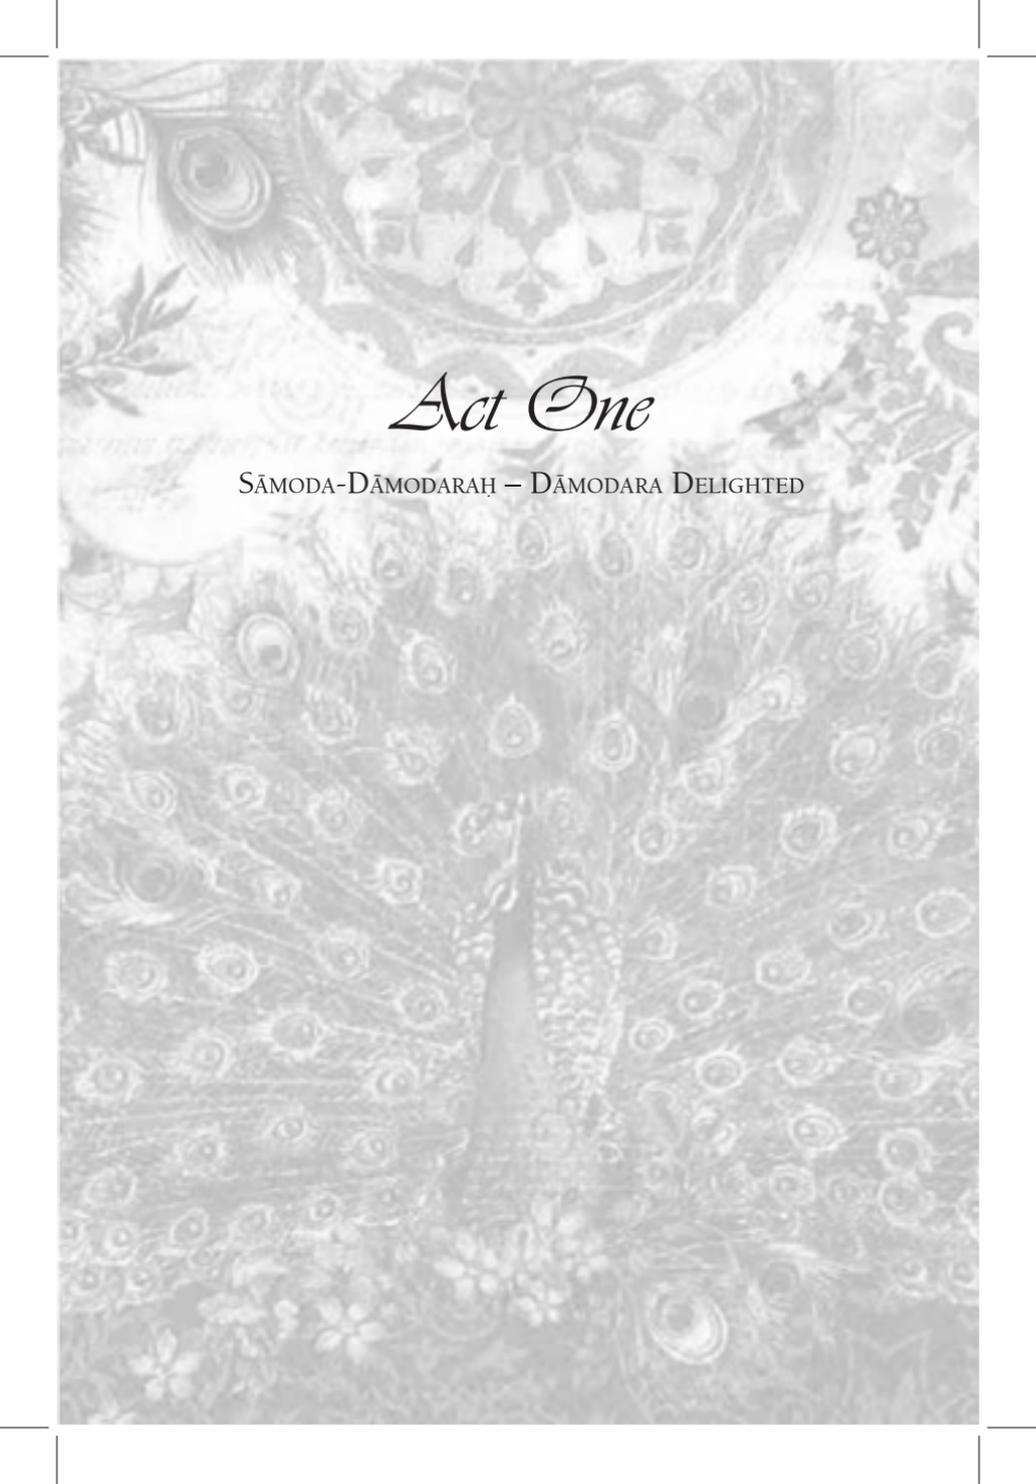

Śrī Rādhikā is realizable as the Counter-Whole of the Personal Absolute. She is the Predominated Moiety of the Absolute Whole. With regard to Śrī Rādhikā, Śrī Kṛṣṇa is the Predominating Moiety. The conception of male and female refers to the principle of personality. As both Personalities are fully divine, no grossness or inadequacy of the corresponding mundane conception need be imported into the subject. But it is imperative to admit the absolute logical validity, under the reservation of the inconceivability by our present understanding, of the conception of the Divine Pair possessing actual male and female spiritual forms.

The individual souls serve Śrī Kṛṣṇa as constituents of Śrī Rādhikā. When they forget that they are constituents of Śrī Rādhikā they forget the nature of their own selves, and engage in the abnormal activities of the mundane plane. The relation between one individual soul and another is that of obeying each other as constituents of Śrī Rādhikā in the performance of their allotted service of Śrī Kṛṣṇa. To use a mundane analogy, all individual souls are spiritual females in a subordinate position to Śrī Rādhikā, whose service to Śrī Kṛṣṇa they share by their nature as constituents. The object of endeavour of the individual souls is to learn to obey Śrī Rādhikā. Only by obeying Śrī Rādhikā can they serve Śrī Kṛṣṇa.

Śrī Kṛṣṇa is the only object of all worship. Śrī Kṛṣṇa alone is the recipient of all service. No individual soul can be the recipient of any service on his own account or on account of any other individual soul. This points to the true significance of the scriptural injunction to abstain from sexual activity and avoid the company of all sensual persons in order to qualify for the service of Śrī Kṛṣṇa on the spiritual plane. No idea of the positive nature of the function of the higher plane corresponding to the sexual activity of this world can be conveyed to those who are not completely free from the disease of mundane sexual desire.

It is for this reason advisable to abstain from all empiric study of the descriptions of the amorous activities of divinity until one has actually been freed from every worldly passion by the preparatory service of Śrī Kṛṣṇa under the direction of a bona fide spiritual master.

Act One

SĀMODA-DĀMODARAḤ – DĀMODARA DELIGHTED

Act One

SĀMODA-DĀMODARAḤ – DĀMODARA DELIGHTED

VERSE 1

meghair meduram ambaram vana-bhuvah śyāmās tamāla-drumair naktam bhīrur ayaṁ tvam eva tad imam rādhe gṛham prāpaya ittham nanda-nideśataś calitayoḥ praty-adhva-kuñja-drumam rādhā-mādhavayor jayanti yamunākūle rahaḥ-kelayaḥ

“O Rādhā! Threatening clouds devour the sky. Blackish tamāla trees cast the forest into darkness. Dāmodara is naturally timid and cannot be alone at night so take Him home with You.” Bewildered by intense joy as She turned toward the bower of desire-trees beside the forest path, Śrī Rādhā honored Her friend’s words. She reached the bank of the Yamunā, and in a secret place initiated Her love play. Triumph to Rādhā-Mādhava’s confidential pastime. May its sweetness come alive in the hearts of the devotees.

Commentary

In his epic poem Gīta-govinda, Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī paints a vivid picture of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava’s romantic interludes in the secluded love bowers that attest to Their exclusive devotion for each other. By describing Their amorous pastimes the poet establishes Their supremacy and the super-excellence of Their love.

In his auspicious invocation, Śrī Jayadeva first depicts the scene of the Divine Couple entering into a nikuñja hidden in the dense darkness of tamāla trees. He describes how Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s most beloved Rādhā, heeding the words of Her close friend, leads Kṛṣṇa to a forest bower where She engages in joyful love play with Him. As this great poem establishes the sweetness of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava's pastimes, it is auspicious and beneficial for everyone.

Rādhā-mādhavayor jayanti: “May Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava's amorous pastimes – supreme and confidential – be victorious.” Generally, the name Mādhava refers to Lakṣmīpati, the Lord of Vaikuṅṭha, who is the husband of the Goddess of Fortune. Here, however, Mādhava indicates Svayam Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa, who is renowned for His overflowing love for Śrī Rādhā. This is substantiated in Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam, wherein Śrī Sūta Gosvāmī defines Kṛṣṇa as the original Supreme Personality of Godhead and the source of all divine incarnations. Śrī Rādhā's supreme position is described in Bṛhad-gautamīya-tantra:

*devī kṛṣṇa-mayī proktā
rādhikā para-devatā sarva-lakṣmī-mayī sarva
kāntiḥ sammohinī parā*

“Śrīmatī Rādhikā is the most radiant and beautiful of all, and is the abode of Śrī Kṛṣṇa's playful pastimes. As She always sees Śrī Kṛṣṇa everywhere, within and without, She is called kṛṣṇa-mayī. She is the topmost of all worshipful deities; out of all goddesses of fortune She is the supreme Lakṣmī who continually fulfills Kṛṣṇa's desires, and She is the heart of all existence. She is parā, superior to all, because She even captivates the heart of Śrī Kṛṣṇa.”

In accordance with literary tradition, the author begins by humbly petitioning Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava to kindly bestow Their grace so that this poem can be completed without impediment.

The word jaya indicates the pre-eminence of these pastimes; therefore it is appropriate for all devotees to honor them with great reverence. They are the result of the activity of Bhagavān's internal potency, His svarūpa-śakti. “Triumph unto them!” If one inquires, “Which pastimes should be victorious?” the reply is, yamunā-kūle. “May Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava’s pastimes in the kuñjas on the banks of the Yamunā River be triumphant.” This line indicates that the pastimes achieve success on the banks of the Yamunā because there the cool, gentle breeze can dispel the fatigue arising from amorous play.

Nanda-nideśataḥ – The word nanda means “one who gives happiness to everyone.” Alternatively the whole phrase can be understood in the sense of nandaś cāsau nideśaś ceti, “Upon the order of Nanda Mahārāja, the father of Śrī Kṛṣṇa” or “upon the instruction of one who is eternally submerged in ānanda, Nanda-nandana Śrī Kṛṣṇa” However, both of these interpretations are technically inconsistent from the perspective of rasa because a defective mellow would arise if Nanda Mahārāja ordered Śrīmatī Rādhārāṇī to enjoy with Kṛṣṇa in a kuñja or if Kṛṣṇa Himself gave the order. Therefore, the most appropriate interpretation is, “After Kṛṣṇa’s most beloved Rādhā heard the words of Her friend...” Honoring Her friend’s words, Rādhikā started off, taking Śyāma with Her. The sakhī said, “O Rādhā, Mādhava is timorous because He rejected You last night to meet with another girl. It is natural that after slighting You, He will fear You. You were right to scornfully call him bahu-nāyikā-vallabha, the lover of many heroines. But now allow that broken-hearted Dāmodara to finally meet with You.”

The phrase gṛhaṁ prāpaya means ‘take Him home.’ “O Rādhā, take Mādhava with You and enter this love chamber (keli-sadana), because this place is quite favorable for You. Have Him enter the kuñja-grha, the love bower, and there, meet with Him (gṛhastha) and have Him accept You as His mistress (gṛhiṇī).” The general meaning of the word grha is ‘home,’ but here it indicates gṛhiṇī, ‘the mistress who dwells there.’ Prāpaya is derived from the verbal root āp (to take possession of; or, to meet with), prefixed by pra (in the most excellent way). The word eva adds the emphasis that ‘only You are qualified to be His wife.’ If someone says that Rukmiṇī is actually His wife because all the residents of Kuṇḍina Nagara have blessed Their marriage, then the answer is given here. In the same way Rādhā's sakhī is blessing Her, "O Rādhā, become Mādhava's consort! That dwelling is not a home (grha) in which there is no mistress (grhiṇī)."

Śrī Rādhikā says to Her sakhī, "On this bright moonlit night, how can I go off alone with Mādhava in front of all the others?" In response to this, the poet has selected a favorable moment, and accordingly Her sakhī replies, "O Rādhā! To our great delight, the sky has just now filled up with clouds that have covered the moon rays. It seems as if the clouds have done this deliberately, knowing that Mādhava longs to meet with His sweetheart."

Encouraging Rādhā, she continues, "Look! Dark clouds holding the fair-complexioned moon in a loving embrace are a stimulant (uddīpana) for Dāmodara's mood. Seeing the example of the clouds, the dark-complexioned Śyāma is anxious to be united with the golden-limbed Rādhā."

Śrī Rādhikā's sakhī suggests, "It is night and the forest is dark, covered by a canopy of tamāla trees. Impenetrable darkness has spread everywhere, so who will be able to see You? Now do not delay for another second."

In this opening verse, the great poet informs us that the prominent rasa of this poem is śṛṅgāra, amorous love, the monarch of mellows. The darkness of night, the cloud-covered sky and the dense foliage of the forest beautified by tamāla trees are all uddīpana-vibhāva, stimulants of the moods. Śrīmatī Rādhā is ālambana-vibhāva, the person who tastes love (rati). The sthāyī-bhāva, or permanent emotion, is madhura-rati, highly developed amorous love. The vyabhicārī-bhāvas, transitory emotions, include harṣa (jubilation), āvega (agitation) and autsukya (ardent desire). The anubhāva, an external symptom which reveals the moods in the heart, is bhīrutva, timidity. Here Śrī Rādhā has been described first because the heroine is prominent in śṛṅgāra-rasa, the amorous mellow.

At this opportune moment in the pastime, Śrī Rādhā's sakhī listens and looks all around to make sure that it is safe to go. Then she says, "Enter the forest while the moon is covered." In Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam (10.30.42) Śrī Śukadeva Gosvāmī has said: tamaḥ pravīṣtam ālakṣya – "On seeing a dark place..."

According to literary tradition, there are two types of poetic composition – sādhāraṇa-kāvya and mahā-kāvya, the ordinary poem and the epic masterpiece. There are several criteria that a composition must include to qualify as a mahā-kāvya: eight or more short sargas, cantos or chapters, each composed in a meter appropriate to the particular subject matter, containing descriptions of various seasons and sceneries, and presenting all of the rasas, or emotional sentiments. The maṅgalācaraṇa verse of a mahā-kāvya exhibits three components – blessings (āśīrvāda), obeisances (namaskāra) and a definition of content (vastu-nirdeśa). In the present verse, the word jayanti is understood in the sense of namaskāra, respectful obeisances. This type of interpretation is supported by the text Kāvya-prakāśa. The subject matter, namely, Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava's amorous play, acts in the capacity of both vastu-nirdeśa and āśīrvāda. Thus we see that this composition conforms to the definition of a mahā-kāvya. More simply, Kāvya-darśa defines a composition presented in sarga format as mahā-kāvya.

rādhā-kṛṣṇa aiche sadā eka-i svarūpa
līlā-rasa āsvādīte dhare dui rūpa

"Śrī Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa are eternally one identity, yet They have assumed two forms in order to relish exchanges of love."

This verse from Śrī Caitanya-caritāmṛta (Ādi-līlā 4.98) indicates the unadulterated nature of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa's relationship. It is also stated in the Rk Parīṣiṣṭa – rādhayā mādhave devo mādhavenaiva śrī-rādhikā: "Mādhava exists with Rādhā, and Rādhikā dwells with Mādhava." Similarly, Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī points to the inseparable nature of the Divine Couple's eternal relationship in his opening verse by employing the dual compound, rādhā-mādhava.

The first half of this verse is ornamented by samuccaya alankāra (a figure of speech in which two or more independent objects associated in idea with some common action are joined together) and the second half by āśiḥ alankāra (a figure of speech bestowing blessings). Consequently there is samsrṣṭi, the combination of two distinct figures of speech in one sentence. The hero is anukūla nāyaka, the obliging lover, and the heroine is svādhīna-bhartṛkā nāyikā, a domineering girl who controls her lover. The first half of the verse is an example of abhilāṣa-lakṣaṇa vipralambha-śṛṅgāra, amorous feelings in separation, characterized by intense hankering.

VERSE 2

vāg-devatā-carita-citrita-citta-sadmā padmāvati-carāṇa-cāraṇa-cakravartī śrī-vāsudeva-rati-keli-kathā-sametam etaṁ karoti jayadeva-kaviḥ prabandham

The heart of the great poet Śrī Jayadeva Gosvāmī is a temple beautifully decorated with paintings depicting the activities of Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the predominating deity of speech. The poet, whose heart is always dancing with desire to serve the lotus feet of Śrī Rādhā, has filled his Gīta-govinda with descriptions of Śrī Kṛṣṇa's rati-keli, His confidential erotic pastimes in the forest bowers, thereby creating a tremendous upsurge of the radiant and romantic bhakti-rasa within devotees immersed in transcendental emotions.

Commentary

The heart of Śrī Jayadeva has become inundated with euphoria after attaining a momentary vision of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava's pastimes as indicated by one line of the previous verse. The emperor of poets, the compassionate Śrī Jayadeva, bestows favor upon all the devotees by directly expressing his own literary competence in this verse beginning vāg-devatā.

Jayadevaḥ – jaya means ‘the utmost excellence;’ deva means dyotayati, prakāśayati, or ‘he illuminates.’ The purport is that Śrī Jayadeva, by his devotion, illuminates the super-excellence of Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s pastimes. At the same time this literary composition (prabandha) entitled Gīta-govinda attracts the hearts of its audience in the most excellent way (pra). It causes Kṛṣṇa’s pastimes to awaken in the hearts of the devotees in the most excellent way, thus liberating them from the bondage (bandha) of material existence.

One might ask: wherefrom came this literature’s competence to attract the hearts of its listeners? The reply is: śrī-vāsudeva-rati-keli-kathā-sametam. Here the word śrī refers to Rādhā and vāsudeva refers to the master and indwelling soul of the entire universe, Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa, who has descended in the form of the son of Vasudeva. Their amorous love games (rati-keli) are described. He who brilliantly illuminates the Vasu dynasty, namely Śrī Nanda Mahārāja, the best of the Vasus, is called Vasudeva. Consequently the son of that Śrī Nandajī is called Vāsudeva Śrī Kṛṣṇa. Because Śrī Jayadeva elaborately describes the pastimes of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa’s love play, his composition has the power to attract the hearts of all. The etymology of this line is śrīś ca vāsudevaś ca śrī-vāsudevau tayo rati-keli-kathāḥ tābhiḥ sametam.

The next question is, “How did this narration come about?” Śrī Jayadeva replies that Śrī Kṛṣṇa is the presiding deity of artful speech. He is the orator, ever present within the innermost region of Śrī Jayadeva’s heart, inspiring him to write. As the adhīṣṭhātr-devatā of the poet’s senses, Śrī Kṛṣṇa infuses them with potency. Therefore Śrī Jayadeva describes his worshipful deity as vāg-devatā, the presiding deity of speech, to confirm that Śrī Kṛṣṇa is personally composing this poem.

All the pastimes are gathered together like a collection of paintings lining the walls of Śrī Jayadeva’s heart. An artist first has an internal vision which, when transferred to canvas, becomes a painting. Similarly, this picture of loving pastimes has been painted by the brush of Śrī Jayadeva. The sacred palace of his heart is quite astonishing; the fabulous wealth of fascinating poetry is its treasury and the exquisite paintings of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava's intimate encounters are its decorations. The poet has renounced all claims of having authored this narration as his speech and mind are absorbed in Mādhava.

All this being so, still the question may be raised once again, from where did the power to depict such pastimes come? In reply Śrī Jayadeva admits that his sensory powers are all inspired by Śrī Rādhā. And how is She present within those powers? Śrī Rādhā is Padmāvati. The etymology of the word padmāvati is padmam kare asti yasyāḥ: “She who holds a lotus flower in her hand,” namely Śrī Rādhā. The emperor of bards, the most accomplished dancer and the world's best actor – Śrī Jayadeva – is ever eager to employ the artistic dance of his lyrical expression in the service of Padmāvati Śrī Rādhā. Another confidential mystery is that Padmāvati is also the name of Śrī Jayadeva's wife. The great poet praises Rādhā and simultaneously expresses feelings of gratitude towards his wife, Śrī Padmāvati, who was highly elevated in the loving service of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava.

The literary device of comparing the heart to a mansion is an example of rūpaka and anujñā alankāras. The meter is vasanta-tilakā. We also find examples of oja guṇa, gauḍīyā rīti, bhāratī vṛtti and sambhāvītā gīti.

VERSE 3

*yadi hari-smaraṇe sarasaṁ mano
yadi vilāsa-kalāsu kutūhalaṁ
madhura-komala-kānta-padāvalīm
ṣṇu tadā jayadeva-sarasvatīm*

Dear audience, if remembering Śrī Hari enriches your heart with feelings of deep love, and if you are curious to know about His ingenuity in the romantic arts, then may you become immersed in bliss by hearing Jayadeva's narrations in these mellifluous, tender and pleasing songs.

Commentary

Without any qualms the poet boldly proclaims his eligibility to write this epic poem. Sometimes dull-witted persons do not have faith in this, therefore the qualifications required to study this epic poem have been defined.

Dear devotees, if your heart is moved with affection by constantly remembering Śrī Kṛṣṇa and your mind is steeped in curiosity to know about His delightful escapades such as rāsa-vihāra, *kuñja-vilāsa*¹ (His pleasure in the love groves), His inventiveness in pastimes and the sweetness of His cunning behavior, then by all means hear these honeyed words of Jayadeva, the bard of śṛṅgāra-rasa.

Some devotees derive transcendental bliss from remembering Śrī Hari in a general way, whereas others experience spiritual happiness by focusing on His romantic activities such as rāsa-līlā. Now what kind of poem is this? The answer is that this poem is predominated by the conjugal mellow (śṛṅgāra-rasa) and is exceptionally sweet. Its meaning is simple and readily comprehensible. This poem, comprising a series of sweet descriptions strung together, is immensely appealing because it is imbued with Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa's kānti, or the luster They emit in an amorous exchange. This charming composition is extremely dear to the pure devotees, just as a ladylove is to her lover. Love naturally takes expression in song, so Śrī Gīta-govinda has perforce assumed the format of an opera, and should be sung in a melodious voice.

Ancient authorities on rhetoric have concluded that mādhurya guṇa and komalatā, the qualities of sweetness and tenderness, are of two types: śabdāśrita, related to the individual words, and arthāśrita, related to the wonderful emotional impact of those words. Both types are evident in this composition.

1. Editor: The word vilāsa refers to the coquettish gestures women employ to attract a man, beginning with hāva and bhāva. The activities of passionate love are also called vilāsa.]

The current verse has delineated abhidheya, prayojana and adhikārī. Remembrance of the amorous pastimes of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava are abhidheya, the method of attainment. Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava are pratipādyā, the expounded subject, and the literature itself is pratipādaka, the expounder. Pratipādyā and pratipādaka are connected in smārya-smāraka sambandha, the relationship of the memorable and the memorial. Only those Vaiṣṇavas who feel transcendental bliss upon hearing and reciting the loving pastimes of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava and whose innermost hearts are infused with ecstatic emotions by this poem are adhikārī, qualified.

This third verse features dīpaka alaṅkāra, pāñcālī rīti, kaiśikī vṛtti and druta-vilambita chanda.

VERSE 4

*vācaḥ pallavayaty umāpatidharaḥ sandarbha-śuddhim girām
jānīte jayadeva eva śaraṇaḥ ślāghyo durūha-drute śṛṅgārottara-sat-prameya-racanair ācārya-govardhanaspardhī ko 'pi na viśrutaḥ śruti-dharo dhoyī kavi-kṣmāpatih*

The rhetoric of the illustrious poet Umāpatidhara is adorned with alliteration and other figures of speech. The poet named Śaraṇa is acclaimed for his cryptic verses. No one has ever heard of a poet who can convey the flavor of worldly romance as skillfully as Govardhana. Kavirāja Dhoyī can recite anything after hearing it but once. When even these formidable poets could not master every aspect of poetic expression, how could the poetry of Jayadeva abound with all attributes?

Commentary

With all humility, Śrī Jayadeva has introduced himself as the emperor of bards who glorify the lotus feet of Padmāvati Śrī Rādhārānī. Here, absorbed in that same demure spirit, Śrī Jayadeva elaborates upon the deep significance and maturity of his own composition, pronouncing the achievements of other poets as mundane and insignificant.

There were six famous scholars in the royal assembly of Mahārāja Lakṣmaṇa Sena:

(1) The poet Umāpatidhara was the counselor of King Lakṣmaṇa Sena. He only knew how to develop his message by elaborating on details. Thus linguistic and semantic sweetness were absent from his writing. Although his compositions flourished into many branches and sub-branches, they did not meet with acceptance. Since his poetry is not particularly heart-warming, it is confined to the category of descriptive writing.

(2) The poet Śaraṇa was renowned for his ability to quickly compose enigmatic verses. Although he was popular, his writing was afflicted with defects such as gūdhārthatva, the employment of expressions which are cryptic to the point of being unintelligible. Attributes such as prasāda guṇa, or lucidity of style, were also absent from his works.

(3) Govardhanācārya was the third pañḍita in the assembly of Lakṣmaṇa Sena. His power of literary expression was flawless. Śṛṅgāra, amorous love, is the ultimate stage in the sequential development of rasa and no one could compete with Ācārya Govardhana in describing the ordinary hero and heroine who are the seat of that rasa. However, he was incapable of describing the other rasas.

(4) The poet Śrutidhara was famous for his ability to commit any composition to memory after hearing it but once.

(5) Dhoyī Kavi, commonly known as Kavirāja, was highly qualified in his understanding of literature. However, he was not able to compose original poetry of his own.

(6) The sixth poet in the assembly of Lakṣmaṇa Sena was Śrī Jayadeva. The perfection of language is achieved only in descriptions of the name, form, qualities and pastimes of Bhagavān, as confirmed by Śrī Nārada, tad vāg-visargo janatāgha viplavo (Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 1.5.11). This method of flawless composition was known only to Śrī Jayadeva.

Therefore he expresses his humility as follows: “Does Jayadeva know how to compose flawless poetry? Not at all. Umāpati can write meticulously detailed descriptions; Śaraṇa Kavi is famous for quickly composing inscrutable verses; Ācārya Govardhana has no equal; Dhoyī is the king of the literati; and Śrutidhara has perfect aural retention; but Jayadeva does not know anything.”

The author of Rasa-māñjarī has accepted the existence of only five poets in Lakṣmaṇa Sena’s court. Rather than considering the word śrutidharaḥ to be the title of a specific poet, he took it as an adjective qualifying Dhoyī Kavi. In this case the meaning is, “Dhoyī Kavi can recite any poem after hearing it but once.”

The presiding deity of speech, Sarasvatī, affirms that language achieves perfect purity when it celebrates all the various aspects of the Supreme Lord. Because Śrī Gīta-govinda is a description of Bhagavān’s pastimes, it is superior to all other poetic compositions. This poetic song is at once elegant, confidential, sweet, and full of genuine emotion.

The present verse features samuccaya alāṅkāra and sārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda.

❧ Song One ❧

The musical mode is mālava-gauḍa rāga and the rhythm is rūpaka-tāla.

VERSE 5

pralaya-payodhi-jale dhṛtavān asi vedam vihita-vahitra-caritram akhedam keśava dhṛta-mīna-sarīra jaya jagadīśa hare (1)

O Jagadīśvara! O Hari! From Your eternal spiritual abode, You descend to this temporary world in the form of a fish and save the Vedas from the ocean of universal devastation, just as a ship effortlessly rescues a drowning man. O Supreme Lord, You have appeared as Matsyāvātāra. May You be victorious.

Commentary

The sole purpose of Śrī Jayadeva's writing is to reveal the supreme sweetness present in Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava's pastimes. The crest jewel of heroes, Śrī Kṛṣṇa, is the original shelter of all existence. All the verses of this song describe the avatāras of Śrī Kṛṣṇa beginning here with Matsya. This aṣṭapadī is sung in mālava-gauḍa-rāga and rūpaka-tāla. Mālava-gauḍa-rāga is characterized thus:

nitambinī-cumbita-vaktra-padmaḥ śuka-dyutiḥ kuṇḍalavān pramattaḥ saṅgita-śālām praviśan pradōṣe mālā-dharo mālava-rāga-rājah

“Mālava, the king of rāgas, enters the music hall in a state of intoxication, all the while a shapely heroine kissing his lotus face. His complexion is green like a parrot, and he is ornamented with earrings and a flower garland around his neck.”

The rhythm known as rūpaka-tāla has been employed here. It is characterized by the combination of virām and druta at the end.

This aṣṭapadī contains four terms of address for Śrī Bhagavān. The first one is keśava. There are several reasons why the Lord is called Keśava. (1) The hair that fell from Bhagavān in His Varāha incarnation grew and became kuśa grass, which is essential for the performance of Vedic sacrifices. Without kuśa grass the sacrifice is not complete. (2) According to Pāṇinī – keśādvo 'nyatarasyāma – the word keśava is derived from the word keśa, meaning 'hair' in its widely known sense, suffixed by the syllable va. (3) Among the twelve vyūha expansions of Śrī Bhagavān, the keśava-vyūha comes first. (4) Commenting on this name, the author of Bhagavadguṇa Darpaṇa states – praśasta-sniigdha-nīla-kuṭīla-kuntalaḥ – “The name Keśava tells us that Bhagavān is acclaimed for His soft, black, curly hair.” (5) keśavaḥ: ko brahmā īśaś ca tāvapi vayate praśastīti – “The governor and instructing authority of both ka (Brahmā) and īśa (Mahādeva Śiva) is called Keśava.” (6) keśān vayate – “The crest jewel of those who relish rasa, Śrī Kṛṣṇa, is called Keśava because He decorates the hair of the gopīs.” (7) The destroyer of the Keśī demon is called Keśava.

The second title is dhṛta-mīna-sarīra – “You who have assumed the form of a fish.” Śrī Bhagavān descends in various forms to deliver the devotees and destroy the sinful. Among His innumerable incarnations, ten are prominent, beginning with Matsyāvātāra. In this incarnation Śrī Bhagavān killed the demon Hayagrīva, who had stolen the Vedas, and thus retrieved them.²

The third form of address, Jagadīśa, “Lord of the Universe,” signifies that He is the controller of the entire cosmos and all the activities of nature (prakṛti). He regulates the creation, maintenance and dissolution of the universe and He governs its every detail from within in the form of antaryāmī, the Supersoul.

2. Śrīmad-Bhāgavatām tells of Matsyāvātāra killing Hayagrīva in the previous kalpa. In another age Śrī Bhagavān came as Hayagrīva, with the head of a horse; He killed the Madhu demon and saved the Vedas.

The name Jagadīśa is also used to express the Lord's compassion.

The purport of the fourth title, hare, is – harati bhaktānām kleśam. “Bhagavān descends to relieve His devotees from the endless distress of this world.” Kavirāja Jayadeva has shown the highest honor for Śrī Bhagavān by these four titles.

Jaya means, “He Prabhu, O Master! You are expert in discovering Your own eminence. Kindly manifest Your greatness.” The line jaya jagadīśa hare has been sung at the end of every verse. Therefore it is called the dhruva-pada, refrain, in accordance with the convention, dhruvatvācca dhruvo jñeyah.

Here the poet recounts the noble activities of Matsyāvatāra. During the universal dissolution, He effortlessly rescued the Vedas, Manu, the Seven Sages and all types of seeds, by pulling them through the vast waters in a boat attached to His horn. In this incarnation, He also protected Satyavrata Muni. Therefore, may Bhagavān Keśava be victorious.

This verse features ūrdhvamāgadhi rīti, upamā and atīśayokti alankāra and vīra-rasa. The bhāva is utsāha, heroic strength of will. Matsyāvatāra is also recognized as the predominating deity of vībhatsa-rasa (disgust).

VERSE 6

kṣitir ati-vipula-tare tiṣṭhati tava pṛṣṭhe dharāṇi-dharaṇa-kiṇa-cakra-gariṣṭhe keśava dhṛta-kacchapa-rūpa jaya jagadīśa hare (2)

O Keśi-niśūdana! O Jagadīśa! O Hari! Assuming Your tortoise form, You held the Earth on one part of Your expansive back. The fame of the impression made by the Earth on Your back is ever increasing. May You be victorious!

Commentary

In the second verse of this aṣṭapadī, Śrī Bhagavān's tortoise incarnation has been described. "Not only did You draw this Earth (Mandarācala) towards You, but You also supported it upon Your back." Śrī Bhagavān is situated beneath the Earth in His tortoise incarnation. This Bhū-maṇḍala is situated like a small toy ball upon His huge back where it has made a permanent impression. "This scar is Your ornament. May You be victorious."

Jaya jagadīśa hare! This refrain is like the lid of the jeweled casket of the whole aṣṭapadī.

VERSE 7

vasati daśana-śikhare dharaṇī tava lagnā śaśini kalaṅka-kaleva nimagnā keśava dhṛta-śūkara-rūpa jaya jagadīśa hare (3)

O Jagadīśa! O Keśava! O Hari! O You who have assumed the form of a boar! The Earth rests upon the tip of Your tusks like a tiny spot upon the moon. May You be victorious!

Commentary

Śrī Bhagavān has been eulogized in this third verse for not only holding up the Earth planet with all the moving and non-moving living beings on His tusks, but for also running along with it. At the beginning of the creation, Hiraṇyākṣa stole Bīja-bhūtā Pṛthvī and went down to Rasātala, the lower planetary system. In response, Śrī Bhagavān assumed the form of a boar, entered into the waters of devastation and rescued Pṛthvī by lifting her up on the tip of His tusks. He then placed her on the surface of the water by His yogic power called satya-saṅkalpa, the power by which His desire becomes reality. When Bhagavān was carrying the Earth upon His radiant tusks, she appeared as beautiful as the dark marks upon the moon. The poet has compared Bhagavān's tusks with the new moon to illustrate their vast size in comparison to the minuteness of the Earth, which is as inconspicuous as marks on the moon. The word nimagnā illuminates Varāha-deva's identity as the presiding deity of bhayānaka-rasa (terror). This verse contains upamā alaṅkāra.

O You who appear in the form of a boar! May You be victorious!

VERSE 8

tava kara-kamala-vare nakham adbhuta-śṛṅgam dalita-hiranyakaśipu-tanu-bhṛṅgam keśava dhṛta-narahari-rūpa jaya jagadīśa hare (4)

O Jagadīśvara! O Hari! O Keśava! You have assumed the form of Nṛsimha, part man and part lion. With the wonderful sharp tips of the nails of Your excellent lotus hands You rip apart the body of Hiranyakaśipu just as a bumblebee tears a flower. May You be victorious!

Commentary

Here Śrī Jayadeva has praised Bhagavān in the form of Nṛsimha-avatāra. Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa is distressed by the sorrow of others. He can accept any difficulty for Himself, but He cannot tolerate the suffering of others. Hiranyakaśipu, the son of Diti, committed atrocities against his own son, the great devotee Prahlāda. Therefore, Bhagavān, in the form of Nṛsimha, protected Prahlāda Mahārāja by tearing apart the chest of that powerful demon with His nails.

O Keśava! You have assumed a form which is part man and part lion. The extremely sharp nails of Your excellent lotus hands are like the tips of the best of lotus flowers. Those nails inspire wonder because they also resemble the pinnacles of a mountain. The specific significance of Your nails being like the tips of lotus flowers is that bumblebees tear apart the tips of other lotus flowers but the tips of Your lotus hands have torn apart the bee-like body of the demon Hiranyakaśipu. This is an example of virodhābhāsa alaṅkāra, reverse analogy. Rūpaka alaṅkāra has been employed by comparing the demon with a bumblebee to convey his blackness. In the Viśvakoṣa Sanskrit dictionary, the word śṛṅga can refer to a musical horn, excellence or the extreme tip. Śrī Nṛsiṃha is considered to be the presiding deity of vātsalya-rasa, parental affection.

VERSE 9

chalayasi vikramaṇe balim adbhuta-vāmana pada-nakha-nīra-janīta-jana-pāvana keśava dhṛta-vāmana-rūpa jaya jagadīśa hare (5)

O Master of the entire universe! O Śrī Hari! O Keśava! Assuming the form of a dwarf, You cheat King Bali on the pretext of begging for three paces of land. The population of the universe has become purified by the water that touched Your toenails (the Ganges). O astonishing Vāmana-deva! May You be victorious!

Commentary

Śrī Vāmana-deva has been praised in this fifth verse. After going to King Bali's sacrificial arena on the pretext of begging alms, You assumed Your gigantic Trivikrama form and spanned the upper and lower planetary systems.

The verb chalayasi, to cheat, is in the present tense. The purport is that after tricking Bali out of his entire kingdom, You blessed him and now You mercifully reside with him in Pātāla. Another meaning is that You have been repeatedly cheating him in the form of a dwarf since time without beginning.

The phrase pada-nakha-nīra-janīta-jana-pāvana implies that Bhagavān has purified the whole material world by manifesting the Ganges from His toenails. As Bhagavān spanned the Earth, Lord Brahmā saw His lotus feet in Brahmāloka and offered arghya, scented water for washing the feet, hands and mouth. That very water transformed to become the Ganges. Therefore, “O Keśava, may You be victorious!”

This verse is an example of adbhuta-rasa (wonderment). Here Śrī Bhagavān has manifested as the presiding deity of sakhya-rasa (friendship).

VERSE 10

kṣatriya-rudhira-maye jagad-apagata-pāpam snapayasi payasi śamita-bhava-tāpam keśava dhṛta-bhṛgupati-rūpa jaya jagadīśa hare (6)

O Jagadīśa! O Hari! O Keśi-nisūdana! Taking the form of Bhṛgupati (Paraśurāma), You dispelled the anguish of the material world by destroying the dynasty of the reigning military caste (the kṣatriyas) and purifying the universe with the streams of their blood. May You be victorious!

Commentary

The Paraśurāma incarnation has been glorified in this sixth verse. O Prabhu, O Master! Assuming the form of Bhṛgupati, You destroyed the warrior caste who had become inimical to the brāhmaṇas, not only once but twenty-one times. You have made the lake of their blood at Kurukṣetra into a place of pilgrimage. Any living entities who take bath there are delivered from the reactions of their sins and attain liberation from the suffering of material existence. When knowledge awakens, suffering is relieved and one is pacified.

This verse features svābhāvikokti alankāra and adbhuta-rasa (astonishment). The Paraśurāma-avatāra is accepted as the presiding deity of raudra-rasa (anger). The hero of the first six verses of this song is dhīroddhata nāyaka, a proud, insolent hero.

VERSE 11

vitarsi dikṣu raṇe dik-pati-kamaṇīyam daśa-mukha-mauli-baliṃ ramaṇīyam keśava dhṛta-raghupati-rūpa jaya jagadīśa hare (7)

O master of the universe, Śrī Hari! O killer of the Keśi demon! Assuming the form of Śrī Rāma, during the battle with the ten-headed demon King Rāvaṇa, You threw his extremely attractive crowned heads in all directions as a pleasing offering to Indra and the other demigods presiding over all the points of the compass. O Rāma, may You be victorious!

Commentary

The character of Śrī Rāma has been described in this seventh verse. “O Prabhu, You have appeared as Śrī Rāma, the tilaka of the Raghu dynasty, to endure separation from Your beloved.”

Śrī Bhagavān fought with Rāvaṇa, who was a source of distress to the whole world. In a ferocious battle, Bhagavān cut off Rāvaṇa’s ten heads and offered them as oblations to the presiding deities of the ten directions. In this way He brought peace to a world that had been overwhelmed with catastrophes inflicted by evil demons.

The presiding deities of the directions had been anxiously waiting to receive the sacrificial offering of Rāvaṇa’s heads. The whole world was overjoyed at the demon’s death. Śrī Jayadeva has expressed this with the words dikpati-kamaṇīyam (desired by the presiding gods) and ramaṇīyam (pleasing). There are ten dikpālas, or presiding deities of the ten directions, and the crowned heads of Rāvaṇa were also ten in number. Therefore this offering was kamaṇīya, immensely pleasing to the dikpālas. Bhagavān has increased the bliss of the entire world population by killing Rāvaṇa, who had been inflicting pain upon all.

In this verse the hero is dhīrodātta-nāyaka, a hero who is naturally very grave, gentle and chivalrous. Śrī Bhagavān's Rāma-avatāra manifests karuṇa-rasa (compassion). The etymology of the phrase daśa-mukha-mauli-balim is daśa-mukhasya ye maulaya tānyeva balim – “The crowned heads of Rāvaṇa are the offering.” Although the word mauli means both ‘head’ and ‘crown,’ the generally accepted meaning is ‘crowned head.’

VERSE 12

vahasi vapuṣi viśade vasaṇam jaladābham hala-hati-bhīti-milita-yamunābham keśava dhṛta-haladhara-rūpa jaya jagadīśa hare (8)

O Jagat-svāmī! O killer of the demon Keśi! O Hari! Taking the form of Baladeva, You sport a brilliant white complexion and blue clothes that resemble the beauty of fresh rainclouds. It seems that the river Yamunā has hidden in Your cloth, fearing the blow of Your plough. O wielder of the plough, may You be victorious!

Commentary

Bhagavān's form as the carrier of the plough, Śrī Balarāma, is being glorified in this eighth verse. The words vapuṣi viśade indicate that the fair complexion of Balarāmajī is radiantly white. The word jaladābha indicates that His clothes are deep blue. Dark blue clouds that are dense with water are called jalada. The word jaladābha is derived thus – jaladasya ābhā – śyābhā yasya tam. Just as a fresh raincloud is a source of joy to a farmer, Balarāmajī's cloth bestows bliss upon the devotees.

The etymology of the phrase hala-hati-bhīti-milita-yamunābham is halena yā hatiḥ tad bhītyā militā yā yamunā tasyā ābhā iva ābhā yasya tat. It is not that Bhagavān only finds the distress of separation from His beloved to be intolerable, as He did in His Rāma incarnation; He also cannot bear the minor distress of His beloveds' fatigue. Here the poet says, “You have forcibly pulled Your dear devotee, Yamunājī, only for the sake of dispelling Your sweethearts' exhaustion. When You pulled the frightened and hesitant Yamunā towards You with Your plough, it seemed that her waters entered Your cloth, turning them a clear deep blue that highlighted Your radiant white body.”

The hero of this verse, Śrī Balarāmaji, is depicted here as dhīra-lalita nāyaka (carefree, jovial, confident and submissive to His lovers). He is considered to be the presiding deity of hasya-rasa, laughter.

Verse 13

nindasi yajña-vidher ahaha śruti-jātam sadaya-hṛdaya darśita-paśu-ghātam keśava dhṛta-buddha-śarīra jaya jagadīśa hare (9)

O Jagadīśvara! O Hari! O Keśi-niśūdana! You have assumed the form of Buddha. Being compassionate and sensitive, You decry the Vedas when You see the violence inflicted upon animals in the course of sacrificial performances. May You be victorious!

Commentary

Bhagavān's Buddha-avatāra is eulogized in this ninth verse. The Vedas are the embodiment of the breath of Bhagavān, and are considered to be His personal orders. When conceptions opposed to the Vedas began to flourish in the name of Vedic sacrifice, You descended as Buddha.

One might ask, “If You have personally established the regulations for sacrifice, then why did You speak out against them? It is surprising that You are the original propagator of the Vedas and now You are abnegating them.”

In response it is stated here: sadaya-hṛdaya darśita-paśu-ghātam – “Because You are kind to animals You have bewildered the demons by instructing them that non-violence is the highest religion. Just as You bewildered the demons when You came as Mohinī-mūrti to save the ambrosia, similarly You captivated the demons and rescued the animals by teaching that sacrifices are improper.” Seeing the violence committed against sacrificial animals, Śrī Bhagavān’s heart was moved with compassion; thus He decried the Vedic scriptures that advocate sacrifice.

In this verse the hero is dhīra-sānta (peaceful and forbearing). Bhagavān Buddha is considered to be the presiding deity of sānta-rasa, tranquility.

VERSE 14

mleccha-nivaha-nidhane kalayasi karavālam dhūmaketum iva kim api karālam keśava dhṛta-kalki-śarīra jaya jagadīśa hare (10)

O Śrī Hari, Controller of the universe! O Killer of the Keśi demon! Adventing as Kalki, You wield a fearsome sword that resembles a foreboding star as You slaughter the barbarians. May You be victorious!

Commentary

Now the poet recounts the glories of Bhagavān’s Kalki-avatāra. “Without there being a war at the end of Kali-yuga, the savage population will not be destroyed, and without such destruction, peace will not come. Therefore You assume the form of Kalki and exterminate the barbarians. To annihilate the degraded and wicked humans, You wield a terrifying sword that appears as death personified.” The poet has used the words kim api to emphasize that this sword is the embodiment of terror.

Dhūmaketum iva: Dhūmaketu is the name of a particular dreaded star that signifies impending disaster. Bhagavān’s sword is the Dhūmaketu that spells imminent destruction for the uncivilized. The word dhūmaketu also means ‘fire,’ indicating that His sword is loathed by the barbaric society.

The hero of the current verse is dhīroddhata nāyaka, proud and restless. Kalki Bhagavān is the presiding deity of vīra-rasa, chivalry.

VERSE 15

*śrī-jayadeva-kaver idam uditam udāram
 śṅṃu sukha-dam śubha-dam bhava-sāram keśava dhṛta-daśa-vidha-rūpa jaya jagadīśa hare (11)*

O Jagadīśvara! O Śrī Hari! O Keśi-niśūdana! O You who appear in ten different forms! May You be pleased to hear Śrī Jayadeva’s magnanimous prayer of glorification, which bestows both happiness and auspiciousness because it destroys material existence.

Commentary

After glorifying each of the ten avatāras, who are the presiding deities of the various rasas, the great poet Jayadeva now makes his humble request to the undisputed hero of all rasas. “O You who are the embodiment of all ten forms! May You be victorious!”

Sukhada - This poetic eulogy bestows transcendental happiness as soon as one hears it because it immediately removes one’s absorption in anything else.

Śubha-dam – This prayer bestows auspiciousness upon the world because it reveals the mysteries of Your appearance pastimes and it destroys all impediments obscuring the attainment of Paramātmā.

Bhava-sāram – This phrase is an example of a compound in which the middle term has been omitted (madhya-pada lope samāsa). The full phrase is bhava-cchedaka hetu madhye sāram,

“This prayer is the essence of all processes for crossing over the ocean of material existence.”

Jaya – Use of the present tense indicates that all of Bhagavān’s incarnations are eternal and Their pastimes are also eternal. The poet has testified that Śrī Kṛṣṇa is avatāri, the original cause of all incarnations, all of them manifesting from Him. He is the ultimate reality in all forms, therefore “O Complete Origin of all avatāras, You who are endlessly reveling in Your pastimes, You who attract the hearts of everyone and bestow sublime transcendental happiness upon them, may You be eternally victorious! Your devotee, Jayadeva, is offering this prayer unto You.”

In this verse we find śānta-rasa and pariyāyokti alaṅkāra, use of synonyms.

VERSE 16

vedān uddharate jaganti vahate bhū-golam udbibhrate daityaṁ dārayate balim chalayate kṣatra-kṣayaṁ kurvate paulastyāṁ jāyate haḥ kalayate kārṇyaṁ ātanvate mlecchān mūrcchayate daśākṛti-kṛte kṛṣṇāya tubhyaṁ namaḥ

Unto the deliverer of the Vedas, the upholder of the world of moving and non-moving living beings, the savior of Bhūmaṇḍala, the slayer of Hiranyakaśipu, the deceiver of Bali, the destroyer of the kṣatriyas, the conqueror of Paulastya (Rāvaṇa), the carrier of the plough called Āyudha, the advocate of compassion, and the slayer of the barbarians – unto You who assume these ten transcendental bodies, O Śrī Kṛṣṇa, I offer My obeisances.

Commentary

In the ten verses of this first song of Śrī Gīta-govinda, Śrī Jayadeva has depicted the charming pastimes of the avatāras of Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa. That Śrī Kṛṣṇa who manifests Himself as the ten avatāras has delivered the Vedas in the form of Matsya, upheld the Earth as Kurma, saved Pṛthvī as Varāha, killed Hiranyakaśipu as Nṛsimha, cheated Bali and made him His own as Vāmana, annihilated the wicked kṣatriyas as Paraśurāma, chastised the miscreants as Balabhadra, advocated compassion as Buddha and slew the barbarians as Kalki. O Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa, O You who assume these ten incarnations, obeisances unto You.

This Daśāvatāra Stotra has been included at the very beginning of Śrī Gīta-govinda to establish that Śrī Kṛṣṇa is the Supreme Godhead; He is avatāri, the source of all these avatāras. Thus, the protagonist in this book is no ordinary person. The hero who engages in the confidential amorous pastimes depicted herein, is not subject to any mundane lusty sentiments. He is completely pure in His every action and beyond all material considerations.

Song One, entitled Daśāvatāra Stotra, is composed in the meter called kīrti-dhavalā. Appropriate rāgas include pārasvara and madhyama in ādi-tāla. We also find vilambīta laya, mādhyamī rīti and śṛṅgāra-rasa. In this way the fame of Vāsudeva Bhagavān has been described.

❧ Song Two ❧

The musical mode is gurjarī rāga and the rhythm is niḥsāra tāla. The personification of gurjarī rāga resembles the śyāmā heroine. Her body is warm in the cold season and cool in the hot season. Her breasts are extremely firm and her hair is captivating. Simply by the touch of her feet, the aśoka tree blossoms out of season. She arrives at a bed that is decorated with soft buds of the best malaya sandalwood trees. Coming from the South, she assumes semitones between the scale degrees (śruti). The rhythm is niḥsāra tāla with two quick beats (druta-tāla) and two light beats (laghu-tāla).

VERSE 17

śrita-kamalā-kuca-maṇḍala dhṛta-kuṇḍala e kalita-lalita-vanamāla jaya jaya deva hare (1)

O Deva! O Hari! O You who take shelter of Kamalā Śrī Rādhā's round breasts, O You whose ears are decorated with earrings and who are garlanded with an enchanting wreath of forest flowers, O Hari, may You triumph!

Commentary

In the first song, Kṛṣṇa was described as the subject of everyone's worship. Now Śrī Jayadeva glorifies Him as the exclusive subject of contemplation and meditation.

These prayers reveal Kṛṣṇa's highest excellence as the crest jewel of all heroes because in Him the various moods of a hero – the chivalrous (dhīrodātta), the arrogant (dhīroddhata), the sober (dhīra-śānta) and the romantic (dhīra-lalita) nāyaka – are perfectly harmonized.

Śrita-kamalā-kuca-maṇḍala e – the etymology of this phrase is śrita-kamalāyāḥ kuca-maṇḍalaṁ yenā 'sau tatsamvukṣai śrita-kamalā-kuca-maṇḍala: “Śrī Kṛṣṇa serves Śrī Rādhā's ample breasts.” He is the beloved of Lakṣmī, His dearest goddess of fortune. This line infers that Kṛṣṇa is charmed by this beloved and revels in amorous games; He is carefree, cunning in the arts of love, and expert in joking. The letter ‘e’ is simply a musical embellishment which completes the rāga.

Dhṛta-kunḍala e (dhr̥te kuṇḍala yena sa tathā tasya sambuddhiḥ) – “He who wears earrings.” The beauty of His lotus face is further enhanced by those makara-shaped earrings³. Kalitalita-vanamāla – “You have donned an extremely attractive forest-flower garland.” The author of the Viśvakoṣa dictionary states:

*āpāda-lambinī mālā
vanamāleti tām viduḥ patra-puṣpa-mayī mālā
vanamālā prakirtitā*

“A garland made from leaves and flowers that hangs all the way down to one’s feet is called vanamālā.”

Thus Kṛṣṇa’s fresh youthfulness has been proclaimed by these three descriptive phrases, which also reveal His style of dress – gopa-veśa veṇu-kara, nava-kiśora naṭa-vara. “Dressed as a cowherd boy and holding a flute, Kṛṣṇa is an ever fresh youth and the best of dramatic dancers” (Śrī Caitanya-caritāmṛta, Madhya-līlā 21.101).

Hare – O Śrī Kṛṣṇa! By displaying Your astonishing pastimes, You attract the heart and mind – and indeed the vital spirit – of all living beings, thus awakening them to Your supremacy.

Every verse of this song ends with jaya jaya deva hare, the refrain, or dhruva-pada, which lends unity to the whole song.

Śrī Kṛṣṇa is portrayed here as dhīra-lalita nāyaka. This hero is skilled in the erotic arts, ever youthful, humorous, carefree, and submissive to His beloveds.

3. The makara is a sea creature who flies on Cupid’s banner.

VERSE 18

dina-maṇi-maṇḍala-maṇḍana bhava-khaṇḍana e muni-jana-mānasa-haṁsa jaya jaya deva hare (2)

O Deva! O Hari! Ornament of the sun globe, You sever the bondage of material existence. O swan playing in the cool mountain lake (Mānasa Sarovara) of the sages' hearts! Triumph! Triumph unto You!

Commentary

Dina-maṇi-maṇḍala-maṇḍana! “As the sun is worshipful for everyone, You deserve to be contemplated and adored.” The Vedas enjoin, dheyaḥ sadā savitr-maṇḍala-madhya-vartī, nārāyaṇaḥ sarasijāsana sammiviṣṭaḥ – “Śrī Bhagavān resides within the sun planet in the form of the Indwelling Witness (antaryāmī). One should remember this during meditation.” Furthermore, it is stated: vyotir-abhyantare śyāmasundaram atulam. “The incomparable Śyāmasundara resides within the light.”

Bhava-khaṇḍana e – The qualities of the soul have been described in Chāndogya Upaniṣad (8.7.1):

eṣa ātmā 'pahata-pāpmā vijaro vimṛtyur viśoko vijighatso 'pipāsaḥ satya-kāmaḥ satya-saṅkalpaḥ

“By nature the soul is free from the bondage of actions, old age, death, lamentation, bewilderment, hunger and thirst. All his desires are directed to the Supreme Truth (satya-kāma), and all of them come into being (satya-saṅkalpa).”

These qualities are concealed as long as one remains materially bound; they manifest when Bhagavān bestows His mercy. Therefore Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa has been addressed as bhava-khaṇḍana – “He who dissolves one's entanglement in material existence.”

muni-jana-mānasa-haṁsa (muni-janānām mānasāni iva mānasāni teṣu haṁsa iva haṁsa): “As the king of swans sports upon Lake Mānasa, You enact Your pastimes upon the minds of the thoughtful sages. An internal vision of Your loving play is continuously revealed to them.” Such equipoised visionaries are tolerant in the face of adversity. They are decorated with all meritorious qualities, especially humility, and thus they fully engage in bhajana, the supramundane service of Śrī Kṛṣṇa. By His mercy the sages become completely detached from material existence.

Deva – Bhagavān is called deva because He is replete with divine attributes (divya-guṇa). Jaya – The use of this verb reveals the poet’s immense reverence for Śrī Kṛṣṇa. The hero of this verse is the sober dhīra-śānta nāyaka.

VERSE 19

kāliya-viṣa-dhara-gaṅjana jana-rañjana e yadu-kula-nalina-dīneśa jaya jaya deva hare (3)

O Deva! O Hari! O You who pulverize the pride of the venomous snake Kāliya and fill the hearts of Your dearest Vrajavāsīs with joy! You are the sun that causes the lotus of the Yadu dynasty to bloom! Triumph! Triumph unto You!

Commentary

Here the poet offers hymns of praise to his worshipful deity and the object of his meditation, Śrī Kṛṣṇa, who is portrayed as the arrogant hero, dhīroddhata-nāyaka.

Kāliya-viṣa-dhara-gaṅjana – Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa crushed the pride of the one hundred-headed venomous serpent Kāliya, who lived in the Yamunā at Kāliya-daha.

Jana-rañjana e – By subduing Kāliya, Bhagavān gave pleasure to the community of Vraja. Śrī Kṛṣṇa knows very well that the Vrajavāsīs do not desire anything but Him. Moreover He thinks, “They cannot even stay alive without Me. Therefore, it is My responsibility to protect and satisfy them.” O You who bring delight to Your people, may You be triumphant!

Yadu-kula-nalina-dineśa – As the lotus blossoms with the rising of the sun, the Yadus flourish when Śrī Bhagavān descends in their dynasty. Actually, the Yādavas are the cowherd community of Vraja. Therefore, the sun Śrī Kṛṣṇa lights up Gokula.

This verse describes Śrī Bhagavān as a powerful individual who enlivens His devotees and who has appeared in a noble family. “O Deva! Kindly crush the vanity of envious egotists such as ourselves, and fill us with pleasure.”

The arrogant hero, dhīroddhata-nāyaka, is envious, proud, treacherous, angry, fickle and boastful.

VERSE 20

*madhu-mura-naraka-vināśana garuḍāsana e
sura-kula-keli-nidāna jaya jaya deva hare (4)*

O Deva! O Hari! O destroyer of the demons Madhu, Mura and Naraka! O You who ride upon Garuḍa! O You who are the original cause of the demigods’ delight! Triumph! Triumph unto You!

Commentary

Madhu-mura-naraka-vināśana – Bhagavān destroys the demons Madhu and Naraka during His residence in Dvārakā. The reference to Mura alludes to His mystical powers of deception. Śrī Kṛṣṇa exhibits ninety-six heroic traits while performing His eternal pleasure pastimes in three spiritual realms: Gokula, Mathurā and Dvārakā. His role as the arrogant hero (dhīroddhata) is indicated here.

Garuḍāsana e (garuḍa āsanam yasya tat-sambuddhau) – Bhagavān is called Garuḍāsana because He accepts the back of Garuḍa, the king of birds, as His throne.

Sura-kula-keli-nidāna: Bhagavān increases the happiness of the demigods by annihilating the demons and He personally engages in blissful amusements with His pure devotees. O Hari! May You be triumphant!

VERSE 21

amala-kamala-dala-locana bhava-mocana e tri-bhuvana-bhavana-nidhāna jaya jaya deva hare (5)

O Deva! O Hari! O You whose long eyes are just like immaculate lotus petals! O You who free us from the shackles of material existence! O treasure of the three worlds! Triumph! Triumph unto You!

Commentary

Amala-kamala-dala-locana (amale ye kamala-dale te iva locane yasyā 'sau tathā vidhaḥ tat sambuddhau) – “He whose clear eyes are like the petals of a spotless lotus.” His eyes allay the suffering and steal away the heart, mind and the very life of all, as stated in Śrī Caitanya-caritāmṛta (Madhya-līlā 21.105):

terache netrānta vāṇa, tāra dṛḍha sandhāna vindhe rādhā-gopī-gaṇa-mana

“The powerful arrow of His sidelong glance pierces the hearts of Rādhā and the gopīs.”

Bhava-mocana – Bhagavān delivers His devotees from the endless chain of birth and death and protects all living entities. This reveals His compassion.

Tribhuvana-bhavana-nidhāna – Śrī Hari pervades the three planetary divisions of the universe (tribhuvana). He is the treasure house (nidhi) within the palace (bhavana) of the three worlds; He is the primal cause and the original father.

This verse portrays Kṛṣṇa as the chivalrous hero (dhīrodātta nāyaka), who is characterized by gravity, courtesy, forgiveness, compassion, adherence to one’s vows, modesty in speaking, honesty, and the power to thwart the pride of other heroes. These qualities exist in their fullness only in the Supreme Personality, Śrī Kṛṣṇa.

May You be triumphant!

VERSE 22

janaka-sūtā-kṛta-bhūṣaṇa jita-dūṣaṇa e samara-śamita-daśakaṇṭha jaya jaya deva hare (6)

O Deva! O Hari! You decorate Sītā-devī in Your descent as Śrī Rāma. You defeat the demon Dūṣaṇa and You restore peace to the world by killing the ten-headed Rāvaṇa in battle. Triumph! Triumph unto You!

Commentary

Janaka-sūtā-kṛta-bhūṣaṇa – “O Deva, as a chivalrous hero, You decorate the daughter of Janaka Mahārāja with Your own hands. Your complexion being dark as freshly grown dūrvā grass, You are the ornament of the golden-limbed Sītā. O You who are steadfast in Your vows, may You be triumphant!

Jita-dūṣaṇa e (jita-dūṣaṇau yenā ’sau) – You killed the cannibal Dūṣaṇa during Your exile in the Daṇḍaka forest. This is why You are called Jita-dūṣaṇa.

Samara-śamita-daśakaṇṭha – The demon king Rāvaṇa was steadfast in battle, belligerent and boastful. Yet You felled and silenced such a powerful warrior. O master of all chivalrous heroes (dhīrodatta)! O Hari! May You who are adorned with profound dignity and forgiveness be triumphant!

VERSE 23

abhinava-jaladhara-sundara dhṛta-mandara e śrī-mukha-candra-cakora jaya jaya deva hare (7)

O Śyāmasundara! You whose complexion is as lustrous as a fresh raincloud! O holder of Girirāja (Mandara Mountain)! O cakora bird who incessantly drink the moonlight of the face of the Supreme Goddess of Fortune, Śrī Rādhā! O Hari! O Deva! Triumph! Triumph unto You!

Commentary

In this song, the poet has presented the pastimes of various incarnations of Bhagavān and here establishes the predominance of the romantic hero (dhīra-lalita nāyaka).

abhinava-jaladhara sundara – Śrī Bhagavān, with His supremely transcendental, auspicious form, is beautiful like a captivating fresh raincloud.

Dhṛta-mandara – When the Mandara Mountain would not remain steady, You became a tortoise and held it on Your back during the churning of the Milk Ocean. Simultaneously assuming another form, You then assisted the demigods in churning. Alternatively, dhṛta-mandara means “You who firmly hold Śrī Rādhā’s bosom,” or it can refer to Govardhana Hill.

Śrī-mukha-candra-cakora – The lotus face of Śrī Rādhā is a constant source of joy for Śrī Bhagavān. Just as a cakora bird, in a state of distraction, stares in the direction of the moon with unblinking eyes, similarly Śrī Bhagavān always feels extreme jubilation upon beholding Śrī Rādhā’s enchanting face. Therefore Her lotus face has been compared to the moon. O Deva! O Hari! May You be triumphant!

The phrase abhinava-jaladhara sundara sheds light upon Bhagavān's fresh youthfulness. The word cakora indicates that He is subjugated by the affection of His sweethearts. The phrase dhṛta-mandara, referring to Śrī Kṛṣṇa's pastime of holding the breasts of Śrī Rādhā, reveals His dexterity in amorous play. These three qualities are prominent in the dhīra-lalita nāyaka. O Prabhu, may You be triumphant!

VERSE 24

tava caraṇe praṇatā vayam iti bhāvaya e kuru kuśalaṁ praṇateṣu jaya jaya deva hare (8)

O Bhagavān! We have surrendered at Your lotus feet. May You confer auspiciousness by blessing us with the gift of prema-bhakti. O Deva! O Hari! Triumph! Triumph unto You!

Commentary

In this verse the poet beseeches Śrī Kṛṣṇa to mercifully confer auspiciousness upon the hearers and reciters of his poem. "O ocean of auspicious qualities! We bow down and surrender ourselves at Your lotus feet. Kindly fill our lives with auspiciousness. May you destroy all the sins and sufferings of Your devotees. You and Your pastimes are the embodiment of the highest bliss. May You expand our joy by granting a vision of those pastimes within our hearts."

VERSE 25

*śrī-jayadeva-kaver idaṁ kurute mudam e
maṅgalam ujjala-gītaṁ jaya jaya deva hare (9)*

O Deva! May this charmingly radiant and melodious maṅgalācarāṇa composed by Śrī Jayadeva increase Your happiness. May it bestow bliss upon Your devotees who hear and recite Your glorious qualities. Triumph! Triumph unto You!

Commentary

On completing his eulogy of Bhagavān, Śrī Jayadeva presents this humble supplication: “O Deva, in this auspicious invocation I have taken a vow to sing about ujjvala-rasa with a description of Your amorous pastimes with Śrī Rādhā. Already turbulent waves of euphoria have begun to rise within my heart. If there is so much bliss in this invocation, then I cannot estimate how much there will be in the actual description itself. May my auspicious song be a source of joy for You both and may it also confer spiritual success upon those who hear and recite it.”

The meter of this song is maṅgala chanda.

VERSE 26

padmā-payodhara-taṭī-parirambha-lagna kāśmīra-mudritam uro madhusūdanasya vyaktānurāgam iva khelad-anaṅga-kheda svedāmbu-pūram anupūrayatu priyaṁ vah

Madhusūdana lounges on the slope of Padmā’s breast, His chest marked with Her kuṅkuma from Their tight embrace, thus displaying His deep love within. Her kuṅkuma blends there with streams of perspiration from Their amorous passion. May His chest decorated thus fulfill our cherished desires.

Commentary

After glorifying his Prabhu in this song, Śrī Jayadeva offers the audience a benediction in this verse.

Padmā-payodhara-taṭī – When Vraja-vilāsī Śrī Kṛṣṇa embraces His dearest beloved, the crimson kuṅkuma that covered Her bosom melts, leaving a red mark of passion upon Bhagavān’s chest. It is as if the anurāga, the overpowering love, for Śrī Rādhā that always colors His heart, is now displayed outwardly, indicating

His supreme affection for Her. The words payodhara-taī indicate that Śrī Rādhā's highly raised breasts are like mountain peaks with a valley in between.

Parirambha-lagna-kāsmīra – The kuṅkuma from Rādhā's breasts marking Śrī Kṛṣṇa's chest indicates that They had been immersed in a long, deep embrace.

Mudrita-muro – The image of Rādhā's bosom stamped on Kṛṣṇa's chest is like a seal of approval, which vastly enhances the beauty of His breast. Aho! How auspicious is Their overflowing affection for each other!

Vyaktānurāgam iva – The compelling love (anurāga) previously hidden within His heart is now outwardly showing its face, clearly coloring His chest and claiming its territory. Thus His heart cannot be smeared by the love of anyone else.

Khelad-anaṅga-kheda-svedāmbu-puram – Śrī Kṛṣṇa's chest, stained with His passion, is covered with perspiration, indicating His exhaustion from prolonged engagement in Cupid's play (kandarpa-kṛīḍā). In other words, that kuṅkuma, moistened by drops of perspiration on Śrī Śyāma's broad chest, is displaying outwardly the anurāga dwelling within His heart.

Anupurayatu priyaṁ vaḥ – May Śrī Kṛṣṇa's saffron-colored chest fulfill our most cherished desires by increasing the prema in our hearts.

This verse has been sung in vasanta rāga, alluding to Śrī Madhusūdana's nature in springtime. The heroine is mugdha nāyikā, the captivated ladylove, and the hero is kuśala nāyaka, the expert lover. Here we find vasantatilakā chanda; the alaṅkāras include āśīḥ, utprekṣā and anuprāsa. The rasa is śṛṅgāra, the amorous mellow.

VERSE 27

vasante vāsantī-kusuma-sukumārair avayavair bhramantīm kāntāre bahu-vihita-kṛṣṇānusaraṇām amandaṁ kandarpa-jvara-janita-cintākulatayā valad-bādhām rādhām sarasam idam ūce saḥacarī

In the spring, the lovesick Rādhikā, whose tender limbs were soft as mādhavī flowers, wandered far and wide in the woods searching for Kṛṣṇa. Cupid tormented Her mind with the fever of love, while Her close friend lovingly spoke to Her to heighten the mood.

Commentary

The great poet Śrī Jayadeva has depicted the pre-eminent virtues of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava by describing Their auspicious and endearing meeting. In that prologue, the lotus of the poet's heart began to bloom. Although Śrī Kṛṣṇa sometimes plays the dakṣiṇa nāyaka (guileless hero who loves more than one lady), dhṛṣṭa nāyaka (bold and arrogant hero who denies his intimacies with another even while displaying telltale signs) and śaṭha nāyaka (cheating and underhanded), the rasika poet has portrayed Him in Song Two as the anukūla nāyaka (obliging, faithful hero) who finds His full satisfaction only with Śrī Rādhikā. In accordance with sūci-katāha nyāya, the logic of accomplishing a relatively effortless task prior to attempting a strenuous one, Śrī Śukadeva first demonstrated the excellence of all the gopīs before finally establishing the supremacy of Śrī Rādhā. Similarly, Śrī Jayadeva has described the symptoms of eight types of nāyikās, all of which are found in Śrī Rādhā, ultimately to establish Her as the crest jewel of all heroines.

The eight types of nāyikās are (1) abhisārikā – a girl going to meet her lover, (2) vāsakasajjā – a girl who decorates herself and the love bower in anticipation of receiving her lover, (3) utkaṅṭhitā – a girl anxiously longing for her lover, who for some reason is late, (4) khaṅḍitā – a girl who becomes jealous seeing the marks on her unfaithful lover, (5) vipralabdhā – a disappointed girl whose lover never arrives, (6) kalahāntarītā – a girl who quarrels with her lover and sends him away, (7) proṣita-bhartṛkā – a girl suffering because her lover is living far away, (8) svādhīna-bhartṛkā – a domineering girl who controls her lover.

In the current verse Rādhikā is being depicted as utkaṅṭhitā nāyikā, a heroine afflicted with anxiety due to separation from her beloved. Bharata Muni has explained the symptoms of this heroine in Nāṭya-sāstra, his work on dramatic theory. This heroine is fitful, afflicted with sensual passion and burning with high fever. Her unkempt body trembles, her hairs stand on end, she is repeatedly bewildered, and her speech is impelled by acute feelings of anxious anticipation. In Śṛṅgāra Tilaka (1.78) the symptoms of the virahotkaṅṭhitā nāyikā have been described thus:

*utkā bhavati sā yasyāḥ
saṅketam nāgataḥ priyaḥ tasyā 'nāgamane hetum
cintayaty ākulā yathā*

“A heroine whose hero does not come to the appointed meeting place at the agreed-upon time is called virahotkaṅṭhitā nāyikā. Carefully pondering over the reasons for her beloved’s failure to arrive, she becomes fraught with anxiety.”

The current verse is the foundation for the portrayal of vipralambha-śṛṅgāra, a lover’s sentiments during separation. The poet narrates an incident during the spring season in which one of Rādhikā’s sakhīs says, “O Rādhā, Your body is as soft as a mādhavī flower and You have grown weary from wandering in search of Your lover, Śrī Kṛṣṇa, here in the dense forest full of thorns and sharp grass. Despite Your great endeavor, You have not found Him. Tormented by the arrows of Cupid and burning in a fever of amorous desire, You pine for His association.”

The specific time or season, indicated by the word vasanta, springtime, is the stimulant (uddīpana-vibhāva) in this verse. The word calad (an alternative reading for the word valad) is an adjective referring to Rādhā, indicating that She has searched extensively for Kṛṣṇa. Hoping against hope, She thinks, “Perhaps My sweetheart is about to arrive. He may come at any moment now.”

Vāsantī-kusuma-sukumārair avayavaiḥ – “The limbs of Rādhā’s body resemble spring flowers.” The comparison has been made to convey the tenderness of Her youthful beauty. Vāsantī-kusuma – The mādhavī vine comes into full bloom during the spring season. This phrase indicates that Śrī Rādhā’s limbs are as enchanting and delicate as the flowers of the mādhavī vine.

“O Rādhā, it is certain that Your prāṇa-nātha Śyāmasundara, who is the very breath of Your life, has forsaken You and now He must be romancing with someone else. On the first autumn night of the śāradyā rāsa-līlā, Śyāmasundara experienced the incomparable sweetness of Your beauty and thus He felt fulfilled, His famous passion for You satisfied. Therefore, sometimes He goes out, scouting around for a few days, as if mining for precious stones, just to find out whether or not anyone in all Vraja-maṇḍala is equal to You. To satisfy His curiosity, Yogamāyā inspired Kāmsa to send Akrūra to Nanda Gaon to take Śyāma to Mathurā, the home of multitudes of young ladies. He saw that there was no one in Mathurā-maṇḍala whose beauty and attractive qualities could compare with those of the damsels of Vraja.

“Then Madhusudana set off for Dvārakā, as if impelled by this desire to find Your equal. There He married eight princesses, but His quest was still not complete. Then He married the sixteen-thousand princesses who had been kidnapped by Narakāsura. They included celestial maidens (gandharva-kanyā), maidens among the attendants of Kuvera (yakṣa-kanyā), the daughters of serpents (nāga-kanyā) and human damsels (mānava-kanyā). But still, O Rādhikā, He could not find anyone like You, so He has returned again to Vraja after killing Dantavakra.”

A discussion about Śrī Kṛṣṇa's return to Vraja after His long stay in a distant land is found in the Padma Purāṇa:

kṛṣṇo 'pi taṁ dantavakraṁ hatvā yamunāmutīrya nanda-vrajaṁ gatvā sotkaṅṭhau pitarau abhivādyāśvāsya tābhyāṁ sāsrukaṅṭham āliṅgitaḥ sakala gopa-vṛndān praṇamyāśvāsya sarvān santarpayāmāsa

“After killing Dantavakra, Śrī Kṛṣṇa crossed the Yamunā and arrived in Vraja. He offered obeisances and consoled Nanda and Yaśodā, who for so long had been yearning to see Him. They bathed their son in their tears, embraced Him to their hearts and thus pacified their long-lived anguish. After that, Śrī Kṛṣṇa met with all the cowherds and soothed their pain of separation. Finally, He met with the vraja-gopīs, who had been sorely missing Him, and relieved their acute affliction.”

In the First Canto of Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam (1.11.9), the residents of Dvārakā say:

yarhy ambujākṣāpasasāra bho bhavān kurūn madhūn vātha suhr̥d-didṛkṣayā tatrābda-koṭi-pratimaḥ kṣaṇo bhaved raviṁ vinākṣṇor iva nas tavācyuta

“Kamala-nayana, O lotus-eyed one! When You leave for Kurudeśa and Madhupurī (Vraja-maṇḍala) to meet with Your dear ones, one moment feels like ten million eons. Just as the eyes perceive only darkness in the absence of the sun, without You all four directions seem like a desolate void.”

The joy that the gopīs derive from meeting with their beloved in the springtime and the sorrow they feel when distanced from Him are both heart-touching. Śrī Rādhā's sakhī is reminding Her of both these conditions.

This verse includes vaidarbhī rīti and upanāgarikā vṛtti. Kedāra Bhaṭṭa defines the meter, śikhariṇī chanda, in his Vṛtta- ratnakāra (3.93) thus: rasaiḥ rudrais chinnā ya-ma-na-sa-bha-lā-gaḥ śikhariṇī. “In the śikhariṇī meter each line consists of six combinations, called ya, ma, na, sa, bha and laghu-guru respectively, with a caesura after the eleventh syllable.” The six combinations are: one short, five long, five short, two long, three short, one long.

❀ Song Three ❀

The musical mode is vasanta rāga and the rhythm is yati tāla.

śikhaṇḍa-barhoccaya-baddha-cūḍaḥ
puṣṇan pikaṁ cūta-navāṅkureṇa bhraman mudā-rāmam anaṅga mūrtir marto mātaṅgo hi vasanta-rāgaḥ

The vasanta-rāga personified wears a peacock feather upon his head. He nourishes a flock of the finest cuckoos with freshly sprouted mango buds and creepers. His body resembles Kāmadeva and he wanders joyfully like the madly intoxicated king of elephants.

VERSE 28

lalita-lavaṅga-latā-pariśīlana-komala-malaya-samīre madhukara-nikara-karambita-kokila-kūjita-kuñja-kuṭīre (1)

viharati harir iha sarasa-vasante
nṛtyati yuvati-janena samaṁ sakhi virahi-janasya durante
(refrain)

O Rādhā! Alas, how enchanting springtime is when the Malayan breeze arrives and impetuously embraces the tender clove creepers. The kuñjas resound with the sweet kuhu sound of the cuckoos and the humming of bees as they bumble to and fro.

Śyāma is blithely enjoying with some fortunate damsels, dancing in a festival of love. O friend, this springtime brings endless agony to the forlorn and lonely-hearted. (refrain)

Commentary

When the trees are infused with new life by the touch of the Malayan breeze, the bumblebees begin to hum with excitement, attracted by the blossoming jasmines, and the cuckoos begin to coo on finding fresh buds on the mango trees. Appearing like an elephant maddened with lust and wearing a peacock feather in His turban, Śrī Kṛṣṇa mesmerizes the minds of all.

Vasanta rāga is prominent in springtime. In yati tāla there are three beats, short and fast. The word sakhī conveys the feeling of intimate friendship.

Sarasa-vasante – the adjective sarasa indicates that springtime is relishable and full of astonishing mellows.

Virahi-janasya durante – Deserted lovers pass their time with great difficulty in this provocative spring season. Śrī Hari steals the mind, heart and very life of everyone by His sweet pastimes, so separation from Him at this time becomes all the more painful and intolerable.

Lalita-lavaṅga-latā-pariśīlana-komala-malaya-samīre – This phrase describes the specialty of the location. The Malayan breeze was already cool, gentle and fragrant, but it has become even more so by the touch of the elegant clove vines.

Madhukara-nikara-karambita-kokila-kūjita-kuñja-kuṭīre – The etymology of this line is: madhukarānām yo hi nikaras tena karambitāḥ miśritāḥ ye kokilāstaiḥ kūjitaḥ yaḥ kuñja kuṭīraḥ tatra – The dancing takes place in a forest bower alive with the singing of a multitude of bees and cuckoos.

A sakhī describes the beauty of the Vṛndāvana spring to the anxious and lonely heroine (viraha utkaṅṭhītā) Śrī Rādhā: “The fragrance of the flowers, the touch of the Malayan breeze, the coolness of the Yamunā’s water, the handsome trees tightly embraced by attractive clove creepers, the burgeoning vines and the tender touch of one’s lover’s limbs – however pleasant the spring season may be when lovers meet, it is equally distressing during separation.

“If an unconscious vine cannot remain without her beloved in the excitement of the romantic season, then how can a fully conscious vine-like woman exist without her lover? Now the drone of the bees and the cooing of the cuckoos are ever more heart-wrenching. When even the minds of great sages are attracted by the fragrance of the mādhavī and belī flowers, then what to speak of emotionally aroused women?”

As Rādhā’s friend was speaking, she had a momentary inner vision of Mādhava. She continued, “When a mango tree is embraced by a mādhavī vine, it blossoms with new buds, just like a man whose hair stands on end when embraced by a beautiful woman. In the same way, today Hari, enchanted by Vṛndāvana’s beautiful riverside forest, dabbles in amour, absorbed in the embrace of fetching young beauties.” Rādhā responded to Her sakhī, “Alas! How can I control myself?”

This verse describes the excitants (uddīpana-vibhāva) that nourish amorous love in separation (vipralambha-ṣṅgāra-rasa).

VERSE 29

*unmada-madana-manoratha-pathika-vadhū-jana-janita-vilāpe ali-kula-saṅkula-kusuma-samūha-nirākula-bakula-kalāpe
viharati harir iha sarasa-vasante... (2)*

“My dear friend, when husbands are long absent, lonely wives, excited by Cupid, simply weep continuously. But look! Mālatī blossoms crowd upon the branches, while swarms of bumblebees buzz around the abundantly blooming bakula flowers.”

And over there Mādhava is romancing and dancing with those other fortunate maidens. (refrain)

Commentary

Painting a picture of the vexatious and impassioning nature of spring, Rādhārānī's sakhī tells Her that this season is immensely troublesome for lonely lovers because it incites lust. Heroines whose dearest ones have gone to distant lands pine incessantly, unable to satisfy their inflamed desires. When bakula and other flowers spread their fragrance in all directions, swarms of jubilant bumblebees hum as in a state of intense agitation.

VERSE 30

*mṛgamada-saurabha-rabhasa-vaśamvadanava-dala-māla-tamāle yuva-jana-hṛdaya-vidāraṇa-manasija-nakha-ruci-kimsuka-jāle
viharati harir iha sarasa-vasante... (3)*

Adorned with new leaves, the tamāla trees delight in diffusing their musk-like fragrance. The flame-like petals of the palāśa flowers, exactly resembling Kāmadeva's fingernails, tear at young hearts.

Commentary

All directions are now beautified by the scent of musk flowing from the newly grown tamāla leaves. The clusters of fully-blossomed palāśa flowers seem like fingernails, Cupid's special weapons for ripping open the hearts of young couples who have been separated.

The purport is that Mādhava's bodily fragrance is enthusing the whole atmosphere, making separation from Him unbearable. For tender maidens especially, such separation is extremely harsh.

VERSE 31

*madana-mahīpati-kanaka-daṇḍa-ruci-keśara-kusuma-vikāse milita-śilīmukha-pāṭali-pāṭala-kṛta-smara-tūṅa-vilāse
 viharati harir iha sarasa-vasante... (4)*

The saffron nāga-keśara flowers appear like the golden scepters of the King of Love and the trumpet (pāṭali) flowers surrounded by bumblebees are Kāmadeva's quiver.

Commentary

The blooming nāga-keśara flowers exactly resemble the luster of His Majesty King Madana's golden wand. Springtime is like the arrows of the bumblebees' sharp teeth cutting the hearts of lonely lovers.

VERSE 32

*vigalita-lajjita-jagad-avalokana-taruṇa-karuṇa-kṛta-hāse virahi-nikṛntana-kunta-mukhākṛti-ketaki-danturitāse
 viharati harir iha sarasa-vasante... (5)*

The compassionate trees burst into bloom as if laughing at a world gone shameless under the influence of spring. The spiked ketakī flowers, brightly blossoming in all directions and gratifying the whole atmosphere, pierce the hearts of forlorn lovers.

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā's companion continues, "Dear sakhi, what more can I say? In springtime the lovelorn abandon their shyness and cry in separation from their lovers. Indeed, all the living entities throughout the creation discard their bashfulness. Seeing the world in this condition, the youthful, compassionate trees blossom and scatter their radiant flowers, as if dispersing the nectar of laughter. They are like young men chuckling, acknowledging the lusty desires in the hearts of torrid women.”

How can compassion and laughter possibly occur simultaneously? When intimate lovers are separated, their condition is very pitiful and they arouse compassion. But by losing their self-composure, they become the objects of laughter. The tips of the blossoming ketakī flowers act as lances to pierce the lonely-hearted.

VERSE 33

*mādhavikā-parimala-lalite nava-mālikayāti-sugandhau muni-manasām api mohana-kāriṇi taruṇākāraṇa-bandhau
viharati harir iha sarasa-vasante... (6)*

The pollen of the mādhavikā flowers mixes with the exquisite aroma of nava-mālikā blossoms (jūhī), agitating the minds of even great sages, who suddenly become bewildered. This enchanting springtime is the natural friend of the young.

Commentary

“The spring season is charming because the whole atmosphere is fragrant with the delightful aroma of jasmine (nava-mālikā) and the pollen of spring flowers (mādhavī). If this stimulation arouses lust within the minds of great sages, what can be said of its effect on ordinary men? Even unconscious creepers cannot bear to be without their lovers (the trees) during this provocative season, so how can we conscious maidens – akin to the creepers – tolerate being alone? The buzzing of the bees and the cooing of the cuckoos break the heart – this spring season is the natural friend of the young.”

VERSE 34

*sphurad-atimukta-latā-parirambhaṇa-pulakita-mukulita-cūte vṛndāvana-vipine parisara-parigata-yamunā-jala-pūte
viharati harir iha sarasa-vasante... (7)*

Trembling with rapture from the embrace of the restless mādhavī vines, the mango trees burst with new buds. Yamunā's pure waters flow nearby where Hari rejoices with lovely damsels in the groves of Vṛndāvana.

Commentary

In springtime, even inert substances become agitated by lust. Impelled by the breeze, the mādhavī vine caresses the mango tree, which, thrilled with joy, bursts with new buds. The Yamunā flows nearby, purifying the love arbors of Vṛndāvana where Śrī Hari dallies with beautiful girls.

VERSE 35

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam udayati hari-caraṇa-smṛti-sāram sarasa-vasanta-samaya-vana-varṇanam anugata-madana-vikāram
viharati harir iha sarasa-vasante... (8)*

Śrī Jayadeva sings of the beauty of the springtime forest suffused with Rādhā's ecstatic transformations of love. May his auspicious rasa-laden song, woven together with pangs of love that fill the forest, awaken remembrance of Śrī Hari's lotus feet.

Commentary

Śrī Jayadeva concludes by defining the specific excellence of this song – an expression of the springtime nourishing śṅgāra-rasa in the forest where Kṛṣṇa enjoys romantic escapades. The forest, awakening with signs of passion, is reflecting utkaṇṭhitā Rādhā's ecstatic transformations of love when She is overwhelmed with anxiety in separation from Kṛṣṇa. May this auspicious song, which stimulates powerful remembrance of Śrī Hari's lotus feet, be victorious. May those who are disturbed by lust have the opportunity to hear this song so that their heart disease may be eradicated forever.

In this song Rādhā is a madhyā nāyikā, a heroine who is sometimes mild and shy (mugdā) and at other times severe and bold (pragalbhā), and who, because of being subject to these two extreme temperaments, displays the pinnacle of all rasa; and Kṛṣṇa is a dakṣiṇa nāyaka, a guileless lover having many sweethearts. The rasa is vipralambha-śṅgāra. This third song is entitled Mādhavotsava-kamalākara, “The Spring Festival Abounding with Lotus-like Beauties.”

VERSE 36

dara-vidalita-mallī-valli-cañcat-parāga prakaṣṭita-ṣaṭavāsair vāsayan kānanāni iha hi dahati cetaḥ ketakī-gandha-bandhuḥ prasaraḍ-asamabāṇa-prāṇavad-gandhavāhaḥ

O sakhī, look! The spring breeze – laden with the fragrance of ketakī flowers and spreading throughout the forest a white veil of pollen from the half-opened mallikā blossoms – is Kāmadeva’s ally, torturing the hearts of deserted lovers.

Commentary

Describing to Śrī Rādhā the arousing effect of the Malayan breeze in springtime, Her sakhī tells Her that the gentle wind sets the hearts of lonely lovers on fire. One may ask, “What have they done wrong that they are being punished in this way?” The answer is: “This wind is like Kāmadeva’s very breath. They are bosom friends, and just to obey the order of his intimate ally, the wind burns the hearts of the lovelorn.”

In springtime, when the mallikā vines begin to blossom, the whole atmosphere is thick with their pollen flying everywhere, and the air is also saturated with the fragrance of the ketakī’s aromatic pollen. Laden with these heady scents, the gently moving breeze behaves exactly like Kāmadeva and scorches lonely lovers. Thus it is seen that they are like-minded friends.

This verse, composed in mālinī chanda, contains samāsokti and varṇānuprāsa alaṅkāra.

VERSE 37

adyotsaṅga-vasad-bhujāṅga-kavala-kleśād iveśācalam prāleya-plavanecchayānusarati śrīkhaṇḍa-sailānilaḥ kiṁ ca snigdha-rasāla-mauli-mukulāny ālokyā harṣodayād unmīlanti kuhūḥ kuhūr iti kalottālāḥ pikānām girāḥ

“O sakhi, I have heard that many snakes live in the Malaya Hills, whose breeze has surely been overwhelmed by their burning poison. It seems that it is now on its way to the Himālayas to cool down in the icy waters there. The cuckoos are loudly singing kuhu-kuhu in mellifluous voices, jubilant on seeing the tender and tasty mango buds.”

Commentary

In this verse Rādhā's sakhī paints a picture of two intensifiers (uddīpana) of śṛṅgāra-rasa that stimulate Her kāma. “Now it is springtime and the Malayan breeze, burning from the poisonous fumes of the venomous snakes residing in the sandalwood trees of the Malaya Hills, is floating towards the snow-covered Himālayas. It seems to be seeking relief, wanting to enjoy the bliss of the cold mountain air. Now the sap is rising in the trees and they are bursting with buds. The cuckoos, delighted to see the mango blossoms, loudly sing out, ‘Kuhu-kuhu.’ O Rādhā, at such a provocative and exciting time there is no reason for You to feel inhibited before Mādhava.”

This verse includes anuprāsa and upamā alaṅkāras, vaidarbhī rīti and śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda. The sthāyībhāva, or permanent emotion, is the amorous mellow (śṛṅgāra-rati) in separation.

VERSE 38

unmīlan-madhu-gandha-lubdha-madhupa-vyādhūta-cūtānkura kṛīdat-kokila-kākalī-kalakalair udgīrṇa-karṇa-jvarāḥ nīyante pathikaiḥ katham katham api dhyānāvadhāna-kṣaṇa prāpta-prāṇasamā-samāgama-rasollāsair amī vāsarāḥ

“O sakhi, look! The sweet kuhu-kuhu of cuckoos sporting in the tender mango sprouts combines with the drone of the greedy bees obsessed with the blossoming flowers’ fragrant honey. This clamor raises fever in the ears of lonely wayfarers pining in separation, who, for a moment’s happiness, spend their pain-filled spring days contemplating the delightful dalliance they had enjoyed with beloveds dear as their lives.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā’s sakhī admits that separation is extremely difficult to tolerate. When Śrī Kṛṣṇa is absent, the Malayan breeze simply inflicts pain. Furthermore, the sweet murmuring of cuckoos sitting in the mango trees reverberates in all directions, and stirs feelings of deep regret in the hearts of deserted lovers. The cooing of these playful birds causes an outbreak of high fever in their ears. The cuckoos’ voices remind them of their lovers, who are as dear to them as life itself, and for a moment, as they meditate on their faces, they feel as if they have united with them. These painful times are difficult.

The current verse contains kāvyaṅga alāṅkāra, śārdūla vikṛīta chanda, gauḍīyā rīti and vipralambha-śṛṅgāra-rasa. Plural usage of the word vāsarāḥ, the spring days, is very much appropriate.

VERSE 39

aneka-nārī-parirambha-sambhrama sphuran-manohāri-vilāsa-lālasam murārim ārād upadarśayanty asau sakhī samakṣam punar āha rādhikām

Śrī Rādhikā's sakhī cleverly searched out Śrī Kṛṣṇa and discovered Him nearby, delighting in the enthusiastic embraces of the lovable cowherd damsels, who were receiving Him with the utmost respect. Attracted by their advances, Murāri became eager to enjoy love play. Drawing Rādhā's attention to this scene from a hidden place, Her sakhī spoke to Her again.

Commentary

The poet has described Śrī Rādhā's intensely inflamed emotions through a vivid description of the beauty of the forest. Her sakhī directly reveals Śrī Kṛṣṇa's intentions by saying, "Sakhī, look! See what Murāri is doing now." He was being embraced by so many tender maidens, but they never fully satisfied Him. In the end, He was overwhelmed with an intense eagerness to meet with the more captivating Śrī Rādhā and enjoy with Her.

The meter of this verse is vamśasthāvila, the alaṅkāra is anuprāsa and the hero is dakṣiṇa nāyaka, the guileless lover having many sweethearts.

 Song Four

The musical mode is rāmakarī rāga and the rhythm is yati tāla.

VERSE 40

candana-carcita-nīla-kalevara-pīta-vasana-vanamālī keli-calan-maṇi-kuṇḍala-maṇḍita-gaṇḍa-yuga-smīta-śālī (1)

*harir iha mugdha-vadhū-nikare
vilāsini vilasati keli-pare (refrain)*

“His golden garment and wreath of wild flowers contrast His dark limbs besmeared with sandalwood paste. Jeweled earrings dangling from His ears make His cheeks glitter, setting off the bewitching smile on His face.

“He vilāsini Śrī Rādhē! O coquettish girl, look! Hari joyously revels with a host of love-maddened maidens here in the forest.”
(refrain)

Commentary

The rāga of this song is rāmakarī and the tāla is jhampā. According to the author of Rasa-mañjarī, the tāla is rūpaka.

When a heroine dresses in blue cloth and adorns herself with golden ornaments, thus resembling the morning sky, and when she impetuously becomes highly indignant towards her beloved, the hero will sit at her feet and placate her. The rāga employed to capture this moment is called rāmakarī.

Fully absorbed, Śrī Kṛṣṇa sweetly laughs and jokes as He takes delight in dallying with a crowd of alluring young brides. Not far from there, Śrī Rādhā, along with Her sakhī, observes Him and, as She watches Him enjoying Himself, an intense yearning to engage in amour with Him suddenly awakens in Her mind. Therefore, as Śrī Kṛṣṇa embraced one beautiful vraja-gopī in a solitary kuñja, a sphūrti of Rādhā manifested in His heart.

Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s pastimes are eternal, and therefore they are also perceptible. In separation there are three prominent ways in which they are beheld: remembrance (smaraṇa), an internal vision (sphūrti) and direct appearance (āvirbhāva). This particular pastime is punctuated with a sphūrti, which, albeit brief, profoundly affects the course of events.

The word mugdha can mean ‘innocent, lovesick heroine’ and also ‘beautiful.’ Both meanings are intended in this context. The word vilāsa refers to an ecstatic emotional ornament characterized by bhāva (the first stirring of passion) and hāva (subsequent provocative gestures). As stated by Bharata Muni in Nāṭya-śāstra:

*sthāne yānāsane vāpi
netra vaktrādi karmanā utpādyate viśeṣo yaḥ
sa-vilāsaḥ prakīrtitaḥ*

“Enchanting bodily postures and expressions of the eyes and face while moving, sitting or walking are called vilāsa.”

The word smita indicates that Śrī Kṛṣṇa is smiling. Mild laughter is also called smita. In the words of Bharata Muni:

*iśad vikasitair gaṇḍaiḥ kaṭākṣaiḥ sauṣṭhavānvitaiḥ alākṣita dvijaṃ dhīram
uttamānām smitam bhavet*

“Smita occurs when a person who is smiling does not show his teeth. His cheeks are sure to blossom slightly as he casts a charming sidelong glance.”

VERSE 41

*pīna-payodhara-bhāra-bhareṇa harim parirabhya sa-rāgam gopa-vadhūr anugāyati kācid udañcita-pañcama-rāgam
harir iha mugdha-vadhū-nikare... (2)*

“One gopī, passionately embracing Hari and crushing Him with the weight of her heavy breasts, is singing with Him in the fifth note.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā's sakhī is relaying an eye-witness account of the gopīs' activities with Śrī Kṛṣṇa as they are unfolding. "O Rādhā, Your love play with Hari is unequalled and unsurpassed. He is being fervently embraced by one proud and buxom gopī, but this is just a dim reflection of His pastimes with You. Indeed, how can these beautiful damsels possibly be compared with You? Now He is singing in the fifth rāga and she responds by echoing His song."

By describing the gopī as being full bosomed, Rādhā's sakhī is implying that the gopī is stunningly beautiful. "It appears that Hari is not very skilled. He is not even attempting to embrace this gopī; therefore she is taking the lead in embracing Him. This secret amorous exchange may be sweet, but in Your absence how can it really excel? Śṛṅgāra-rasa is fully nourished when mutual embracing occurs and that is only possible with You, Rādhā. Look at how Śyāmasundara is attempting to enjoy with others, even though You are the one who constantly occupies His mind."

Pañcama-rāga, the fifth musical mode, is usually sung to accompany śṛṅgāra-rasa. Bharata Muni has also stated:

pañcamam madhya bhūyiṣṭham
hāsya śṛṅgarayor bhavet

"Pañcama-rāga in madhya-tāla is predominant in hāsya and śṛṅgāra-rasa."

VERSE 42

kāpi vilāsa-vilola-vilocana-khelana-janita-manojam dhyāyati mugdha-vadhūr adhikaṁ madhusūdana-vadana-sarojam
harir iha mugdha-vadhū-nikare... (3)

“Another beautiful damsel, aroused by Madhusūdana’s crooked glances sparkling with passion, drinks with her eyes the honey of His pleasing lotus face. Then she lapses into intent meditation on His beauty.”

Commentary

Describing an enchanted heroine (mugdhā nāyikā), Śrī Rādhā’s sakhī says, “This gopī is meditating on Kṛṣṇa’s lotus face. As Śyāmasundara revels in amorous play, His restless eyes display suggestive expressions. He spontaneously arouses desire in the hearts of impassioned maidens with His inviting glances, and thus feels immense bliss within the core of His heart.”

The mugdhā nāyikā is very shy, therefore her amatory endeavors are inhibited by social conventions.

VERSE 43

*kāpi kapola-tale militā lapituṁ kim api śruti-mūle cāru cucumba nitambavatī dayitaṁ pulakair anukūle
harir iha mugdha-vadhū-nikare... (4)*

“One full-hipped beauty is bending forward pretending to whisper a secret in the ear of her beloved, causing His hairs to bristle. Seeing His rapture, that romantic maiden seizes this cherished opportunity to kiss His cheek.”

Commentary

The word nitambavatī – a woman with shapely hips – has been used to convey the mature heroine’s exquisite beauty. It is improper to kiss one’s beloved in the presence of one’s friends. Therefore, on the pretext of telling Śrī Kṛṣṇa something, she kissed the edge of His cheek. This shows the heroine’s expertise in loving affairs (śṛṅgāra-vaidagdhya). Here Kṛṣṇa is anukūla nāyaka, the obliging hero.

VERSE 44

*keli-kalā-kutukena ca kācid amuṁ yamunā-jala-kūle mañjula-vañjula-kuñja-gataṁ vicakarṣa kareṇa dukūle
harir iha mugdha-vadhū-nikare... (5)*

“Another gopī discovered herself alone with Hari by a charming, secluded vetasī kuñja on the bank of the Yamunā. Eager for enjoying amatory arts, she caught hold of His yellow cloth and pulled Him in.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā’s friend is describing a temperamental heroine, the adhīrā nāyikā. “When Madhusūdana came to the charming vine-covered bamboo kuñja on the bank of the Yamunā, this adhīrā nāyikā, deeply desiring to delight in erotic arts, tugged at His cloth and brought Him inside.”

The word ca (and) implies that she began to joke with Kṛṣṇa in various ways upon noticing a place that afforded complete privacy. The words yamunā-tīre – on the bank of the Yamunā – have not been used. Rather, the phrase yamunā-jala-tīre has been employed to indicate that the river bank is cool and pure like water (jala).

Pulling Kṛṣṇa away by his cloth when He shows signs of being attracted to another maiden is typical of the temperamental ladylove (adhīrā nāyikā).

VERSE 45

*kara-tala-tāla-tarala-valayāvali-kalita-kalasvana-vaṁśe rāsa-rase saha-nṛtya-parā hariṇā yuvatīḥ praśaśaṁse
harir iha mugdha-vadhū-nikare... (6)*

“Hari praises one youthful beauty intoxicated from dancing in the ecstasy of the rāsa, her clapping hands and tinkling bangles echoing His flute’s sweet notes.”

Commentary

Our sakhī tells Śrī Rādhā that while dancing with Śrī Kṛṣṇa in rāsa-līlā another damsel is expertly clapping her hands in perfect rhythm and tone. Thus her bangles collide, making a sweet jingle that complements the sound of the flute. Hearing this astonishingly sweet duet, Kṛṣṇa repeatedly applauds this attractive temptress.

VERSE 46

*śliṣyati kām api cumbati kām api kām api ramayati rāmām paśyati sa-smīta-cārutarām aparām anugacchati vāmām
harir iha mugdha-vadhū-nikare... (7)*

“Driven by His craving for śṛṅgāra-rasa, one He embraces, another He kisses, yet another He fervidly caresses. Another captures His expectant gaze with her suggestive smiles, and still another leaves in a huff, inducing Him to run after her.”

Commentary

During rāsa-līlā, Śrī Kṛṣṇa assumes many forms and dallies with the beautiful damsels who are ready for romance. Overwhelmed with desire for erotic joy, He embraces one inflamed girl, another He kisses, with another He strolls along, and He thirstily gazes upon yet another ravishing beauty. One especially lovely maiden He accidentally addresses, ‘O Rādhā;’ becoming indignant she runs off in a huff. Anxious for her love, Śrī Kṛṣṇa follows her, attempting to convince her to return. When that sulky gopī refuses His advances, He tries to soften her anger with humble requests for conciliation.

This verse portrays Kṛṣṇa as the śaṭha nāyaka (the cheating lover), dhr̥ṣṭa (the bold and arrogant lover), dakṣiṇa (the expert lover) and anukūla (the obliging hero). The heroines are all abhisārikā nāyikās, happy to meet their lover.

The symptoms of dhṛṣṭa nāyaka have been defined in Śṛṅgāra-tilaka (1.17) and also in Ujjvala-nilamaṇī (1.40):

*abhiviyaktānya taruṇī
bhoga-lakṣmāpi nirbhayaḥ mithyā-vacana dakṣaś ca
dhṛṣṭo 'yaṁ khalu kathyate*

“Although the signs of lovemaking with another vibrant maiden are clearly visible on his person, the audacious hero expertly and fearlessly concocts a deceitful alibi. He is called a dhṛṣṭa nāyaka.”

The symptoms of the śaṭha nāyaka have been described thus:

*priyaṁ vyakti puro 'nyatra vipriyaṁ kurute bhṛṣam nigūḍham aparādham ca śaṭho 'yaṁ kathito budhaiḥ
(Śṛṅgāra-tilaka 1.18 and Ujjvala-nilamaṇī 1.39)*

“Learned authorities state that the śaṭha nāyaka conceals his infidelity to his avowed sweetheart, speaking sweet words to her, all the while remaining covertly attached to another.”

VERSE 47

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam adbhuta-keśava-keli-rahasyam vṛndāvana-vipine lalitāṁ vitanotu śubhāni yaśasyam
harir iha mugdha-vadhū-nikare... (8)*

May Śrī Jayadeva's delightful song describing the astonishing mystery of Śrī Keśava's amorous play in the bowers of Vṛndāvana, bestow auspiciousness on all.

Commentary

Śrī Jayadeva concludes by describing the mystery of Śrī Keśava's astonishing romantic escapades. The wonderful secret is that one Kṛṣṇa revels with many sublime maidens at once and fulfills all their cherished desires simultaneously. This song is very appealing due to its description of Śrī Keśava's secret practice of the amorous arts, which causes Śrī Rādhā to lament as She witnesses Him in action. Its charm is further increased because of its exact adherence to the rigors of rāga and tāla. May this melodious song, which extends the excellence emanating from those forest pastimes, confer auspiciousness and increase the virtue of those who recite and hear it.

VERSE 48

viśveṣām anurañjanena janayann ānandam indīvaraśrenī-śyāmala-komalair upanayann aṅgair anaṅgotsavam svacchandanṁ vraja-sundarībhīr abhitaḥ praty-aṅgam āliṅgitaḥ śṛṅgāraḥ sakhi mūrtimān iva madhau mugdho hariḥ kṛṣṇati

“O sakhī, Hari, whose soft, dark limbs surpass the beauty of a blue lotus, begins the festival of love. Intoxicated by the rasa of romantic springtime encounters, He plays like erotic mood incarnate. With intense fervor, He is satisfying the gopīs' unbridled passion far beyond their expectations. The beautiful cowherd maidens, aroused into a wild, blissful state, embrace His every limb without restraint.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā's friend says, “Sakhī, look!” as she points out the amorous activities of their cherished Hari with the intention of stimulating Her passion. “It is springtime. Not only that, it is the month of Madhu, and Hari is lost in enjoying love play with all the gopīs as if He were Cupid himself.”

Śṛṅgāraḥ sakhīḥ mūrtimān iva – The sakhī reveals Kṛṣṇa as erotic euphoria personified as He meets with His beloveds, who are inflamed with desire. Puruṣaḥ pramadā-yuktaḥ śṛṅgāra itī saṁjñītaḥ – “A man delighting with a highly aroused woman is called śṛṅgāra.” Kṛṣṇa is satisfyin[g the gopīs’ coveted ambitions far beyond their expectations and intensifying their happiness in a festival of Eros. That Śrī Hari, through His ever increasing love for the cowherd maidens, is bestowing bliss upon all living entities.

The sakhī describes Kṛṣṇa’s elegant limbs as darker and softer than a blue lotus. The word indīvara, blue lotus, conveys the sense of darkness, softness and refreshing coolness; the word śreṇī indicates freshness that appears newer at every moment; and the word śyāmala implies handsome tender youthfulness. Such a Kṛṣṇa – śṛṅgāraḥ-mūrtimān, the shelter of unparalleled beauty and the indisputable master of erotic enjoyment – is celebrating a festival of transcendental amorous love. And in response the attractive vraja-gopīs are freely and spontaneously embracing each and every limb of His body.

Rasa emerges from the combination of two elements, namely, the hero’s anurāga for his ladylove and the heroine’s anurāga for her sweetheart. The hero and heroine must experience mutual attraction for rasa to swell to its fullest form.

Here we indeed find paraspara-anurañjana, the act of pleasing each other, so rasa will certainly manifest. It begins with the integration of vibhāva, anubhāva, sāttvika and sañcārī-bhāvas.⁴ As rasa flourishes with the maturity of prema, it escalates sequentially

3. vibhāva – excitants that cause the appearance of kṛṣṇa-rati; anubhāva – twelve subordinate bodily symptoms of ecstasy, including dancing, rolling on the ground and crying loudly; sāttvika – eight transformations in the body such as tears, horripilation and trembling, arising from the internal disturbance of the heart and prāṇa; sañcārī-bhāvas – thirty-three overwhelming transitory emotions such as indifference, happiness and jealousy. These are the four ingredients of bhāva, which are relished independently of one another upon their appearance.

through the stages of sneha, māna, praṇaya, rāga, anurāga, bhāva and mahābhāva. When prema-rasa begins to emerge, the hero and heroine feel no inhibitions regarding their actions, the place or the time. Despite the absence of any restriction, the act of love, involving the complete union of every limb, still does not reach its pinnacle until mahābhāva is achieved, evincing the fullest expression of prema-rasa. At this stage the nāyaka and nāyikā are overwhelmed in astonishment, which is the life and soul and very essence of rasa. As their external and internal senses become fully mesmerized by the newer and newer emotions they are relishing, they lose awareness of everything else.

As Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī explains in his Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu (Southern Quadrant, Fifth wave, verse 132):

*vyatītya bhāvanā-vartma
yaś camatkāra-bhāra-bhūḥ hṛdi sattvojjvale bādham svadate sa raso mataḥ*

“[The stage of distinguishing the constituent bhāvas being surpassed,] that ecstasy which becomes even more intensely relishable in the heart resplendent with suddha-sattva (pure existential goodness coming with the attainment of bhāva), which transcends the platform of thought, and which becomes even more astonishing in bliss than bhāva – such rapture is called rasa.”

A doubt may come. Śrī Kṛṣṇa beheld those voluptuous maidens from one direction, thus His experience of them was not complete. This point is refuted by the phrase pratya-āṅgam āliṅgita – Śrī Kṛṣṇa has satisfied all gopīs by contact with each and every limb, by embracing, kissing, touching and other appropriate activities. One might further query, “How could one single Kṛṣṇa have embraced all of them?” The answer is that Kāmadeva is one, yet he pervades the entire creation. Similarly, Śrī Kṛṣṇa is one and also all-pervading. By virtue of this attribute, He is competent to delight the whole universe.

Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī quotes this verse in Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu (Western Quadrant, Fifth Wave, verse 5) as an example of ālambana-vibhāva in madhura-bhakti-rasa.

The current verse includes dīpaka alaṅkāra, vaidarbhī rīti, śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda, śṅgāra-rasa and vākyaucitya. The heroine of the song, Rādhā, is utkaṅṭhitā nāyikā, who remains in the anxiety of separation and worries when Her hero fails to come.

VERSE 49

rāsollāsa-bhareṇa vibhrama-bhṛtām ābhīra-vāma-bhruvām abhyarṇaṁ parirabhya nirbharam uraḥ premāndhayā rādhayā sādhu tvad-vadanam sudhā-mayam iti vyāhṛtya gīta-stutivyājād udbhaṭa-cumbitaḥ smita-manohārī hariḥ pātu vah

Blinded by love, the bewildered Śrī Rādhā lost all sense of decorum. Before all the enchanting gopīs drowning in prema in the rāsa-līlā, She tightly embraced Śrī Kṛṣṇa's chest and kissed Him deep, exclaiming, “Ahā nātha, O possessor of My life! Sweet indeed is Your face, sweet as nectar.” Her driving love spontaneously filled His heart with rhapsody, bringing a charming smile to His lotus face. May that Śrī Hari bestow auspiciousness upon all.

Commentary

This is the final verse of Act One, entitled Sāmōda-Dāmodara, “Dāmodara Delighted.” After painting a picture of the vasanti (spring) night, the sakhī is reminding Rādhā of a previous romantic encounter with Śrī Kṛṣṇa during the śāradyā-rāsa in the autumn. Kṛṣṇa was immersed in a festival of amour, enjoying amidst a host of cowherd damsels, who were shooting crooked glances at Him. At first Rādhā was anxious, feeling separation, but through Her friend's encouragement She was suddenly overwhelmed with passion. Now blinded by Her prema, She lost Her shyness. On the pretext of sweetly singing Kṛṣṇa's praises,

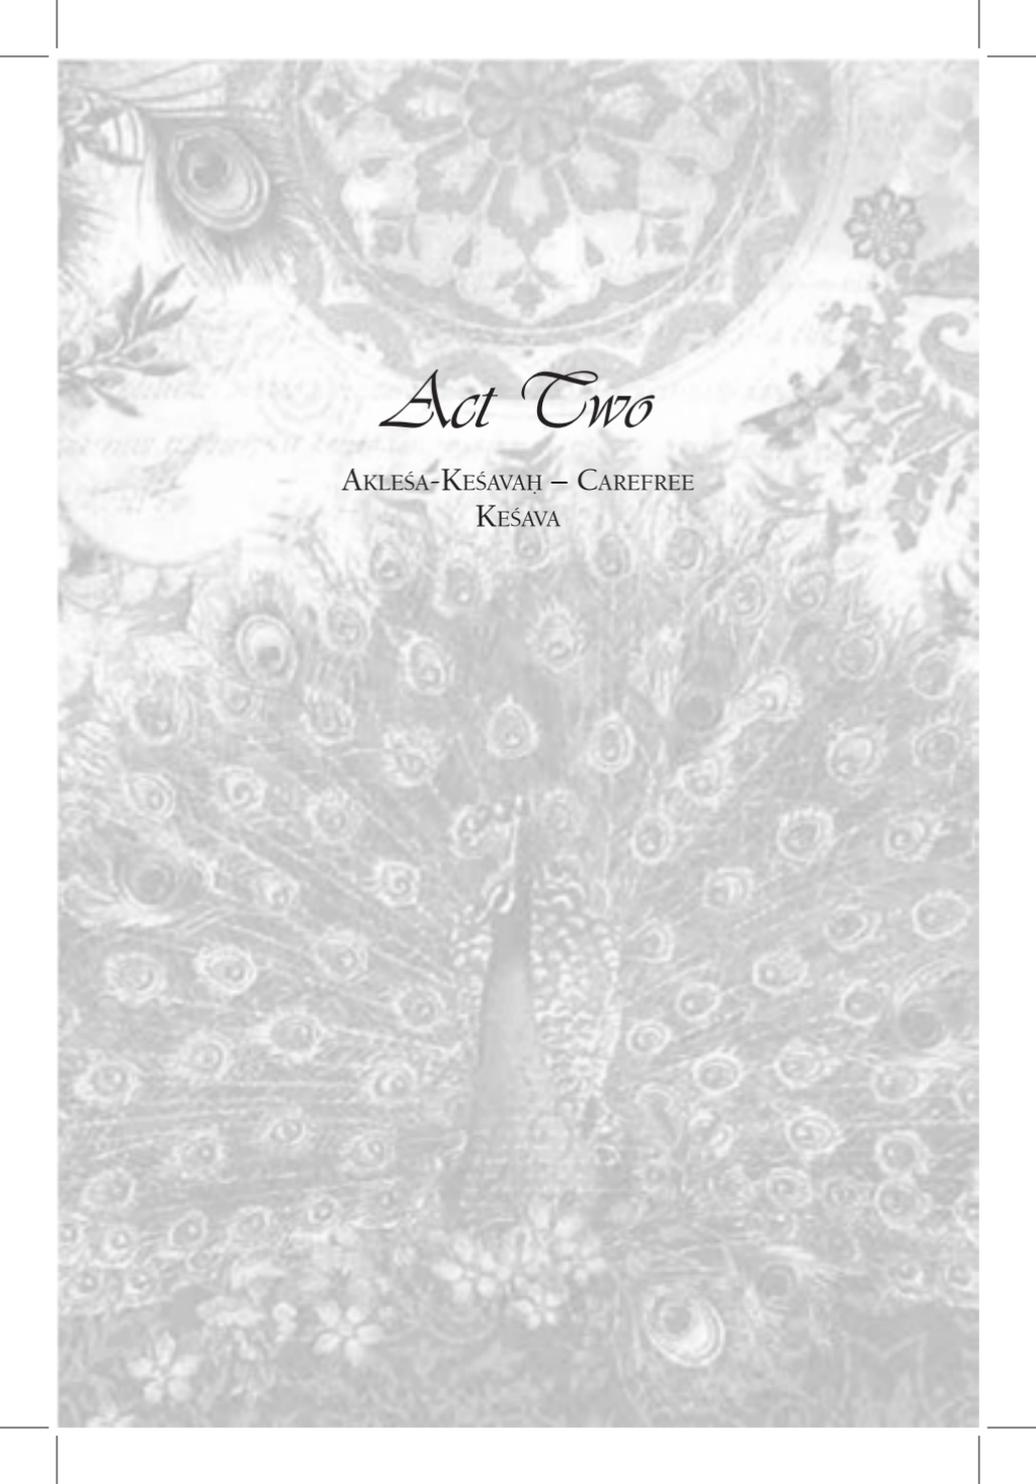

She brazenly clasped His chest in a tight embrace and kissed Him directly in front of all the other gopīs.

When Rādhā freely exhibited Her ecstatic emotions before all the sublimely beautiful cowherd maidens, Śrī Kṛṣṇa's face expressed the utmost delight. He was completely smitten by the amorous expertise of Śrī Rādhikā, who was blinded with love, being maddened with the joy of the festival. May that bewitched Śrī Kṛṣṇa bestow auspiciousness upon all.

Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī has quoted this verse in Ujjvala-nilamaṇi (13.20.2) to illustrate cāpalya sañcari-bhāva, restlessness or light-headedness caused by overwhelming amorous attachment (rāga).

In this verse the nāyikā is pragalbhā, impudent and bold, and the nāyaka is mugdha, enchanted. The chanda is śārdūla-vikriḍita. The alañkāras include āśīḥ, aprustuta, praśamsā and vyājokti.

THUS ENDS THE BĀLABODHINĪ-PRAKĀŚA COMMENTARY ON ACT ONE OF ŚRĪ GĪTA-GOVINDA, ENTITLED SĀMODA-DĀMODARA, “DĀMODARA DELIGHTED.”

Act Two

AKLEŚA-KEŚAVAḤ – CAREFREE
KEŚAVA

Act Two

AKLEŚA-KEŚAVAḤ – CAREFREE KEŚAVA

VERSE 1

viharati vane rādhā sādhāraṇa-praṇaye harau vigalita-nijotkarṣād īrṣyā-vaśena gatānyataḥ kvacid api latā-kuñje guñjan-madhu-vrata-maṇḍalimukhara-śikhare linā dīnāpy uvāca rahaḥ sachem

Overlooking Śrī Rādhā's eminence, Hari dallied in the forest with all the cowherd maidens. Feeling neglected and driven away by jealousy, She retreated to a secluded vine-covered bower that resounded with the drone of bumblebees. Despondent, She poured out Her secret agony to Her friend.

Commentary

Act Two is entitled Akleśa-keśava. The purport is that Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the ultimate connoisseur of rasa, is eternally free from distress. He never has to undergo even the slightest pain. Bhagavān has two uncommon characteristics:

(1) Akhila-heya-pratyanikatva – Beyond all material imperfections, He has no connection with any type of painful misfortune or calamity. He is pratyanika, the formidable foe of all defects. The author of Yoga-sūtra has also stated: kleśa-karmavipākāśayair aparāmṛṣṭaḥ puruṣa-viśeṣa īśvaraḥ. “A person who has no relationship with defects such as ignorance, false egotism, attachment, aversion, fear of death, or reactive work and its consequences is called īśvara.” (Yoga-sūtra 1.24)

(2) Akhila kalyāna guṇākaratva – Śrī Kṛṣṇa is the benefactor of the entire creation and a mine of supernatural virtues.

Śrī Rādhā is prone to temperamental behavior. Her sakhī informed Her of Keśava's whereabouts, and She entered His great festival of love. When She saw Him expressing equal affection to all the cowherd maidens, She proudly thought, "I am the love of His life and His constant companion, yet today He is not showing partiality to Me." Running off in a huff, She entered a distant vine-covered grove whose flowers had attracted a swarm of humming bees. Even there, still seething with jealousy, She could find no peace. To relieve Her pain, She confided Her most private feelings to Her companion, Her voice covered by the drone of the bees. The word api strongly emphasizes that Rādhā was in such a condition that She was barely able to speak. Furthermore, She never discloses secrets. Thus the word api, meaning 'nevertheless,' conveys the sense of utter amazement that she would do so.

Śrī Rūpa Gosvāmī has quoted this verse in Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu (Western Quadrant, Fifth Wave, verse 29) to illustrate māna, jealous anger.

The meter of this verse is hariṇī which is defined as rasayuga hayair n-sau m-rau s-lau go yadā hariṇī tadā. "Hariṇī is that meter is as follows: short, short, short, short, short, long, long, long, long, long, short, long, short, short, long, short, long, and there are caesuras on the sixth, tenth and seventeenth syllables." The heroine is prauḍhā nāyikā, the mature heroine who is proud and impetuous. The literary ornaments include anuprāsa alaṅkāra. Rasavad alaṅkāra is present due to profuse rati-bhāva. The present verse is a preface to the Fifth Song, which begins with the next verse.

 Song Five

[The musical mode is gurjarī rāga and the rhythm is yati tāla.]

VERSE 2

sañcarad-adhara-sudhā-madhura-dhvani-mukharita-mohana-vaṁśam valita-dṛg-añcala-cañcala-maulikapola-vilola-vataṁsam (1)

*rāse harim iha vihita-vilāsam smarati mano mama kṛta-parihāsam
(refrain)*

“Sakhī! How astonishing it is that in this rāsa festival, Madhuripu has abandoned Me and He is roguishly amusing Himself with other alluring girls. Despite this, again and again I remember Him in My heart. He fills the flute resting in His lotus hands with the nectar of His lips, nectar which streams forth as a sweet suggestive melody. When He glances flirtatiously from the corners of His eyes, His jeweled headdress quivers as His earrings swing against His cheeks.

“Over and over I remember Hari’s attractive dark complexion, His laughter and His amusing behavior.” (refrain)

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā’s sakhī said, “Dear Rādhikā, Hari has neglected You, so why do You still love Him so much that You are losing Your composure?”

Hearing the reproaches of Her sakhī, Śrī Rādhā replied in a mood of extreme self-abasement. “Sakhī, what you say is true. Hari has renounced Me and with gay abandon is now passionately enjoying Himself with some other comely maidens. I know it is futile for Me to show My love for Him, but what am I to do? Memories of His tender, lighthearted dalliances with Me are alive in My heart. O sakhī! This is the very grove where We previously relished the joy of intense love. I am so attached to Him that I cannot forsake Him. My mind continues to dwell on His merits. My heart cannot even imagine the slightest fault in Him, and I am always satisfied with Him.

“When Śyāmasundara laughs and jokes with the beautiful gopīs of Vraja on the night of the rāsa-līlā, He fills the flute in His lotus hands with an enchanting sound produced from the sweet nectar of His lips.” Thus Rādhikā begins Her song of separation – sañcarad-adhara-sudhā-madhura-dhvani-mukharita. The etymology of this phrase is sañcarantyā adhara-sudhayā madhuro dhvani yatra tad yathā syād tathā mukharitā mohinī vamsī yena tam. “He plays His flute, bringing forth a mellifluous sound from the nectar of His lips. The enchanting influence of that legendary sound makes My mind unsteady, robbing Me of My composure. The very moment I remember the beauty of His limbs, the restless ornament on His head, His swinging earrings, and especially the way He embraces and kisses the youthful gopīs, I lose my sense of propriety. O sakhī, what am I to do?”

VERSE 3

candraka-cāru-mayūra-śikhaṇḍaka-maṇḍala-valayita-keśam pracura-purandara-dhanur-anurañjita-medura-mudira-suveśam
rāse harim iha vihita-vilāsam (2)

“His hair is adorned with a superbly charming array of peacock feathers fashioned in a striking half-moon design. His luster resembles a mass of refreshing rainclouds colorfully shot through by an unending succession of brilliant rainbows. These especially vivid images of Hari constantly possess Me.”

Commentary

The circular pattern at the end of a peacock feather is called candraka, and like the moon, candramā, it also bestows joy. “Hari’s hair is encircled in the sweetest way with peacock feathers and His dark hue gives the impression of a fresh cloud decorated with many rainbows. The vision of His lovely, radiant figure constantly appears within My mind.”

VERSE 4

*gopa-kadamba-nitambavatī-mukha-cumbana-lambhita-lobham bandhujīva-madhurādhara-pallavam ullasita-smīta-śobham
rāse harim iha vihita-vilāsam... (3)*

“In the festival of Anāṅga He leans forward desiring to kiss the lotus faces of the cowherd girls. His tender lips are of an enchanting soft reddish color like the bud of a bandhuka flower, and the unprecedented luster of His mild smile spreads across His handsome face. The vision of this very Hari constantly appears within My mind.”

Commentary

“My mind is being invaded by memories of Hari greedy to kiss the faces of the newly-married gopīs. Absorbed in secret love play in the kuñjas, He becomes more and more excited to repeatedly kiss them. The remembrance of His red lips, bright as a scarlet bandhuka flower, spontaneously awakens within My mind. Sakhī, when He smiles, He becomes even more handsome.”

VERSE 5

*vipula-pulaka-bhuja-pallava-valayita-ballava-yuvati-sahasram kara-caraṇorasi maṇi-gaṇa-bhūṣaṇa-kiraṇa-vibhinna-tamisram
rāse harim iha vihita-vilāsam... (4)*

“The hairs on Hari’s entire body rise up in joy when, with His arms as delicate as new blossoms, He tightly embraces thousands upon thousands of youthful gopīs. The rays of light emitted by the jeweled ornaments on His hands, feet and chest illuminate all directions. I cannot help thinking about Him.”

Commentary

“I am remembering Śyāmasundara’s arms, soft as newly sprouted leaves and horripilating in intense rapture. He wraps His arms around thousands of gopīs and closely embraces them. All darkness is dispelled by the rays of beauty emanating from the ornaments on His hands, feet and chest.”

VERSE 6

jalada-pāṭala-valad-indu-vinindaka-candana-tilaka-lalāṭam pīna-payodhara-parisara-mardana-nirdaya-hṛdaya-kavāṭam
rāse harim iha vihita-vilāsam... (5)

“The captivating sandal paste tilaka embellishing His forehead defeats the loveliness of a fickle moon amidst a thick bank of fresh rainclouds. With His broad chest firm as a door, that cruel-hearted fellow is ever fond of inflicting pain upon the full breasts of the young brides. These very images of Hari constantly occupy My mind.”

Commentary

“The beauty of the restless moon amidst water-laden clouds is a spectacle to behold. The dark hue of Hari’s broad forehead resembles a fresh raincloud, upon which His white sandal paste tilaka puts to shame even the pleasing effect of brilliant moonbeams. I vividly remember how at the time of their amorous union Śyāmasundara, with His broad chest, so mercilessly crushes the tender breasts of the young girls.”

VERSE 7

maṇimaya-makara-manohara-kunḍala-maṇḍita-gaṇḍam udāram pīta-vasanam anugata-muni-manuja-surāsura-vara-parivāram
rāse harim iha vihita-vilāsam... (6)

“The beauty of His cheeks is enhanced by His enchanting, jewel-studded makara earrings. Pitāmbara-dhārī Madhuripu, attired in yellow, attracts a retinue of gods, demons, sages and humans. Memories of that Hari forcefully come to Me.”

Commentary

“Madhuripu’s ears are adorned with dangling makara earrings (shaped like Cupid’s aquatic emblem) that enhance the beauty of His cheeks. He is a dakṣiṇa nāyaka, the compliant lover who generously fulfills the deepest desires of His desire-filled sweethearts. Dressed in yellow, He diffuses His sweetness and saturates with prema-rasa the best of His followers – including Nārada among the sages, Bhīṣma among the humans, Prahāda among the demons, and Indra among the demigods. I cannot forget him.”

VERSE 8

*viśada-kadamba-tale militam kali-kaluṣa-bhayaṁ śamayantam mām api kim api taraṅgad-anāṅga-dyśā manasā ramayantam
rāse harim iha vihita-vilāsam... (7)*

“Arriving beneath an expansive kadamba tree in full bloom, He would wait for Me and glance around in anticipation. When We would meet, He would fully dispel all My fears of separation by reassuring Me with clever and flattering words. With ravishing glances emitting waves of longing, He would revel in loving pastimes with Me which are still alive in My heart of hearts. I become more and more restless remembering that Hari.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā says, “O sakhī, He would eagerly wait for Me in the appointed meeting place beneath a vast kadamba tree. Whenever we had a lovers’ quarrel, fearing Our separation He would appease Me with ingenious flattering words. With His rasa-laden glances and impassioned heart He ever delighted Me.”

Mām api – “He still makes Me happy.” The implication is, “My beloved Śyāma’s endeavors to appease Me are so pleasing that just remembering Him do this, I feel unbounded rapture.”

VERSE 9

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam ati-sundara-mohana-madhuripu-rūpam hari-caraṇa-smaraṇam prati samprati punyavatām anurūpam
rāse harim iha vihita-vilāsam... (8)*

Describing Madhuripu’s spell-binding beauty, Śrī Jayadeva has composed this lyrical song – the very embodiment of remembrance of Śrī Hari’s lotus feet – for those fortunate persons devoted to serving Bhagavān.

Commentary

Concluding the Fifth Song, Śrī Jayadeva states that he has written this poem to awaken remembrance of Hari’s lotus feet in the hearts of the fortunate devotees imbued with prema-bhakti. To taste it, one must certainly embrace the primary rasa (śṛṅgāra-rasa) under the guidance of those fortunate devotees who have relished it. Here caraṇa refers to pastimes such as rāsa-līlā, the remembrance of which is the method for bringing Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s lotus feet to mind. Rāsa-līlā is an astonishingly beautiful pastime, which always remains locked in Śrī Rādhā’s memory.

This Fifth Song is entitled Madhuripu-ratna-kaṅṭhikā, “The Jeweled Necklace of Madhuripu’s Beauty and Other Virtues.”

VERSE 10

gaṇayati guṇa-grāmaṁ bhrāmaṁ bhramād api nehate vahati ca parītoṣaṁ doṣaṁ vimuñcati dūrataḥ yuvatiṣu valat-tṛṣṇe kṛṣṇe vihāriṇi mām vinā punar api mano vāmaṁ kāmaṁ karoti karomi kim

Madhuripu has abandoned Me to enjoy ever fresh intimacies with other enticing damsels. I know it futile to express My passion for Him; still, what am I to do? My love is so overpowering that it will not abate under any circumstances. My heart values His wonderful qualities. I cannot be angry with Him, even when He errs. Overlooking His faults I feel great bliss. Sakhī, I ardently long for Him at every moment and cannot forget Him. What am I to do?"

Commentary

Rādhā's intimate companion reproaches Her, "Kṛṣṇa has neglected You, so why let love for Him disturb You?" Setting the scene for the Sixth Song, Rādhā begins an account of Her private affairs by saying, "Sakhī, my heart is submissive to Madhuripu, in spite of His philandering. Although I don't want to, I cannot help but remember His manifold virtues. I become maddened with ecstasy and long to be with Him."

Bhrāmaṃ bhramād api nehate – Here the word bhrāma means 'anger.' "My heart refuses to be angry with Him, in any circumstances. I have no desire to see faults in Him, such as His attachment for other girls or His indifference to Me. I remain completely satisfied with Him. What am I to do?"

Śrī Rādhā has been portrayed as utkaṅṭhitā nāyikā in this verse. The symptoms of utkaṅṭhitā nāyikā are:

utkā bhavati sā yasyā vāsake nāgataḥ priyaḥ tasyānāgamane hetuṃ cintayantyākulā yathā

"A heroine who anxiously frets over why her beloved has failed to come to her bed-chamber is called utkaṅṭhitā."

This verse, introducing the Sixth Song, includes hariṇī chanda, kriyaucitya, yamaka śabda alaṅkāra and two artha alaṅkāras, namely saṁśaya and dīpaka.

Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī has quoted this verse in Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi (Vyabhicārī-prakarāṇa 13.9) to illustrate nirveda, disgust.

❀ Song Six ❀

[The musical mode is mālava rāga. The rhythm moves quickly in ekatālī tāla.]

VERSE 11

nibhṛta-nikuñja-grhaṁ gatayā niśi rahasi nilīya vasantam cakita-vilokita-sakala-diśā rati-rabhasa-bhareṇa hasantam (1)

sakhī he keśi-mathanam udāram ramaya mayā saha madana-manoratha-bhāvitayā sa-vikāram (refrain)

“One night He came to the secluded forest bower where We had agreed to meet. He mischievously concealed Himself in the dense foliage of the nikuñja just to observe My eagerness for Him and My agony in His absence. Overcome by anxiety, My eyes weary and full of apprehension, I looked around wondering, ‘Oh, when will He come?’ Seeing Me so tormented, He then delighted Me with the nectar of His laughter, full of śṛṅgāra-rasa.

“O sakhī, Keśi-mathana is most munificent, and My heart is yearning for passionate love play, to the point of desperation. My dear sakhī, arrange at once for the killer of Keśi to satisfy His fancies with Me.” (refrain)

Commentary

Burning in a fever of amorous desire, Śrī Rādhā reveals to Her sakhī Her desire to meet with Śrī Kṛṣṇa. She begins by disclosing details of a previous romantic encounter when She had pleased Her prāṇa-nātha. This pastime is full of the deepest mysteries.

Sakhī! ramaya keśi-mathanam udāram mayā saha: “Sakhī, arrange a delightful tryst for Me with Keśi-nisūdana.” Here Śrī Rādhā expresses desire for Her own happiness – that the munificent Keśi-mathana should relieve the torments of Her unfulfilled amorous yearnings – but this is opposed to the definition of śuddha-bhakti. Why, then, does She have such a desire? One might reply that the gopīs have renounced everything in order to love Śrī Kṛṣṇa so there is not even the slightest trace of selfishness in them. Prema does not manifest fully until deep anurāga arises in both parties. Thus, the preyasī (the ladylove) must convey her own, intrinsic passion in order to arouse the craving for love in the heart of her sweetheart. This is the way of prema.

If prema is one-sided, the defect of rasābhāsa, or faulty mellow, arises. It is stated:

*anurāgo ’nuraktāyām rasāvaha iti sthitiḥ abhāve tv anurāgasya
rasābhāsam jagur budhāḥ*

“It is the opinion of learned authorities that rasa is nourished by a woman’s eagerness for love, whereas rasābhāsa occurs in the absence of such anurāga.” Therefore, Rādhā’s keen desire for Kṛṣṇa acts to increase rasa.

“Sakhī! At our very first intimate encounter Śyāmasundara experienced the delights of amour. Now that We are apart, that joyful meeting keeps arising in My memory, leaving Me distraught. As amorous sentiments continue to stir up My heart, separation from the munificent Keśi-mathana, who satisfies desire, is becoming intolerable. O My dear sakhī, at once arrange for My union with Him.”

In this way the poet demonstrates Śrī Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa’s anurāga, Their compelling attraction, for each other. If an author introduces the subject of union before depicting mutual anurāga, the defect of rasābhāsa (the absence of one of the essential ingredients) occurs.

The word sa-vikāram indicates that Śrī Rādhā is experiencing the arousal of kāma. When a woman's lust is aroused, she devises an excuse to show her beloved some parts of her body, like her navel and breasts. The Rasika-sarvasva commentary states:

nābhī mūla kucodara prakāṣṭavyājena yad yoṣitām sākāṁ kṣaṁ muhur-īkṣaṇaṁ skhalitatā nīvīnibandhasya ca keśa-bhraṁsana saṁyamau cakamitur mitrādi sandarśanaḥ saubhāgyādi guṇa praśasti kathanaiḥ tat sānurāgeṅgikatam

“When a woman is aroused, her gestures are full of anurāga. For example, on some pretext, she reveals her navel, breasts and abdomen; she repeatedly glances toward her beloved with desire in her eyes; her undergarments loosen; her hair comes undone and she tries to tie it up; she observes all the activities of her beloved's friends and along with them she praises his good fortune and virtues.”

“O sakhī! I am guilty of all these love-laden gestures. Arrange My meeting with Keśi-mathana at once.”

The phrase madana-manoratha-bhāvitayā means, “My heart runneth over with amorous desires.”

ceṣṭā bhavati pūnnāryo raty-utthānāti-saktayoḥ sambhogo vipralambhaś ca sa śṛṅgāro dvidhā mataḥ

“When a man and a woman who are intensely attached to each other perform romantic activities to stimulate each other's desires for union, the amorous mood is of two types, namely, meeting (sambhoga) and separation (vipralambha).”

“Just as I, the separated lover, long for My hero, He also yearns for Me. O sakhī, bring Me to Him at once!” In this instance, śṛṅgāra-rasa is complete. Śrī Rādhā says, “When I arrived at the secluded kunja in the dead of night, not seeing Śyāmasundara, I anxiously looked about. From His hiding place in a dense grove He observed My eagerness for Him. As I searched for Him with eyes full of apprehension, He suddenly appeared in front of Me. Laughing in delight and very eager for romantic dalliance, He illuminated all directions with joy. O sakhī, take Me to Him at once.”

VERSE 12

prathama-samāgama-lajjitayā patu-cātu-śatair anukūlam mṛdu-madhura-smita-bhāṣitayā śithilī-kṛta-jaghana-dukūlam sakhī he keśī-mathanam udāram... (2)

“Seeing Me so naive and gullible due to the natural embarrassment of one’s first amorous encounter, He employed a succession of courteous words and humble entreaties to dispel My shyness. Enchanted by His flattering words, I conversed with Him while smiling softly and sweetly. Just then that cunning Hari suddenly removed the cloth from My hips. O sakhī, arrange for Me to meet with Him this very moment.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā was telling Her friend, “This was not My first intimate meeting with Śyāmasundara. Nevertheless, I behaved just like a heroine who is naturally very shy the first time she meets with her beloved. He plied Me with flattering words to win Me over. His romantic chatter delighted Me and with a soft smile I tenderly conversed with Him. As soon as He saw that I was well disposed towards Him, He suddenly pulled open My lower garment. I want to engage in amour with My prāṇa-nātha. O sakhī, arrange for Me to meet Him at once.”

The phrase prathama-samāgama (first union) infers that amorous love [at the stage of anurāga] is always experienced in newer and newer ways.

VERSE 13

*kisalaya-śayana-niveśitayā ciram urasi mamaiva śayānam kṛta-parirambhaṇa-cumbanayā parirabhya kṛtādhara-pānam
sakhi he keśi-mathanam udāram... (3)*

“With great pleasure He had Me lie down on a soft bed of tender blossoms and feeling highly elated He reclined upon My heart. I tightly embraced and kissed Him; and He, being under the powerful influence of anaṅga-rasa, returned the embrace and repeatedly drank the nectar of My lips. O sakhī! He is dearer to Me than My very life. Arrange for Me to meet with Him at once.”

Commentary

“Sakhī! In that secret meeting place My hero had Me lie down upon a bed of soft flowers. For a long time He enjoyed lovemaking upon My bosom. I embraced and kissed Him and He reciprocated by embracing Me and drinking the nectar of My lips. O sakhī! Arrange for Me to meet with My heart’s beloved at once.”

Kṛta-parirambhaṇa – The author of Rasa-mañjarī has explained that this type of embrace is called kṣīra-nīra āliṅgana (embracing like the mixing of milk and water) on the basis of evidence from the text of Pañcasāyaka. The author of Rasika-priyā considers this type of embrace to be tila-taṇḍula āliṅgana (an embrace as agreeable as rice mixed with sesame) and gives evidence from his Koka-śāstra.

VERSE 14

*alasa-nimīlita-locanayā pulakāvali-lalita-kapolam śrama-jala-sakala-kalevarayā vara-madana-madād ati-lolam
sakhi he keśi-mathanam udāram... (4)*

“A sudden, unexpected surge of rapture during the pleasurable experience of passionate love with Him caused My languid eyes to close. The joy of this love play made His cheeks radiate with an extraordinary charm and beauty. Although He was already intoxicated by the flavors of amorous union, seeing My attractive body exhausted and dripping with perspiration, He became even more restless to taste anaṅga-rasa. O sakhī, quickly arrange for Me to meet with Keśī-mathana.”

Commentary

“Sakhī, I was overcome with fatigue and My eyes closed from the exhaustion resulting from amorous pleasure. Agitated by desire, My whole body was wet with drops of perspiration. When Keśava saw My condition, the intense passion in His heart caused His jubilation to escalate. This manifested an enthralling luster on His cheeks. He was drowning in the immensely powerful bliss of conjugal love. Beholding My body delicate as a vine, He suddenly became restless. O sakhī, arrange for Me to meet with Him.”

Śrī Rādhā's body was drenched with perspiration due to the ecstasy of lovemaking, thus revealing that Her pleasure on that occasion reached complete fulfillment.

VERSE 15

kokila-kalarava-kūjitayā jita-manasija-tantra-vicāram ślatha-kusumākula-kuntalayā nakha-likhita-ghana-stana-bhāram
sakhi he keśī-mathanam udāram... (5)

“He is thoroughly conversant with the confidential theory of rati-sāstra and He also practices its rites. At the time of amorous union with Him, I softly cooed like a cuckoo. My braid came undone and the flowers adorning it fell out. I do not know what He was writing on My full, round breasts with the scratching of His fingernails. O sakhī! Arrange for Me to meet with the enemy of Keśī at once.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā is describing to Her sakhī Her experience of enjoying with Śrī Kṛṣṇa the exotic practices prescribed in the kāma-śāstras. At the time of making love, She murmured like a cuckoo. The author of Rasika-sarvasva has stated: kalarava śabdaḥ pārāvata paryāyaḥ – “At the time of amorous union, when being kissed and embraced by her lover, the heroine makes a sudden gasping sound, similar to the cooing of the cuckoo or the pigeon, thus expressing the thrill of pleasurable sensations.”

“Holding Me by the hair and kissing Me, Mādhava drank the nectar of My lips. At the height of Our love games, He drew marks on My firm, full breasts with His nails. Sakhī, arrange for Me to meet with Him at once.”

VERSE 16

carāṇa-raṇita-maṇi-nūpurayā paripūrita-surata-vitānam mukhara-viśṛṅkhala-mekhalayā sa-kaca-graha-cumbana-dānam
sakhī he keśi-mathanam udāram... (6)

“As We reached the height of passion, My jewel-studded anklebells rang out and My waistbells fell off noisily. He caught Me by the hair and repeatedly kissed My face. O sakhī, quickly arrange for My union with that Keśi-mathana.”

Commentary

“Sakhī! When Hari performed such endearing love play, My jeweled anklebells jingled. At first the sash of bells around My waist tinkled, but later it broke, noisily dropped away and fell silent. He caught My hair and gifted Me with many kisses. O sakhī, arrange for My union with Him at once.”

VERSE 17

*rati-sukha-samaya-rasālasayā dara-mukulita-nayana-sarojam niḥsaha-nipatita-tanu-latayā madhusūdanam uḍita-manojam¹
sakhi he keśi-mathanam udāram... (7)*

“While enjoying rati-vilāsa with Him, I gradually became exhausted due to the intense experience of conjugal bliss. All My limbs became languid and the vine of My body was overcome by the vigorous exertion of lovemaking. I finally fell as if lifeless. Soaked in the flavors of Cupid, Madhusūdana’s lotus eyes opened slightly as extravagant amorous desires played rampantly within His mind. O sakhī, immediately arrange My union with My dearest Keśi-mathana at once.”

Commentary

After being immersed in the experience of amorous pleasure, Śrī Rādhā became weary and Śrī Kṛṣṇa half-closed His lotus eyes. A bumblebee generally sits on all the flowers one by one and drinks their nectar, but when he sees the excellence of the lotus, he remains there transfixed. Drinking its nectar he becomes madly intoxicated and then finds repose there. In the same way, knowing Her excellence Śrī Madhusūdana has abandoned all flower-like gopīs and become deeply attached to the lotus-like Rādhā, taking Her for His resting place. Only with Her can He experience the ecstasy of all varieties of amorous pleasure. Moreover, when Śrī Rādhā experiences Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s romantic dara-mukulite means ‘slightly closed’; niḥsahā means asamarthaḥ, ‘incapable’; uḍita-manojam means ‘fully roused lust’; nipatita-tanu-latā meaning ‘fallen vine-like body’, which indicates viparīta-rati, the lovers’ role reversal in which the heroine dominates.

1. alasā means mantharā. It is stated – rati-sukha-samaye dvayor eka-kālam retah kaṇa kṣarāna samaye yo rasaḥ tad ekāgrī bhāvas tena alasā mantharā.

asamarthā – cyuti kālottarāvasthā ity arthaḥ

Bharata Muni has stated:

aṅge svedaḥ ślathatvaṁ ca keśa-vastrādi samvṛttiḥ

jāte cyuti sukhe nāryā virāmeccā ca gamyate

“When the rapture from rati-vilāsa is over and the woman, whose body is languid and damp with perspiration, attempts to cover herself with her hair and clothes, she is known to need rest.”

expertise, She becomes His anurāgiṇī, completely possessed by desire for Him.

Today, within Her mind Śrī Rādhā enjoyed all over again Her previous amorous encounters with Śrī Hari. Becoming overwhelmed with longing She told Her friend, “O sakhī! Take Me to meet with Keśī-mathana at once.”

VERSE 18

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam atiśaya-madhuripu-nidhuvana-śīlam sukham utkaṅṭhita-gopa-vadhū-kathitam vitanotu sa-līlam
sakhi he keśī-mathanam udāram... (8)*

This love poem written by Śrī Jayadeva portrays Madhuripu’s unbounded passion as described by the anxious and impatient heroine pining in separation from Him. May it increase the auspiciousness of all the devotees who recite and hear it.

Commentary

In conclusion Śrī Jayadeva says, “Although I am the author of this composition, in actuality the song is spoken by utkaṅṭhitā nāyikā Śrī Rādhā Herself, who is confiding to Her intimate friend the details of Kṛṣṇa’s prowess in kāma-kṛidā, Their love play.

Remembering those meetings, Śrī Rādhā became excited; thus, from Her heart She revealed to Her sakhī Her desire to meet with Śyāmasundara again. Śrī Rādhā is nidhuvana-nāgarī, expert in erotic play. May this description of Her amorous amusements (surata-kṛidā) and Her all-consuming passion (anurāga) for Śrī Kṛṣṇa bestow auspiciousness upon all.

This Sixth Song of Śrī Gīta-govinda is entitled Akleśa-keśava-kunḥjara-tilaka, “Carefree Kṛṣṇa, the Supreme Elephant of all Lovers.” The entire song is permeated with vipralambha śṛṅgāra-rasa and is sung in the laya-chanda meter.

VERSE 19

hasta-srasta-vilāsa-vaṁśam anrju-bhrū-vallimad-ballavī vṛndotsāri-dṛganta-vikṣitam ati-svedārḍra-gaṇḍa-sthalam mām udvikṣya vilajjita-smīta-sudhā-mugdhānanam kānane govindam vraja-sundarī-gaṇa-vṛtam paśyāmi hr̥ṣyāmi ca

“O sakhī! While romancing with the cowherd girls, whose eyebrows were arched like attractive creepers, Govinda was relishing their charms with His eyes. Though He was surrounded by a throng of beautiful gopīs, as soon as He saw Me, He was struck with wonder and sent all of them away with a glance. His mind became possessed with amorous desires, causing His vaṁśī to fall from His delicate hands and His cheeks to become moist with perspiration. His face blossomed with the nectar of a bashful smile expressing His exuberance. When I picture this scene, I feel an indescribable bliss.”

Commentary

In separation the three types of realization – remembrance (smaraṇa), internal vision (sphūrti) and direct audience (avirbhāva) – awakened in Śrī Rādhā. First She experienced smaraṇa. When Her mood intensified to sudṛipta-mahābhāva, pastimes manifested automatically as a vision within Her heart. Now, in the present verses, Her realization is sākṣāt anubhava, a direct experience. She tells Her friend, “Sakhī, look! I feel overjoyed and am laughing to see Govinda here in the Vraja forest accompanied by the beautiful vraja-gopīs.”

Her sakhī asks, “O silly girl, blinded by love! How can You be in bliss when Keśava has left You in order to frolic with other gopīs?” Rādhā replies, “When He notices that I am here, He will feel so embarrassed and guilty that He will break out into a heavy sweat, making His cheeks drip with perspiration. When He sees My ecstatic symptoms (sāttvika-bhāva), He will also experience them. His flute will slip from His hands out of shame. Though the vraja-gopīs fascinate Him with their creeper-like eyebrows, with just a flick of the eyebrow He will send them all away. His face, evincing a mild smile, will become utterly captivating. When I behold My treasured sweetheart looking like this, I will drown in bliss. Sakhī! When, oh when will I meet My precious darling?”

This verse includes sārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda, dīpaka and lāṭānuprāsa alaṅkāras, and pāñcālī rīti. The mood of this verse is vipralambha-śṛṅgāra-rasa. The hero is dakṣiṇa nāyaka, the guileless hero who has many sweethearts but still remains submissive to his first ladylove.

VERSE 20

durāloka-stoka-stabaka-navakāśoka-latikā vikāsaḥ kāsāropavana-pavano 'pi vyathayati api bhrāmyad-bhṛṅgī-ranīta-ramaṇīyā na mukula prasūtīś cūtānām sakhi śikhariṇīyaṁ sukhayati

“Separation has now become absolutely intolerable. The radiant beauty of this freshly budding aśoka vine is like a spear piercing My eyes. Breezes blowing from the lakeside gardens are only inflaming Me. Even the freshly bursting mango blossoms swarming with sweetly humming bees are no comfort to Me now, My friend.”

Commentary

Describing springtime excitants (vibhāvas) of love in separation, Rādhā tells Her intimate friend, “I can no longer look at the aśoka trees – ordinarily they remove sorrow but now their new buds are fanning the fire of separation. The breeze moving through the lakeside kuñjas, bringing forth tiny clusters of new blossoms on aśoka creepers, also feeds My grief.”

The word durāloka is derived thus: duḥkhena āloka avalokanam yasyā 'sau. “When I met with Kṛṣṇa before, the buds blossoming on the mango trees and the humming bees hovering around them made Me happy, but now they only make Me morose.”

The phrase bhrāmyad-bhṛṅgī means ‘wandering female bees.’ This alludes to all the gopīs. Śrī Rādhā is speaking and revealing that “we yearn only for Keśava, no one else. He is the only desirable male in our eyes.”

This verse features samuccaya and anuprāsa alaṅkāras, kriyaucitya and vipralambha-śṛṅgāra-rasa. The rīti is māgadhī and gauḍīyā. Appropriately the meter is śikhariṇī chanda.

VERSE 21

sākūta-smitam ākulākula-galad-dhammillam ullāsita-bhrū-vallikam alīka-darśita-bhujā-mūlārddha-dṛṣṭa-stanam gopīnām nibhṛtam nirīksya gamitākāṅkṣaś ciraṁ cintayan antar muḡdha-manoharam haratu vaḥ kleśam navaḥ keśavaḥ

He discretely gazed upon a host of cowherd maidens undergoing ecstatic transformations – irresistible provocative smiles, restless movements of the eyes, braids coming undone, raising of arms to expose their breasts on the pretext of adjusting hair loosened by lust. Yet, all of their seductive gestures lost their power to attract Him, who was now rapt in deep thoughts of Rādhā. May that ever fresh Keśava steal away all our sufferings.

Commentary

The great poet, Śrī Jayadeva, bestows a benediction upon all devotees here in the final verse of Act Two. “Śrī Kṛṣṇa is extremely discerning. He carefully deliberated upon the gopīs’ four gestures. Even a naive person could decipher their common motive and would be attracted.”

(1) Sākūta-smitam – Although the gopīs’ smiling is natural, it also conveys intentions. Their smiles were obviously amorous desire in disguise. An impassioned woman will automatically deploy seductive gestures when she sees a young man.

(2) Ākulākula-galad-dhammillam – Due to intense desire the gopīs underwent horripilation and other transformations, causing their braids to come loose.

(3) Bhrū-vallīkam alīka – On seeing Kṛṣṇa their eyes became restless with amorous desire.

(4) Bhujā-mūlā – Although there was no reason to expose their armpits or raise their hands, they would use excuses such as artificially yawning as opportunities to show Kṛṣṇa their uplifted breasts.

Deliberating on the gopīs' behavior within His heart, Śrī Kṛṣṇa decided that their efforts were all in vain because no one can ever be compared to Śrī Rādhā, who increases His astonishment by the moment. May Śrī Keśava, who is praised in this way by His loving servants, dispel the sorrows of all His devotees.

This verse includes samuccaya, āśīḥ and parikara alaṅkāras. The chanda is śārdūla-vikrīḍita.

THUS ENDS THE BĀLABODHINĪ-PRAKĀŚA COMMENTARY ON ACT TWO OF ŚRĪ GĪTA-GOVINDA, ENTITLED AKLEŚA-KEŚAVA, “CAREFREE KEŚAVA.”

Act Three

MUGDHA-MADHUSŪDANAḤ – MADHUSŪDANA MESMERIZED

Act Three

MUGDHA-MADHUSŪDANAḤ – MADHUSŪDANA MESMERIZED

VERSE 1

kāmsārīr api saṁsāra-vāsanābandha-śṛṅkhalām rādhām ādhāya hṛdaye tatyāja vraja-sundarīḥ

Consumed in thoughts of Rādhā and His heart bound by the chain of Her love, Kāmsāri, with the desire to enjoy the quintessence of madhura-rasa (rāsa-līlā), abandoned all the other beautiful Vraja maidens.

Commentary

Acts One and Two describe the excellence of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava, concluding with a vivid portrayal of Rādhā's loving thirst and eagerness for Kṛṣṇa. Now, in the beginning of Act Three, the author depicts Kṛṣṇa's intense passion for Rādhā.

Memories of the autumnal dance (śarādīya-rāsa-līlā) suddenly awakened in Kṛṣṇa's heart. He remembered Śrī Rādhā's intense love for Him and realized it to be the ultimate expression of the most excellent prema. He had left the other gopīs in the dance pavilion to meet with Śrī Rādhā alone, and had nourished Her affection by ornamenting Her and decorating Her hair. Now, in Her absence His heart began to burn, and He abandoned the other fetching vraja-gopīs, considering their love insignificant.

Kāmsāri – Śrī Kṛṣṇa is the enemy of the demoniac King Kāmsā.
Alternatively – kām sukham sārayatī vistārayatī kāmārīḥ –

“Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa who expands one’s happiness is called Kāmsāri.”

Sāmsāra-vāsanā-bandha-śṛṅkhalām – When the word sāmsāra is interpreted as a compound of samyak (complete) and sāra (essence), then it refers to the delightful and endearing madhura-rasa. Therefore, the tendency to remain always preoccupied with madhura-rasa is called sāmsāra-vāsanā. Because Rādhā keeps Him under Her control, She is the binding link (śṛṅkhalā) in the rāsa dance, which is the complete essence of all Kṛṣṇa’s desires. When one ascertains what the most essential substance of all is, he naturally abandons everything else and with zeal he pursues his desired object, making it his sole focus. Similarly, Śrī Kṛṣṇa, leaving all the other gopīs, accepted Rādhā as His exclusive refuge.

vraja-sundarīḥ – The plural declension indicates that Kṛṣṇa has forsaken a host of enthralling damsels in the anguish of separation from Rādhā. This reveals His overflowing anurāga, His unbounded, compelling love, for Her.

Śrī Rūpa Gosvāmī has quoted this verse in Bhakti-rasāmṛta-sindhu, Western Quadrant, Fifth Wave, verse 10, as an example of ālabana-vibhāva in madhura-bhakti-rasa.

The meter of this verse is pathyā.

VERSE 2

itas tatas tām anusṛtya rādhikām anaṅga-bāṇa-vraṇa-khinna-mānasaḥ kṛtānutāpaḥ sa kalinda-nandinītaṭānta-kuñje viśasāda mādhabaḥ

As Mādhava vainly searched everywhere for Rādhikā, His weary mind was pierced by Cupid’s shafts. Regretting having neglected Her, He entered a secluded kuñja by the Yamunā and lamented.

Commentary

The poet describes Kṛṣṇa's emotions: "Alas! Why did I leave Her? How will I meet Her again?" He feels the same turmoil that Rādhā was experiencing in separation from Him. Although all the beautiful vraja-gopīs were receptive, He was indifferent to their service. The fact that His most favorite beloved was actually somewhere nearby, made Him all the more despondent. He thought, "Today I could not properly respect Rādhā, so She must have gone to a kuñja by the Yamunā." He looked in one kuñja after another. After searching extensively, He was seized by hopelessness and about to give up. "If only I had honored Rādhā, She would not have left." In this way Kṛṣṇa sank to the depths of despair, stricken by arrows of love and ablaze in guilt.

Mādhavaḥ – mā (Lakṣmī) + dhava (pati) = Lakṣmīpati, the husband of the Goddess of Fortune. This name of Kṛṣṇa has a specific significance in this context: mā (Rādhā) + dhava (deardest) = Mādhava, who means more to Rādhā than Her own life, and whose distress in separation from Her is the emblem of Her immense fortune.

The chanda of this verse is vaṁśasthavila, which is defined vadanti vaṁśasthavilaṁ ja-tau ja-rau. "The length of syllables in the vaṁśasthavila meter is as follows: short, long, short, long, long, short, short, long, short, short, long, short."

❀ Song Seven ❀

The musical mode is gurjarī rāga and the rhythm is yati tāla.

VERSE 3

mām iyam calitā vilokya vṛtam vadhū-nicayena sāparādhatayā mayāpi na vāritāti-bhayena (1)

hari hari hatādaratayā gatā sā kupiteva (refrain)

“Seeing Me surrounded by a host of shapely vraja-gopīs, Rādhā became indignant and went off. Fearing that I had offended Her, I could not muster the courage to stop Her from leaving.

“Alas! Feeling slighted She left in a huff.” (refrain)

Commentary

Śrī Kṛṣṇa expresses His disappointment by calling out hari! hari! “Alas, what a tragedy! Rādhā felt slighted and left when She saw Me surrounded by a throng of beautiful gopīs, and now She has disappeared. My beloved Rādhā is the empress of My heart. She abounds with all desirable virtues, and Her intrinsic love for Me has never been surpassed; still I rudely neglected Her. Somehow I panicked and was unable to utter even a few polite words to pacify Her. In anger She stormed off, and now I am truly repentant for what has happened.”

VERSE 4

*kiṁ kariṣyati kiṁ vadiṣyati sā ciraṁ virahena kiṁ dhanena janena kiṁ mama jīvitena gṛheṇa (2)
hari hari hatādaratayā...*

“What will She do? What will She say, after the long agony of burning separation? I do not know. Alas! Without Rādhā, My wealth, My kinsmen, My life, My home and My everything seem worthless.”

Commentary

Śrī Kṛṣṇa is describing His own condition of separation. “Whatever I am feeling in separation from Rādhā, She must also be feeling. How much anxiety and distress She must be going through! And My blunder is the cause of this pain. Because of Me She is suffering so much. When I meet Her again I do not know how She will react. How will She express Her anger, jealousy and hurt feelings? I wonder what She is telling Her intimate friend. She must be accusing Me, saying, “He is so cruel and heartless.” But I will say to Her, “O Rādhā, without You, My wealth, My community, My cows and My home – everything seems insignificant to Me.”

VERSE 5

*cintayāmi tad-ānanam kuṭila-bhru kopa-bhareṇa śoṇa-padmam ivopari bhramatākulaṁ bhramareṇa
hari hari hatādaratayā... (3)*

“My mind dwells on Rādhā’s face, with eyebrows crooked like a creeper and now red with anger, looking like a beautiful red lotus with black bumblebees hovering above.”

Commentary

Śrī Kṛṣṇa is saying, “My thoughts have been taken over by the vision of Rādhā’s lotus face. Now that She is vexed, the arch of Her eyebrows must have become even more pronounced. Her golden dejected face, now red with anger, is enhanced by Her beautiful curved eyebrows as if a line of black bumblebees is hovering above a red lotus flower.”

In this verse, Her angry face is compared to a red lotus and Her curved black eyebrows are likened to a row of black bumblebees. This is an example of vākyārthā-upamā alaṅkāra.

VERSE 6

*tām aham hṛdi saṅgatām anīṣaṁ bhṛśaṁ ramayāmi kiṁ vane ’nusaṛāmi tām iha kiṁ vṛthā vilapāmi
hari hari hatādaratayā... (4)*

“Alas! Since Rādhā dwells forever in the temple of My heart, where I hold Her in a tight embrace, why am I uselessly lamenting and time and again searching for Her from forest to forest?”

Commentary

Experiencing intense anguish due to separation, Śrī Kṛṣṇa attains a sphūrti, or a vision, of Śrī Rādhā in the core of His heart, upon which He understands, “Rādhā, the love of My life, is permanently enshrined in the temple of My heart where We forever enjoy unending amorous pastimes. We are truly never separated. If She is not to be found in the forest, then what profit lies in searching for Her there? Rather, if I see Her here in My heart, then why lament?”

VERSE 7

*tanvi khinnam asūyayā hṛdayaṁ tavākalayāmi tan na vedmi kuto gatāsi na tena te 'nunayāmi
hari hari hatādaratayā... (5)*

“O Kṛṣṅāṅī, My delicate one! It seems that Your heart is afflicted by jealousy. You proudly went off in a huff somewhere, so how can I petition You for pardon?”

Commentary

Separated from Śrī Rādhā, Kṛṣṇa has become half-mad in distress. When She suddenly appears in a sphūrti, He calls out to Her, “O Tanvi, svelte maiden,” as if She is directly before Him. “He Rādhē! Because I turned My back on You to enjoy Myself with some other beguiling Vraja maidens, Your heart is now wild with jealousy due to Your haughty self-importance. Accusing Me of some impropriety, You have become dejected and have gone off somewhere. If I knew where You were, I would touch Your feet and try to pacify You by begging for forgiveness.”

VERSE 8

*dṛśyase purato gatāgatam eva me vidadhāsi kiṁ pureva sa-sambhramam parirambhaṇam na dadāsi
hari hari hatādaratayā... (6)*

“Alas! You repeatedly come before Me and then vanish. Why don’t You impetuously embrace Me as You used to?”

Commentary

“O My darling Kṛṣṅāṅgī! Why are You merely coming and going before My eyes? Why are You not impelled by Your overwhelming love and enchaining Me in Your embrace today? Why are You so cruel?”

Indeed, when a man separated from his beloved is drowning in the depths of despair, his reverie on her becomes so intense that it seems as if she is actually with him. In Rādhā’s absence Kṛṣṇa has become so desperate that His meditation has culminated in directly perceiving Her before His eyes. Wherever He looks He sees only Śrī Rādhā. She is there in every direction – She is everywhere. And that Rādhā alone is the only thing He sees in all existence.

VERSE 9

*kṣamyatām अपारम् kadāpi tavedṛṣaṁ na karomi dehi sundari darśanaṁ mama manmathena dunomi
hari hari hatādaratayā... (7)*

“He Sundari, O beautiful one! Please forgive Me. I will never do such a thing again. Please show Me Your face at once. I am tormented with love for You.”

Commentary

Here the poet reveals the height of Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s despondency. As a vision of Śrī Rādhā manifests in His heart, He takes Her as the supreme object of adoration and says, “O Rādhā, please forgive My knavery. Kindly forget whatever has transpired. Hereafter, I will never commit such treachery again. I beg You to come before Me. I am Your dearest beloved. Do not deny My eager eyes the sight of You. In Your absence the heat of amorous desire is burning Me alive.”

In this song Śrī Kṛṣṇa is described as anukūla nāyaka, a lover who is grave, humble, and fixed in his resolve to please his sweetheart. The prominent rasa is vipralambha-śṅgāra arising from mutual anurāga.

VERSE 10

*varṇitam jayadeva-kena harer idam pravaṇena
kindubilva-samudra-sambhava-rohiṇī-ramaṇena
hari hari hatādaratayā... (8)*

He who appeared like the moon from the ocean of the village of Kindubilva has collected Hari’s lament. That very Jayadeva is humbly delivering this song.

Commentary

Śrī Jayadeva, in utter humility, has described Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s grief of separation from Śrī Rādhā. Just as the moon rises from the ocean, the poet Jayadeva has appeared in the village of Kindubilva. One of Śrī Jayadeva’s names is Piyūṣavarṣā, which is also a name of the moon meaning ‘shower of nectar.’ Another name of the moon is Rohiṇī-ramaṇa, or one who gives pleasure to the star Rohiṇī. Just as everyone is delighted by the moon, similarly, this lyrical song is bound to thrill the whole world.

VERSE 11

hṛdi visa-latā-hāro nāyam bhujāṅgama-nāyakaḥ kuvalaya-dala-śreṇī kaṅthe na sā garala-dyutiḥ malayaja-rajo nedaṁ bhasma priyā-rahite mayi prahara na hara-bhrāntyānaṅga krudhā kim u dhāvasi

“O Anaṅga, god of love! Are you so vehemently tormenting Me because you think that I am Lord Śiva? This is a necklace of lotus stems adorning My chest, not Vāsukī, the king of snakes. A garland of blue lotus flowers colors My throat, not a streak of poison. This is sandalwood paste smeared on My lovelorn body; it is not ash from a funeral pyre. Back off, retreat! You have caught Me by mistake, so cease from firing your terrible arrows at Me. Why do you rush upon Me with such fury?”

Commentary

Devastated in separation, Kṛṣṇa protests that Kāmadeva must have mistaken Him for Lord Śiva. Why else would he attack so vehemently with his invincible arrows? Helplessly overpowered, Kṛṣṇa calls out, “He Anaṅga, just see how happily Lord Śiva lives, half his body united with his beloved Pārvatī. But that is not the case with Me. Not only am I separated from My beloved Rādhikā, who is dearer to Me than My own breath, I don’t even know where She is.”

Śrī Kṛṣṇa is experiencing a sphūrti of Rādhā while agonizing from the burning sensation caused by Cupid. Therefore Śrī Kṛṣṇa directly says, “Anaṅga, why are you furiously chasing after Me? Do you intend to continue this incessant beating under the misconception that I am Lord Śiva? This garland may look like a snake but it is only a necklace of lotus stalks. And this is a line of blue lotuses on My neck, not a blue stain left by poison. This is not ash you see; it is Malayan sandal paste smeared upon My body to relieve the heat of separation from My beloved, but now dried up and turned to powder. Without My lover, I am lifeless, so why do you persist in attacking Me?”

This verse portrays vipralambha-śṛṅgāra and employs apahnuti alaṅkāra. The meter is hariṇī chanda. The verse also includes bhrāntimān alaṅkāra according to the opinion of some learned authorities.

VERSE 12

pānau mā kuru cūta-sāyakam amuṁ mā cāpam āropaya krīḍā-nirjita-viśva mūrccchīta-janāghātena kiṁ pauraṣam tasyā eva mṛgī-dṛṣo manasija preṅkhat-katākṣāśugaśreṇījarjaritaṁ manāg api mano nādyāpi sandhukṣate

“O Kandarpa, god of love! You have vanquished the entire universe with your games. Don’t take that mango-bud arrow in your hand. If you do, at least do not place it on your bow. What valor is there in striking down someone who has already been thoroughly scorched by the fever of lust? Just see! My heart has been cut to pieces by the sidelong glances streaming forth from that doe-eyed Rādhā, leaving Me nearly dead. Please don’t attack Me.”

Commentary

It is as if Kāmadeva said to Kṛṣṇa, “Although Śiva, who incinerated my body, is certainly my enemy, You have also transgressed my command. Therefore I will also aim my arrows at You.” Then Kṛṣṇa beseeched Kāma, “O Manasija, don’t take that mango-bud arrow in your hand.”

Kāmadeva’s puspa-bāṇa (flower arrows) are of five types: (1) āmra mukula (mango buds), (2) aśoka, (3) mallikā, (4) mādhavī and (5) bakula. The tips of the mango branches are bursting with springtime buds. Kṛṣṇa thinks, “Kāmadeva has made them into his arrows and he will shoot Me down, seeing Me reduced in separation from Rādhā.” Therefore He forbids him, “Do not pick up that mango-bud arrow.”

Mā cāpam āropaya – “If you do, then at least do not load it on your bowstring.”

Krīḍā-nirjita-viśva – “O you for whom conquering the universe is simply a matter of play. With joined palms I beseech you. This arrow will surely deal Me a mortal blow. You are the conqueror of the universe and I am like a dead person in separation from Rādhā. If a hero like you were to thrash a dying person, it would simply result in your defamation. No one would applaud you for heroic prowess.”

By the word manasija, Kṛṣṇa implies, “You have arisen from My mind. It is not ethical to beat the one who has given you birth. You want to shoot Me down on Rādhā’s behalf. But the arrow of Her sidelong glance, even sharper than your shafts, has already torn Me apart. What is the necessity of firing a poisoned arrow on top of the wounds I have already sustained?”

This verse is an example of sārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda and ākṣepa alaṅkāra.

VERSE 13

bhrū-pallavo dhanur apāṅga-taraṅgitāni bāṇā guṇaḥ śravaṇa-pāṅir iti smareṇa tasyām anaṅga-jaya-jaṅgama-devatāyām astrāṇi nirjita-jaganti kim arpitāni

“Aha! Her arched blossoming eyebrows are his bow, the many waves of Her crooked glances are the arrows, Her long eyes that almost touch the ears are the bowstring – such are the weapons in Kāmadeva’s arsenal. After conquering all souls in the universe without exception, Kāmadeva has offered them back to their Empress, the living Goddess of his own victory, the beautiful Rādhā.”

Commentary

Attributing the entire armory of Cupid’s arrows to Rādhā, Kṛṣṇa says, by the word tasyām, “Kāmadeva has returned his world-conquering weapons to Rādhā, My cherished one, from whom I feel the anguish of separation.” Why? Here, the word tat conveys the sense of previous experience. To establish Rādhā’s second unique quality, Kṛṣṇa affirms that She is the living Goddess of Victory for Cupid. Kāmadeva is the roving celestial who has conquered the universe, but he accomplished this only after acquiring weapons from Rādhā. When his objective was accomplished, he offered those weapons back to their Mistress.

Bhrū-pallava-dhanuḥ – ‘the bow of blossoming eyebrows.’ Rādhā’s eyebrows are compared to fresh petals because they are dark and smooth, and to a bow because they are curved.

Apāṅga-taraṅga – The waves of Her sidelong glances are Kāmadeva’s sharp arrows. Thus Kṛṣṇa implies, “Just as an arrow pierces its target, Rādhā’s glance has stabbed My heart.”

Astra – This refers to the weapons employed in military science. Śrī Kṛṣṇa is comparing the specific capabilities manifest in the different parts of Rādhā’s body to particular instruments Kāmadeva uses in his warfare.

This verse has been composed in vasanta-tilakā chanda and embellished with utprekṣā and rūpaka alaṅkāras.

VERSE 14

bhrū-cāpe nihitaḥ kaṭākṣa-viśikho nirmātu marma-vyathām śyāmātmā kuṭīlaḥ karotu kabarī-bhāro ’pi mārodyamam mohaṁ tāvad ayaṁ ca tanvi tanutām bimbādharo rāgavān sad-vṛttāṁ stana-maṇḍalaṁ tava kathāṁ prāṅnair mama kṛṇāti

“Tanvi, O fragile girl, let the dart-like sidelong glances issuing from the bow of Your brows strike at My vulnerable parts, causing Me intolerable pain. Let Your black serpentine braid thrash Me to death. Let Your soft lips, red and succulent as bimba fruits, make Me delirious. But Your perfectly round and enchanting breasts are ordinarily well-behaved, so how is it that they are cruelly trifling with My life-airs?”

Commentary

Absorbed in thoughts of Rādhā, Kṛṣṇa says, “The barrage of Your arrow-like sidelong glances shooting from the bow of

Your arched eyebrows is cutting Me to the quick. This behavior is quite befitting because it is natural for a bow and arrows to give distress to others – wounding others is their dharma, the purpose of their existence.

“Your sinuous black braid, which naturally moves like a snake, is attacking with the intent of manslaughter. This is also not inappropriate because it is perfectly natural for those of corrupt heart to attempt murder.

“O frail Rādhā, Your red (rāgī) lips make Me fall in a swoon. This is also befitting. After all, is there anything that the passionately attached (rāgī) will not do to achieve their desires? It is their very nature to bewilder others.

“But what I can’t understand is why Your melon-like breasts are trying to steal My life-air on the pretext of playing an innocent game. This seems thoroughly inappropriate. Such behavior is not natural for persons of integrity. Those who are sadvṛtta (perfectly behaved or perfectly round) do not take pleasure in toying with others’ life-air.”

This verse features śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda and virodha alankāra.

VERSE 15

tāni sparśa-sukhāni te ca taralāḥ snigdhā dṛśor vibhramās tad vaktrāmbuja-saurabhaṁ sa ca sudhā-syandī girām vakrimā sā bimbādhara-mādhurīti viṣayāsaṅge 'pi cen mānasam tasyām lagna-samādhi hanta viraha-vyādhiḥ katham vardhate

“The thrill of Her touch, Her restless tender eyes, Her bewildering glances which restore My life, the flood of fragrance from Her mouth, Her ambrosial words in a stream of crooked statements, honey dripping from Her scarlet lips – thus I behold Her in a gripping trance. Why then is the disease of separation growing?”

Commentary

Romantic intrigue with Rādhā comes alive in His meditation; even so His heart suffers increasing separation. Caught in dichotomy, Kṛṣṇa laments, “I am in deep samādhi with Rādhā, so why do feelings of separation still torture Me? Separation (viraha) is a condition of distress that occurs in the absence of one’s beloved, but My mind is intimately united with Rādhā.

“The absence of internal meeting is considered separation. Even when the mind experiences internal union, there may still be separation feelings due to the absence of external sensory union. Sometimes one feels sensory pleasure within the heart, in the absence of the sense objects; this is also referred to as union (saṁyoga). But now even this has also become a mode of viraha.”

Śrī Kṛṣṇa is wondering, “What is real? The experience of meeting also occurs in the physical absence of My beloved Rādhā. Even now in separation, My skin is feeling the happiness of Rādhā’s touch. My eyes are beholding Her restless glances, full of affectionate mellows and overflowing with prema. My nose is smelling the fragrance of Her lotus mouth. My ears are relishing the trickling nectar of Rādhā’s crooked words as if I were directly hearing them. My tongue is drinking the delectable juice flowing from Her soft, red-berry lips. I am enjoying all of these sense objects now, just as I did when We were together. Therefore, I cannot understand why the torment of separation continues to mount.”

The present verse features śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda, samuccaya alankāra and vipralambha-śṛṅgāra.

VERSE 16

tiryak-kaṅṭha-vilola-mauli-taralottaṁsasya vaṁśoccarad gīti-sthāna-kṛtāvadhāna-lalanā-lakṣair na samlakṣitāḥ sammugdhe madhusūdanasya madhure rādhā-mukhendau sudhā-sāre kandalitās ciraṁ dadhatu vaḥ kṣemaṁ kaṭākṣormayaḥ

May the countless waves flowing from Śrī Madhusūdana's sidelong glances bestow peace and prosperity upon all – those glances wonderfully excited from enjoying the sweet nectar of Rādhā's moon-like face. Transfixed on Her enchanting visage, He tilts His head and plays a bewitching flute song that enraptures the myriads of gopīs as His crown and earrings rhythmically sway with the music.

Commentary

This last verse of Act Three substantiates Śrī Rādhā's inspiration throughout this lyrical composition. It concludes with the poet's description of Kṛṣṇa's emotional state when, surrounded by a multitude of gopīs, He caught sight of Śrī Rādhā. The poet has blessed the singers and the listeners of this song by saying, "May that mesmerized Madhusūdana bestow auspiciousness upon all."

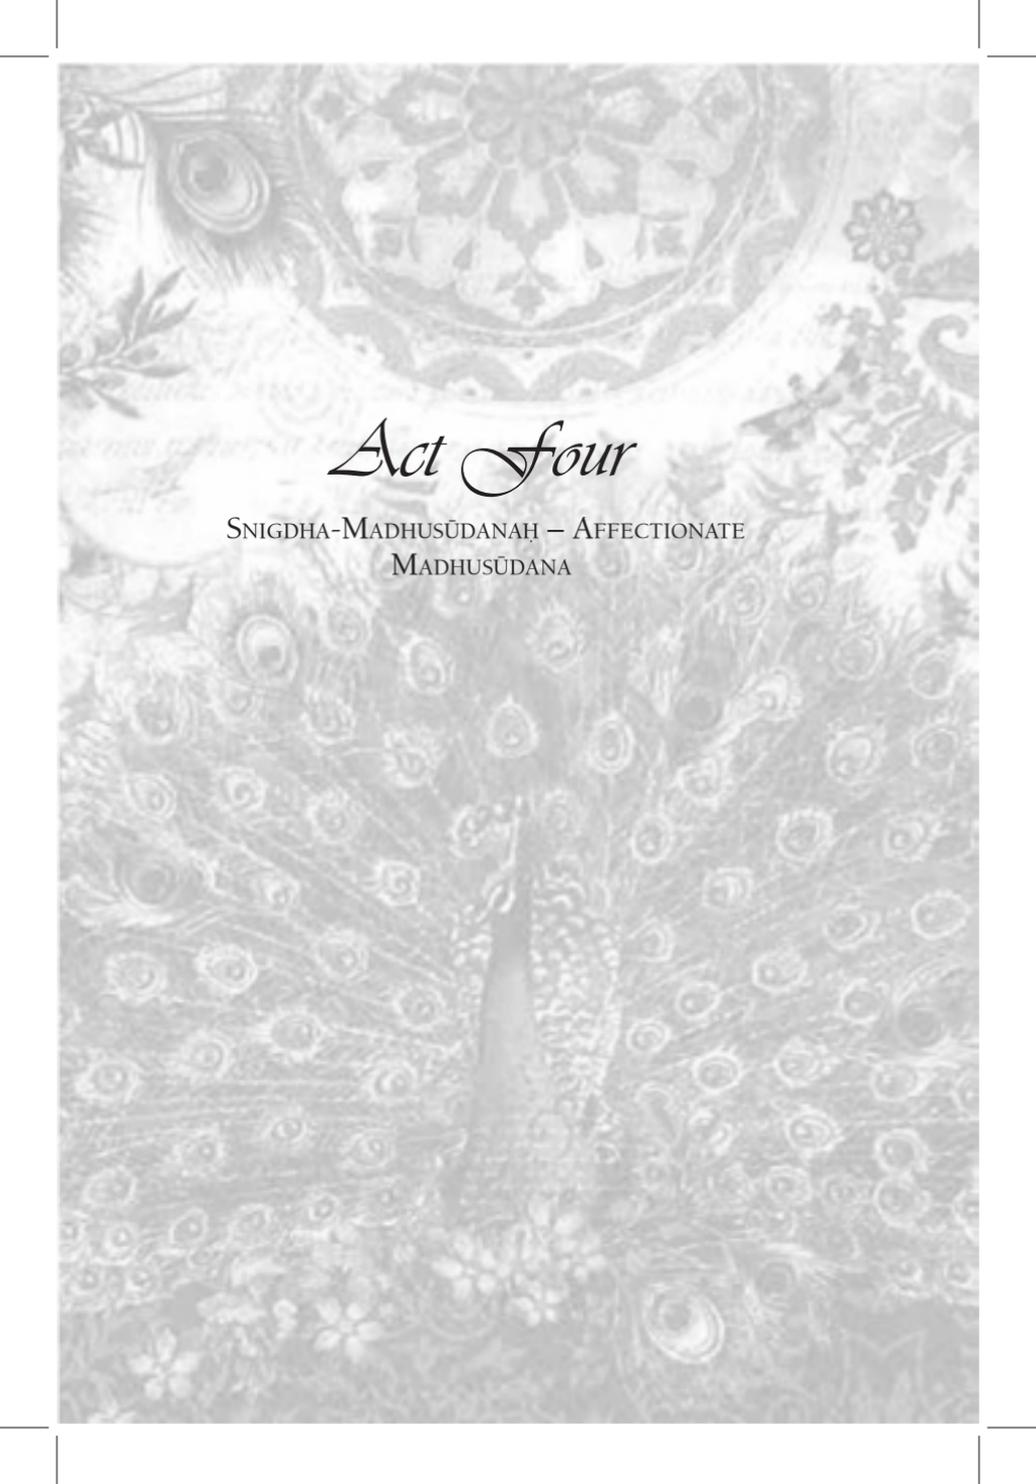

Here Kṛṣṇa is called Madhusūdana, meaning 'bumblebee,' or literally, 'one who drinks honey.' Filled with joy at the vision of Rādhā's lotus face – slightly restless and breathtakingly beautiful – Kṛṣṇa forgot about everything else and became transfixed on Her. Her sidelong glance overflowing with waves of affection welded Madhusūdana to madhu, the intoxicating honey of Her enchanting moon-like face. The word sammugdha expresses the thrilling beauty of Her face; madhura implies that its sweetness, greater than the nectar of immortality, is spellbinding, forcing Kṛṣṇa to behold it with great eagerness; and sudhā-sāra suggests that Her face is the most relishable of ambrosias. She has been likened to the moon because She inundates Śrī Kṛṣṇa with joy.

Kṛṣṇa was mesmerized by Rādhā's face; the other gopīs around Him were completely unaware of this. Kṛṣṇa was improvising an extraordinary rhapsody upon His flute, reaching the most provocative notes which riveted everyone's attention in the joy of listening. His expertise in fluting was such that He succeeded in bewitching Rādhā also, without the other gopīs noticing, thus demonstrating His cunning genius.

Describing the position of Kṛṣṇa's head the poet says, tiryak-kaṅṭhāvilola-mauli-taralottāmsasya – “He tilted His neck to one side, causing His earrings and crown to dance.” The word mauli can mean both ‘crown’ and ‘head.’ Moving the head is a fault for a flute player, whereas not moving the head is considered to be a mark of expertise. Śrī Kṛṣṇa's skill is extraordinary, therefore His head was not moving. Rather, only His earrings and crown were swaying.

This verse includes rūpaka alaṅkāra and śārdūla-vikrīḍitā chanda.

THUS ENDS THE BĀLABODHINI-PRAKĀSA COMMENTARY ON ACT THREE OF ŚRĪ GĪTA-GOVINDA, ENTITLED MUGDHA-MADHUSŪDANA, “MADHUSŪDANA MESMERIZED.”

Act Four

SNIGDHA-MADHUSŪDANAḤ – AFFECTIONATE MADHUSŪDANA

Act Four

SNIGDHA-MADHUSŪDANAḤ – AFFECTIONATE MADHUSŪDANA

VERSE 1

yamunā-tīra-vānīra-nikuñje mandam āsthitam prāha prema-bharodbhrāntam mādhaveṃ rādhikā-sakhī

Lovesick in separation from Rādhā, Mādhava was sitting in a vānīra kuñja on the bank of the Yamunā, wallowing in sadness, when Rādhā's dear friend came and spoke to Him.

Commentary

After painting first Rādhā's love-stricken condition and then Kṛṣṇa's, the poet now describes the strategy employed by Rādhā's messenger who desires to bring about Their meeting. Impelled by loneliness prior to meeting (pūrva-rāga), Rādhā revealed to Her intimate friend Her consuming desire to meet with Kṛṣṇa. After consoling Rādhā, that sakhī set off to locate Mādhava, whom she found sitting alone in a secluded vetasī nikuñja on the Yamunā riverside, half mad with anxiety due to His overflowing love for Rādhā. Her sakhī then spoke to Him.

Śrī Rūpa Gosvāmī describes the character of the messengers of the vraja-sundarīs in Ujjvala-nīlamanī (7.54). Such young maidens, called āpta-amitārthā-dūtīs, are highly trustworthy, very affectionate, and skilled in conversing. From observing just one or two symptoms in their mistress they can understand her desire. Even at the risk of their own lives they discreetly deliver the message of their sakhī to her beloved and expediently arrange a rendezvous between them.

❁ Song Eight ❁

The musical mode is karṇāṭa rāga, the rhythm, ekatālī tāla.

Karṇāṭa rāga – Śikhikaṇṭha, blue-throated Mahādeva, is walking along, holding a huge elephant tusk on his right shoulder with one hand and wielding a sword in the other. Dancing angels and other celestial beings glorify him with respectful prayers. On such an occasion, it is appropriate to present karṇāṭa rāga.

VERSE 2

*nindati candanam indu-kiraṇam anu vindati khedam adhīram vyāla-nīlaya-milanena garalam iva kalayati malaya-samīram
sā virahe tava dīnā (1)*

*mādhava manasija-viśikha-bhayād iva bhāvanayā tvayi līnā
(refrain)*

“In Your absence, She defames sandal paste. She finds the rays of the moon tormenting, and She considers the Malayan breeze, which only fans Her heat, as the poison of venomous snakes coiling the candana trees.

“O Mādhava! Deserted by You Rādhā is lying desolate. Fearing a rain of Cupid’s shafts She has embraced You in meditation to relieve the slow-burning fire of separation.”
(refrain)

Commentary

The sakhī informs Kṛṣṇa about Rādhā’s agony in separation from Him. “Afraid of Kāmadeva’s arrows, She has absorbed Herself in meditation and is fixed in samādhi on You. Just as a person who is afraid of being shot by arrows runs to take shelter of someone else to save his life, similarly She has taken shelter of You, kāma-svarūpa, the embodiment of amorous love. Once You are satisfied, there is no one to be feared. O Mādhava, in Your absence, Rādhā rebukes the sandalwood paste smeared on Her body; rather than soothing Her, it seems to have set Her body on fire. Even the cooling rays of the moon, igniting the fire of Her desires, set Her heart ablaze. And for Her the Malayan breeze has turned into poison from the breathing of the venomous snakes who wind around the candana trees of the Malaya Hills.”

The phrase manasija-viśikha-bhayād iva (as if fearing Cupid’s arrows) is a charming example of utprekṣā alaṅkāra. This verse is also embellished by rūpaka and virodha alaṅkāras.

VERSE 3

*avirala-nipatita-madana-śarād iva bhavad-avanāya viśālam sva-hṛdaya-marmaṇi varma karoti sajala-nalinī-dala-jālam
sā virahe tava dīnā... (2)*

“A barrage of Kāmadeva’s arrows is ceaselessly falling upon Her heart. Because You are enshrined in its tender core, She is attempting to protect You there by covering it with a mystical shield of large moist lotus petals.”

Commentary

Rādhā’s continuous meditation on Kṛṣṇa has made Her heart one with His. Her sakhī tells Him: “O Mādhava, You are always dwelling in the heart of Rādhā, who thinks to Herself, ‘Kāmadeva is perpetually attacking Me with a steady rain of arrows but My Kṛṣṇa should not undergo the slightest difficulty.’ So she covers Her vulnerable heart with large lotus petals bearing droplets of water (jāla). She is employing all possible measures to protect You.”

The word jāla can also mean ‘net.’ By using this word, the sakhī implies, “She has covered Her heart with a net of lotus petals” to express Rādhā’s sentiment, “May You never leave My heart even for a moment.”

“Kāmadeva’s quiver is inexhaustible. He releases his arrows one after another. O Mādhava, while languishing helpless in separation from You, She tries to contemplate a remedy. But how can She even think like this? The lotus petals are themselves exactly like Kāmadeva’s arrows, therefore how can they be the shield? By using these lotus petals to protect You, She simply increases Her own suffering.”

VERSE 4

*kusuma-viśikha-sara-talpam analpa-vilāsa-kalā-kamaṇīyam vratam iva tava parirambha-sukhāya karoti kusuma-śayanīyam
sā virahe tava dīnā... (3)*

“She has fashioned an artistic bed of flowers for enjoying the delights of amour, yet it seems a bed of Kāmadeva’s arrows. Vowing to obtain the bliss of Your tight embrace, She performs austerity, lying on Her bed of arrows.”

Commentary

“O Mādhava, as She prepares the bed of flowers She burns in separation from You. This love-couch is the highest object in the arts of lovemaking, but to Her it is a bed of Kāmadeva’s arrows.” The sakhī implies, “Just as one might observe a ghastly vow to attain some fabulous comforts, similarly, Rādhā is performing śaraśayyā-vrata, the severe austerity of lying on a bed of arrows, for the sake of attaining the rare happiness of Your embrace.”

VERSE 5

*vahati ca valita-vilocana-jaladharam ānana-kamalam udāram vidhum iva vikaṭa-vidhuntuda-danta-dalana-galitāmṛta-dhāram
sā virahe tava dīnā... (4)*

“A steady stream of tears flows from the restless eyes of Her lovely lotus face, just as ambrosia streams from the moon after being bitten by Rāhu’s dreadful fangs.”

Commentary

Her sakhī says, “O Mādhava, in Your absence, endless tears stream from Rādhā’s restless, wide eyes. It seems as if the fearsome Rāhu has gashed the moon with his teeth, unleashing a current of nectar.” Rādhā’s face is not like a lotus, but like the moon, and the teardrops flowing from Her eyes are like nectar.

This verse is an example of upamā alaṅkāra.

VERSE 6

*vilikhati rahasi kuraṅga-madena bhavantam asamaśara-bhūtam praṇamati makaram adho vinidhāya kare ca śaram nava-cūtam
sā virahe tava dīnā... (5)*

“She secretly paints a picture in musk of Your enchanting form capturing You as Kāmadeva himself riding upon a makara. Then She draws mango-bud arrows in Your hand, and bows down before You.”

Commentary

“Sitting in seclusion Rādhā takes kastūrī and paints Your portrait, depicting You as Kāmadeva, the god of love, because other than You, who can madden Her heart with desire? You are the only one who can fulfill Her cherished longings. In Your hand She paints mango buds, the most powerful of Cupid’s shafts. She then places You upon a makara, the aquatic creature who serves as the insignia of Kāmadeva on his flag. And when finished, She reverentially bows down before You and offers heartfelt prayers for relief from the blazing fire of love.”

This verse includes upamā alaṅkāra.

VERSE 7

*prati-padam idam api nigadati mād̥hava tava caraṇe patitāham tvayi vimukhe mayi sapadi sudhā-nidhir api tanute tanu-dāham
sā virahe tava dīnā... (6)*

“She pleads again and again, ‘O Mād̥hava, I am falling at Your feet. As soon as You turn away from Me, even the moon-god, with his chalice of nectar, begins to shower fire upon My body.’”

Commentary

The sakhī says, “O Mād̥hava, with every step, at every moment She utters, ‘I fall at Your feet. Please do not turn Your back on Me. Whenever You are not satisfied with Me, even the moon Candramā, the ocean of cooling nectar, ignites a fire within My body.’”

The author of Rasa-māñjarī hints about the reason for Rād̥hā’s use of the word mād̥hava. The syllable mā refers to Lakṣmī, and dhava means pati, her Lord. When Kṛṣṇa stays close to Rād̥hā, even Lakṣmī, who sees Rād̥hā as a rival, cannot harm Her. But when Kṛṣṇa is indifferent to Rād̥hā, Lakṣmī-devī’s brother, Candramā, tortures Her for being His sister’s competitor.

This verse includes atiśayokti alankāra. The description of Candramā acting against his nature is an example of virodha alankāra.

VERSE 8

*dhyāna-layena puraḥ parikalpya bhavantam atīva durāpam vilapati hasati viśīdati roditi cañcati muñcati tāpam
sā virahe tava dīnā... (7)*

“Intently meditating on You, She imagines that You have appeared before Her. Sometimes She laments in separation, and the next moment She joyfully laughs. Sometimes She cries and sometimes receiving Your embrace in a vision She abandons all suffering.”

Commentary

The sakhī says, “O Mādhava, unable to locate You after long search, Rādhā absorbs Herself in meditation instead and imagines that You are with Her. Feeling that You are directly before Her, She paints Your picture. When She looks at Your portrait, feeling You to be nearby, She laughs and jokes with You. Her mind billows with waves of joy, but when You do not embrace Her, Her loud, frenzied laughter transforms into a cry of lamentation. When Your imaginary form disappears, She tries to embrace it again. Then She thinks, ‘If My lover sees Me, He will certainly come under My control.’ Thus consoling Herself, She drops Her capricious restlessness and anguish.”

According to the commentary Rasika-priyā, the word vilapati (lamenting) should read vilikhati (painting). The heroine is displaying unmada, madness in separation. This verse features dīpaka alankāra.

VERSE 9

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam adhikaṁ yadi manasā naṭanīyam hari-virahākula-ballava-yuvati-sakhī-vacanaṁ paṭhanīyam
sā virahe tava dīnā... (8)*

If your heart yearns to relish Śrī Jayadeva’s song, constantly recite the words of Rādhā’s dear friend portraying Her anguish in separation from Śrī Hari.

Commentary

In this song Śrī Jayadeva depicts the youthful Rādhā perturbed by separation from Hari. The sakhī has revealed to Kṛṣṇa Rādhā's deep love for Him; her love-laden presentation should enact itself within the reader's heart. Acting is prominent in dramatic theory (nāṭya). Therefore the word naṭanīyam means 'worthy of being enacted;' it can also mean rasanīya, 'relishable,' and āsvādanīya, 'to be tasted.' In his Nāṭya-śāstra, Bharata Muni has stated: naṭa śabdo rase mukhyaḥ – "The primary meaning of the word naṭa is rasa."

The purport of the phrase śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam adhikam is that the entire essence of Śrī Gīta-govinda is fully present in the sakhī's words in this Eighth Song. Therefore it is to be revered and savored by pure devotees.

VERSE 10

āvāso vipināyate priya-sakhī-mālāpi jālāyate tāpo 'pi śvasitena dāva-dahana-jvālā-kalāpāyate sāpi tvad-virahaṇa hanta hariṇī-rūpāyate hā katham kandarpo 'pi yamāyate viracayan śārdūla-vikrīḍitam

“Her residence transforms into a wild jungle, Her circle of intimate friends the hunter’s net. Her sighs of pain fan the flames blazing within. Alas! In separation from You She has become like a frightened doe. Playing just like a tiger, Kandarpa has become death personified threatening Her very life.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā’s confidante paints a picture of Her pitiful condition. Bereft of Kṛṣṇa’s company Rādhā, now pale and timid like a deer, has taken up residence in the forest. Seared by separation from Her beloved, She wants to flee, but cannot because Her dearest sakhīs are surrounding Her like a hunter’s net. Thus thwarted, She remains grieving, frustrated and alarmed like a confused deer trapped in a forest fire, not knowing what to do when Her own deep sorrowful sighs set Her ablaze like a forest fire or a shower of meteors. Only the sound “Alas! Alas!” comes from Her mouth. Kāmadeva is always favorably disposed to Rādhā when She is close to Kṛṣṇa, yet now, playing like a tiger, he appears as Yama, death personified, as if he wants to kill Her.

Amorous desire is like the play of a tiger who pounces upon an innocent deer. The meter of this verse is called śārdūla-vikrīḍita, tiger’s play. The meter is exactly like the play of Kāmadeva. The comparison of Rādhā with a deer is indeed appropriate. Her body is feeble and She is perplexed about what to do. Helpless and innocent, She is tortured by desire for Kṛṣṇa’s affection; all the while Cupid demonstrates his prowess like a cruel tiger.

Rādhā’s sakhī implies, “A discerning woman will entrust her heart to someone who showers her with affection, but Rādhā has fallen so much in love with You that She is living in an ocean of love. Therefore, how is it possible that You feel nothing for Her? Only an animal will not reciprocate with someone's affection for him." Helpless and innocent, Rādhā has fallen in love with an unwilling candidate.

The chanda of this verse is sārdūla-vikrīḍita. The alankāras are luptopamā and virodhābhāsa.

❧ Song Nine ❧

The musical mode is deśā rāga, the rhythm, ekatālī tāla. The rays of the moon illuminate all directions. The hero is a wrestler, whose hair stands on end in delight as he makes a sound by slapping his huge arms. At such a time it is appropriate to sing deśā rāga.

VERSE 11

stana-vinihitam api hāram udāram sā manute kṛṣa-tanur iva bhāram (1)

rādhikā virahe tava keśava (refrain)

“Wasted away in separation, She finds the enchanting garland lying on Her breast a burden.

“Keśava, Rādhikā suffers in Your absence.” (refrain)

Commentary

In this song the sakhī's description of Rādhā's agony takes a new twist. Painfully emaciated now in Kṛṣṇa's absence, She cannot bear even the weight of the lotus flower garland upon Her breast.

The author of the Gīta-govinda-dīpikā (the Commentary that Illuminates the Gīta-govinda) explains that kam means sukha (happiness). Kṛṣṇa is the controller of kam, therefore He is called Keśava. The word keśa means ‘to bestow happiness upon all.’ The syllable va in Keśava indicates the specific nectar (amṛta) that is the life and soul for young women. Consequently, Kṛṣṇa is called Keśava because He is the life and soul of all the Vraja maidens. This being the case, why is His sweetheart Rādhā so unhappy? Impelled by loneliness, She utters the most startling comments that cannot be repeated. Her ornaments are not only a burden, they are a curse; therefore She wants to toss them away.

VERSE 12

sarasa-masṛṅgam api malayaja-pankam paśyati viṣam iva vapuṣi saśaṅkam
rādhikā virahe tava keśava... (2)

“She feels the moist sandal paste smoothed on Her body as fearful poison. Keśava, Rādhikā suffers in Your absence.”

Commentary

Malayan sandal balm is smooth and refreshing, but She feels Her body is besmeared with virulent poison. In the agony of Her loneliness, it is far from pleasing.

VERSE 13

śvasita-pavanam anupama-pariṇāham madana-dahanam iva vahati sa-dāham rādhikā virahe tava keśava... (3)

“Long sorrowful sighs, heated by the flames of passion, scorch Her body. Still, She holds on. Keśava, Rādhikā suffers without You.”

Commentary

The intense heat of separation within Her heart has become unbearable. Attempting to cool off, She lets out deep sighs, but instead of finding relief She feels the fire spreading throughout Her whole body. It is Cupid himself who is feeding this fire.

VERSE 14

*dīśi dīśi kirati sajala-kaṇa-jālam nayana-nalinam iva vīgālita-nālam
rādhikā virahe tava keśava... (4)*

“Her lotus eyes glance in all directions, scattering the rain of Her tears like water-drops from lotus flowers broken off their stems.”

Commentary

“Her tearful eyes are as charming as blue lotuses adorned with droplets of water. All directions are caught in the unbroken flow of Her tears that spread out like a net as She looks around in anticipation of Your return, thinking that You could appear from any direction. As a lotus flower has no fixed position once broken from its stem, Her eyes do not remain anywhere for more than a moment. You are the only object that can fix Her gaze.”

This verse includes upamā and utprekṣā alaṅkāras.

VERSE 15

*tyajati na pāṇi-talena kapoḷam bāla-śaśinam iva sāyam aloḷam
rādhikā virahe tava keśava... (5)*

“Her cheek, buried in Her reddish palm, resembles a crescent moon in the twilight sky when She sits off all alone.”

Commentary

“Confused about what to do, Rādhā has become paralyzed. Now in anxiety She holds the palm of Her hand against Her cheek and thinks, ‘Somehow or other, the day passes by, but what will happen when night falls? It will be an unending night.’ Her face is pale like the evening moon, and half covered by Her hand it resembles the crescent moon.” Just as twilight holds back the early evening moon, in Her sadness She supports Her lackluster face with the shield of Her hand.

VERSE 16

*nayana-viṣayam api kisalaya-talpam gaṇayati vihita-hutāśa-vikalpam
rādhikā virahe tava keśava... (6)*

“She sees the bed of fresh petals and imagines it to be a blazing fire.”

Commentary

“Traumatized by Your neglect, Rādhā looks upon a bed of fresh red petals as a fiery funeral pyre. Because Her eyes are attached to You She imagines objects directly before Her to be something else.”

Doubt about the identity of a substance arises from its similarity with another. Fire is red and burning, and so are flower petals for deserted women. Therefore Rādhā mistakes the petals for fire.

VERSE 17

*harir iti harir iti japatī sa-kāmam viraha-vihita-maraṇeva nikāmam
rādhikā virahe tava keśava... (7)*

“With intense longing for You, She continuously chants ‘Hari, Hari,’ feeling that death is drawing near.”

Commentary

“She is burning so intensely in separation that it seems certain that Her life is about to finish. Just as those who are hopeless and wish to die chant ‘Śrī Hari’ day and night, Rādhā also, fervently desiring You, incessantly calls out ‘Hari.’”

Kṛṣṇa is called Hari because He destroys the suffering of those who take shelter of Him. Rādhā is murmuring with hope: “I may not attain Him in this life, but by My repeatedly uttering ‘Hari, Hari’, surely He will be My dearest beloved in My next life.”

VERSE 18

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam iti gītam
sukhayatu keśava-padam upanītam
rādhikā virahe tava keśava... (8)*

May this song composed by Śrī Jayadeva bestow happiness upon those drawn to Keśava’s lotus feet.

Commentary

This song will certainly be a source of joy for the unalloyed devotees, because simply by their remembering Rādhā’s heartfelt feelings, their meditation will easily arrive at Kṛṣṇa’s lotus feet (keśava-padam). Alternatively, the poet has recited this song in the presence of pure Vaiṣṇavas. The etymology of keśavaḥ padam is sthānam yasyā ’sau tam keśava-padam – “Those Vaiṣṇavas who have attained Bhagavān are called keśava-pada.”

The song is embellished throughout by upamā alānkāra. The meter is mālācatuṣpadī chanda.

VERSE 19

sā romāñcati sīt-karoti vilapaty utkampate tāmyati dhyāyaty udbhramati pramīlati pataty udyāti mūrchaty api etāvaty atanu-jvare vara-tanur jīven na kiṃ te rasāt sva-vaidyā-pratima prasīdasi yadi tyakto 'nyathā hastakah

“Deranged in separation She undergoes extreme transformations of passion: Her hairs stand on end, She heaves with remorse, weeps out loud, trembles with grief, meditates on You with rapt attention, wanders about Your pastime places, closes Her eyes in bewilderment, falls down, manages to stand up, faints and falls to the ground again. The lovesick girl is severely afflicted with a raging fever. If You feel pity, O best of physicians as skilled as the Aśvinī-kumāras, administer Your ambrosial medicine and rejuvenate Her. Otherwise She will die.”

Commentary

“Rādhā is inflamed with the virulent fever of kāma. Her condition is so critical that She is wallowing in the utter despair that heralds death. Not only thirsting for You consciously, She is besieged by involuntary transformations of love (sāttvika-bhāvas). These indicate that She is meeting with You internally, and thus She stays alive. This is evidence of Her pure love.”

The sāttvika-bhāvas are as follows:

stambhaḥ svedo 'tha romāñcaḥ svarabhaṅgo 'tha vepathuḥ vaivaṅryam aśru pralayā- vityaṣṭau sāttvikā matāḥ

Romāñcati – Its etymology is romāñca vidyate yasya sa romāñcaḥ. romāñcita ity ārthaḥ. tadvad ācarati romāñcati – “One who is thrilled with horripilation is called romāñcita, whose bodily hairs rise in rapture.”

Vaivarṇya – “Her color fades due to Her incessantly remembering and worrying about You.”

Aśru – “She weeps when She remembers Your virtues.”

Vepathu – “She thinks, ‘How will I be able to tolerate the pain of separation from Śrī Kṛṣṇa?’ and trembles at the thought.”

Sveda – “On becoming mentally and physically debilitated, She perspires profusely.”

Stambha – “As She meditates upon You, She closes Her eyes as if all the activities of Her senses were about to cease.”

Vepathu – The second example of vepathu is indicated by the word udbhramati. “She wanders throughout the places of Your amorous pastimes in the hope of finding You.”

Svara-bhaṅga – Choking of the voice is indicated by the word pramīlati. “She closes Her eyes and remembers Your embrace and other acts of love. Thus She is unable to speak.”

Stambha – The second example of becoming stunned is intimated by the word patati, “She falls.” She falls to the ground as She walks because Her body is so weak and emaciated.

Pralaya – Rādhā’s friend informs Kṛṣṇa about Her devastation (pralaya). The word udyati, ‘She gets up,’ indicates that after falling She stands up again, and then She experiences murcchati – She faints.

Rādhā’s dear sakhī addressed Śrī Kṛṣṇa, “You are expert like the Aśvinī-kumāras, the heavenly physicians. If You care to be gracious with Rādhā, surely Her lovesickness (kandarpa-vikāra) will be cured. The use of a tonic is of no avail in the advanced stage of a raging fever. We try to relieve Her by covering Her with cool lotus petals and fanning Her with palm leaves, but nothing mitigates the disease of separation. Rather, it is gradually increasing. She has become so weak that all She can do is move Her hands. If She were to know that You do not agree to meet Her, then Her demise would be assured. She has given Her heart exclusively to You, so if You do not save Her life by meeting with Her, then You will surely incur the sin of turning Your back on a dependent.”

This verse features sārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda, ḍipaka alāṅkāra and vipralambha-śṛṅgāra-rasa. The heroine is vipralabdhā, devastated that her beloved has failed to keep their appointment. A female attendant who assists the heroine is called a sakhī. Hearing the sakhī's poignant description of Śrī Rādhā's dire condition, Śrī Kṛṣṇa, His heart now deeply moved, transforms from the daśiṇa nāyaka, the guileless lover who maintains relations with many nāyikās simultaneously, and emerges in the next song as the anukūla nāyaka, the submissive lover who is faithful to just one consort.

VERSE 20

smarāturām daivata-vaidyā-hṛdyā
tvad-aṅga-saṅgāmyta-mātra-sādhyām vimukta-bādhām kuruṣe na rādhām upendra vajrād api dāruṇo 'si

“You are a better doctor than the celestial physicians. Only the nectar of Your intimate contact will save lovesick Rādhā. If You do not heal Her disease of amorous desire, O Upendra, then we will know that You are harder than a thunderbolt.”

Commentary

The sakhī has decorated Kṛṣṇa with two titles:

(1) Daivata-vaidyā-hṛdyā – Kṛṣṇa is even more skilled and charming than the celestial physicians, the Aśvinī-kumāras.

(2) Upendra – Kṛṣṇa previously appeared as Śrī Vāmanadeva from the womb of Mother Aditi to bestow auspiciousness upon the aggrieved demigods. In that incarnation His name was Upendra because He was the younger brother of Indra. This address alludes to Kṛṣṇa's personal oath to always protect His dependants.

The sakhī confides in Kṛṣṇa, “Rādhā is victimized by Cupid's disease – unfulfilled kāma. The only medicine for this incurable condition is to be united with You. The touch of Your limbs is like nectar for Her. This will not involve any difficulty whatsoever on Your part. Therefore, if You do not bring Her back to life by Your aṅga-saṅga, then surely You are even harder than a thunderbolt.”

Appropriately, the chanda of this verse is upendra-vajrā (Upendra’s thunderbolt).

VERSE 21

kandarpa-jvara-saṁjvarātura-tanor āścaryam asyāś ciraṁ cetaś candana-candramaḥ kamalinī-cintāsu santāmyati kintu klānti-vaśena śītalatanuṁ tvām ekam eva priyaṁ dhyāyantī rahasi sthītā katham api kṣīṇā kṣaṇaṁ prāṇitī

“She lies gravely ill, smoldering in the fever of passion. How astonishing it is that when She thinks of soothing sandal paste, cooling moonshine and lotus ponds, Her fever only escalates. Alas, in a secluded place the feeble girl meditates on You – Her very cooling, sole lover – and somehow breathes some moments more.”

Commentary

“O Mādhava, only the hope of meeting with You keeps Her alive. Her fever has reached sannipāta, the critical condition when all methods of mitigating the fever are useless. Sandalwood paste, cooling moonshine or lotus flowers simply do not work. Just the thought of them increases Her temperature. Sometimes the rising fever which has sapped Her strength suddenly drops, and Her body turns cold from the perspiration. Pining for You, She sees only You in Her uneasy heart. Wasting away in such hard times, She still considers a moment’s meditation on You as a grand festival and thus is able to hold onto Her life-air.

“If You are wondering how She is still alive and breathing, then the answer is that You are Her only beloved and She nourishes the hope of attaining the touch of Your cool body. This hope alone gives Her a few more moments to live. If You do not go to Her this very second, You may never see Her alive again.”

This verse includes sārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda, virodha alankāra and adbhuta-rasa.

VERSE 22

kṣaṇam api virahaḥ purā na sehe nayana-nimilana-khinnayā yayā te śvasiti katham asau rasāla-śākhām cira-virahena vilokya puṣpitāgrām

“When She would gaze upon You and Her eyes would blink, that brief instant of separation would throw Her into utter despair. So how will She survive this long loneliness, especially with the mango trees coming into full blossom in front of Her eyes?”

Commentary

“O Keśava, previously Rādhā always stayed close to You, unable to bear even a second’s absence from You. The momentary blinking of Her eyes caused great anguish, and She would curse Brahmā for making blinking eyelids, which just briefly obstructed Her vision of Your face. So how can She tolerate this prolonged separation, which is aggravated by seeing the blossoming mango trees? Every branch is flowing with rasa, causing the tips to burgeon with fresh buds. It is now springtime, when deserted heroines undergo pain akin to death. How does She continue to breathe? O Keśava, don’t lose a second. Go to Her right now.

“There is one thing keeping Her alive. She thinks, ‘Just as I am stirred with desire from seeing the mango blossoms, Mādhava must be feeling the same thing for Me. Therefore, He will certainly come to meet Me.’”

Appropriately, this verse is composed in the meter called puṣpitāgrā (flowering tips).

VERSE 23

vṛṣṭi-vyākula-gokulāvana-rasād uddhṛtya govardhanam bibhrad vallava-vallabhābhir adhikānandāc ciraṁ cumbitaḥ darpeṇeva tad-arpitādhara-taṭī sindūra-mudrāṅkito bāhur gopa-tanos tanotu bhavatām śreyāmsi kaṁsa-dviṣaḥ

When the residents of Gokula were distressed by heavy rainfall, that young gopa, the enemy of Kāmsā, lifted Giri Govardhana with His arms to protect them. With great exultation myriads of beautiful maidens long kissed those arms which proudly bore the bright red gloss from their lips. May these arms grant auspiciousness to all.

Commentary

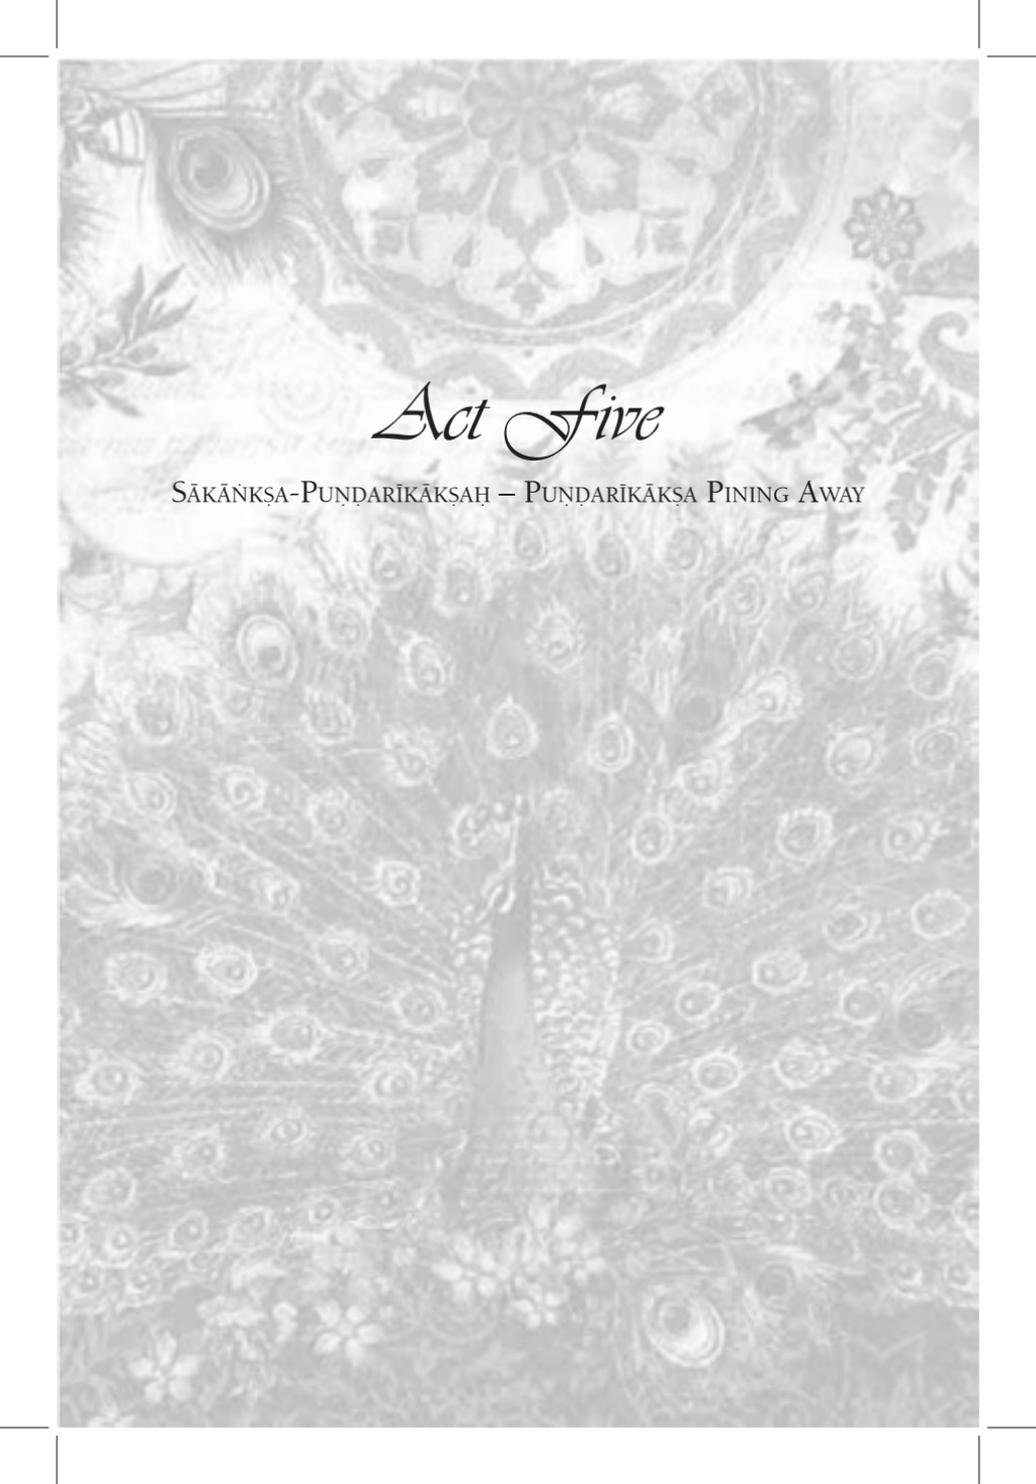

Maṅgalāntāni ca sāstrāṇi prathante – “A scripture which is auspicious in the beginning, the middle and the end will have far-reaching effect.” Accordingly, the poet Śrī Jayadeva concludes Act Four with an invocation of auspiciousness, just as he has done throughout the entire composition. “May Kṛṣṇa’s arms bestow good fortune upon the reciters and hearers of this Gīta-govinda.”

The unique features of Kṛṣṇa’s arms have been described in the first line of this verse. In a rage, Indra had incited the puṣkara and āvartaka clouds to bombard Gokula with terrifying torrents of rain. Seeing the anxiety of the cowherd folk, Kṛṣṇa immediately uprooted Govardhana Mountain and held it aloft upon His hand to protect them. Kṛṣṇa’s arms manifested the mellow of chivalry (vīra-rasa) and thus stimulated romantic emotions (śṛṅgāra-rasa).

The gopīs were thrilled when Kṛṣṇa was holding Govardhana, and they kissed His arms. As they beheld His cleverness and sweet beauty, they smudged His arms with the sindūra from their foreheads and the gloss from their brilliant red lips. May these arms, stamped with His intoxicating good fortune, bestow auspiciousness upon all.

The title of this act, Snigdha-madhusūdana, “Affectionate Madhusūdana,” implies that when Kṛṣṇa heard about Rādhā’s pathetic condition, He was deeply touched and fell inert.

THUS ENDS THE BĀLABODHINĪ-PRAKĀŚA COMMENTARY ON ACT FOUR OF ŚRĪ GĪTA-GOVINDA, ENTITLED SNIGDHA-MADHUSŪDANA,
"AFFECTIONATE MADHUSŪDANA."

Act Five

SĀKĀNĪKṢA-PUNḌARĪKĀKṢAH – PUNḌARĪKĀKṢA PINING AWAY

Act Five

SĀKĀNKṢA-PUNḌARĪKĀKṢAḤ – PUNḌARĪKĀKṢA PINING AWAY

VERSE 1

aham iha nivasāmi yāhi rādhām anunaya mad-vacanena cānayethāḥ iti madhuripuṇā sakhī niyuktā svayam idam etya punar jagāda rādhām

(When Kṛṣṇa heard the moving account of Rādhā's pitiful condition from Her intimate friend, He suggested,) "I will wait here. You go to Rādhā, pacify Her with My humble appeal and then bring Her here." Entrusted by the enemy of Madhu, Her sakhī went back to Rādhā and delivered His message.

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā's intense agony of separation has just been described in the songs in Act Four. Upon hearing of Her dire distress from Her sakhī, Kṛṣṇa realized His blunder, and immediately felt ashamed as well as apprehensive. Although He was eager to meet with His eternal consort, He did not go to Her in person. Rather, He expressed His remorse to Her sakhī and sent her to placate Rādhā's pique with soothing words. He instructed the sakhī, "Humbly supplicate Rādhā on My behalf. Devise a way to make Her happy somehow or other, and then bring Her to Me. I will wait for Her here by the Yamunā." Receiving this instruction, the sakhī went to inform Rādhā of the news.

Kṛṣṇa's heart was now pounding with ardent longing (sākāṅkṣa) for Śrī Rādhā, His eternal lover. Hence Act Five is entitled Sākāṅkṣa-puṇḍarikākṣa. The name 'Puṇḍarikākṣa,' meaning 'lotus-eyed one,' attracts the reader's attention to Śrī Kṛṣṇa's supremely enchanting eyes. In the Vedas His eyes are compared to red lotus flowers – tasya yathā puṇḍarikam evam evākṣiṇī.

The meter of this verse is puṣpitāgrā chanda.

❀ Song Ten ❀

The musical mode is deśavarāḍī rāga. The rhythm is rūpaka tāla. A heroine, with beautiful hair like a heavenly angel, decorates her hands with bangles and her ears with devapuṣpa flowers. When she fans her beloved with a yak-tail whisk and enjoys delightful pastimes with him, it is appropriate to introduce deśīvarāḍī rāga.

VERSE 2

vahati malaya-samīre madanam upanidhāya sphuṭati kusuma-nikare virahi-hṛdaya-dalanāya (1)

tava virahe vanamālī sakhi sidati (refrain)

As the Malayan breeze slowly drifts along, saturating everyone with a mood for amour, a profusion of flowers bursts into blossom and rips apart the hearts of lonely lovers.

Vanamālī is crushed by sorrow without You, friend. (refrain)

Commentary

Rādhā's sakhī tells Her, "O friend, now it is springtime and the Malayan breeze is gently moving along, anguishing forlorn lovers. Arousing romantic sentiments the hosts of blossoming flowers break their hearts. Without You Kṛṣṇa is utterly dejected. Go to Him!"

Here Kṛṣṇa is called Vanamālī, 'He who wears a forest-flower garland.' "The only thing keeping Him alive is that He is wearing a garland that You made for Him."

VERSE 3

*dahati śīśira-mayūkhe maraṇam anukaroti patati madana-viśīkhe vilapati vikalataro 'ti
tava virahe vanamālī sakhi sīdati (2)*

"Cool moonshine scorches Him, heralding His death. Flowers falling from the trees pierce His heart like love's arrows. He bitterly laments His destitute condition."

Commentary

"Moonlight cannot soothe Vanamālī. Shattered with longing for You, He feels death personified hovering over Him. Flames seem to be emanating from the moon and setting Him ablaze. Leaves and flowers falling from the trees feel like a shower of Kāmadeva's arrows assaulting His heart. Overwhelmed with grief He lies weeping on His flower bed, now a bed of arrows."

VERSE 4

*dhvanati madhupa-samūhe śravaṇam apidadhāti manasi valita-virahe niśi niśi rujam upayāti
tava virahe vanamālī sakhi sīdati (3)*

"He shuts His ears to the swarms of humming bees. As He waits for You night after night, disappointed, His heart becomes more and more crippled in separation."

Commentary

"The humming of the swarms of bees filling all four directions unpleasantly grates against Him, forcing Him to block His ears. Every night He thinks that You are by His side, but when He realizes that You are not actually there, His sorrow intensifies.

Consumed by loneliness, He tosses and turns fitfully when He lies down to rest.”

In this verse, the sakhī has described vipralambha-uddīpana-vibhāva.

VERSE 5

*vasati vipina-vitāne tyajati lalita-dhāma luṭhati dharāṇi-śayane bahu vilapati tava nāma
tava virahe vanamālī sakhi sidati (4)*

“He has taken up residence in the forest, abandoning His comfortable home. He rolls about on the ground, desperately calling out Your name.”

Commentary

The sakhī says, “Rādhā, deserted by You, Vanamālī has left His palace of delights, preferring the canopy of the jungle. He sleeps on the bare earth; feeling the pangs of separation He tosses and turns the whole night, and repeatedly calls for You, ‘Ha Rādhe! Ha Rādhe!’”

VERSE 6

*bhaṇati kavi-jayadeve viraha-vilasitena manasi rabhasa-vibhave harir udayatu sukṛtena
tava virahe vanamālī sakhi sidati (5)*

May Śrī Jayadeva’s song describing Hari’s desolation infuse the singers’ hearts with good fortune and immerse them in these separation pastimes, thus inducing Him to appear within.

Commentary

The poet Śrī Jayadeva avows that the reciters and audience of this Tenth Song, entitled Garuḍapada, will accumulate immense piety. Consequently Śrī Hari's separation pastimes will enrich their hearts with sustained enthusiasm. May Bhagavān appear in the hearts of those who are ardently longing for divine pleasure.

This poem may also be sung in kedāra rāga. Kṛṣṇa is Rādhā's prāṇa-nātha, the very breath of Her life, to whose lotus feet She offers Her vital airs millions and millions of times over. Therefore, as soon as She heard about His dire condition, She swooned and tumbled to the ground. Her sakhī fell silent, unable to speak another word. For this reason, this song has been completed in only five verses.

VERSE 7

pūrvam yatra samam tvayā rati-pater āsāditāḥ siddhayas tasminn eva nikuṅja-manmatha-mahā-tīrthe punar mādhavah dhyāyams tvām anīsam japann api tavaivālāpa-mantrāvalim bhūyas tvat-kuca-kumbha-nirbhara-parīrambhāmṛtam vāñchati

“In that most sacred place – Cupid's private love garden – where Mādhava perfected His amorous skills with You, He contemplates You incessantly, murmuring the mantras of His previous romantic conversations with You, yearning to again taste the nectar of liberation that flows in the tight embrace of Your ample breasts.”

Commentary

Thereafter, the sakhī sprinkled the refreshing water of Kṛṣṇa's qualities upon Rādhā to bring Her back to consciousness. She tried to comfort Rādhā by convincing Her that Mādhava's heart sought refuge in Her alone, thus preparing Her as the abhisārikā nāyikā about to rendezvous with Her lover. “Rādhā! Previously, meeting with You in Cupid's holy abode – that secluded pleasure grove – Mādhava attained great mystic powers in the amorous arts, like kissing and embracing. He desires to attain that same nectar today.

“The firm embrace of Your full breasts is nectar and the water of that sacred pilgrimage place is also nectar. Meditating on Your beauty and virtues, He is waiting for You there. Day and night he utters the mantra of His bygone romantic talks with You. A mystic perfection is only attained by chanting a mantra and meditating in a secluded place before a deity. Mādhava wants to attain kāma-siddhi in your presence in the form of your satisfaction in the kāma-tirtha of the secluded forest groves. You are the deity of the nikuñja, and Your amorous repartee has become the mantra to attain kāma-siddhi. By this mantra, He wants to attain ambrosia in the form of tightly embracing Your raised, round breasts.”

This verse features sārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda and kāvyaṅga alankāra.

 Song Eleven

The musical mode is gurjarī rāga. The rhythm is ekatālī tāla.

VERSE 8

rati-sukha-sāre gatam abhisāre madana-manohara-veṣam na kuru nitambini gamana-vilambanam anusara taṁ hṛdayeṣam (1)

*dhīra-samīre yamunā-tīre vasati vane vanamālī pīna-payodhara-parisara-mardana-cañcala-kara-yuga-śālī
(refrain)*

“O handsome-hipped girl! The beloved of Your heart, fascinatingly attired as the god of love, awaits You in the appointed place, perfect for savoring amour. Do not delay. Go at once and meet Him.

“Vanamālī, whose hands are always restless to press the gopīs’ breasts, is waiting in a forest bower on the bank of the Yamunā where the gentle Malayan breeze wafts.” (refrain)

Commentary

Encouraging Rādhā to leave for Her appointment with Kṛṣṇa, Her sakhī says, “Nitambini, O broad-hipped beauty! You already move slowly due to the weight of Your hips, so don’t waste another minute or else You will be late for Your tryst. Hurry so that You will reach the appointed rendezvous shortly after Your beloved. The possessor of Your heart, Vanamālī, beautifully dressed like Madana, is already on His way and He will be anxiously watching out for Your arrival.”

Rādhā’s sakhī clearly describes that meeting place where amorous euphoria is fostered. “There is a vetasī forest on the bank of the Yamunā, where the drifting air slowly moves along. The forest is dense and isolated, and this gentle breeze is indeed pleasant at the time of lovemaking. Keśava has dressed Himself appropriately for madana-sevā, the service of Cupid, and He has gone for abhisāra.” To set out for a rendezvous on a moonlit night, after decorating and dressing suitably for the occasion, is called abhisāra. “Quickly, quickly, go at once and meet with Vanamālī in that love bower.”

VERSE 9

*nāma-sametam kṛta-saṅketam vādayate mṛdu-veṇum bahu manute tanu te tanu-saṅgata-pavana-calitam api reṇum
dhīra-samīre yamunā-tīre... (2)*

“He is softly playing His flute, weaving Your name into the melody. When the specks of dust that have touched Your body are carried to Him on the breeze, He prizes His good fortune.”

Commentary

The sakhī is assuring Rādhā, “If You have no faith in my words, then just listen to the sound of Vanamālī’s flute coming from that very place. The flute is singing Your name, signaling You to meet Him and also showing You the path. Perhaps You are doubtful and are thinking, ‘I will definitely be cheated when I arrive. He must have gone there to meet another girl.’ But I can assure You that Your doubt is simply unfounded. Believe me when I tell You that He considers the specks of dust raised by Your feet to be valuable jewels; indeed, He receives them with great honor as they come to Him on the breeze.”

VERSE 10

*patati patatre vicalati patre śaṅkita-bhavad-upayānam racayati śayanam sacakita-nayanam paśyati tava panthānam
dhīra-samīre yamunā-tīre... (3)*

“Hearing the slightest sound – a bird landing on a tree, a fluttering leaf – He imagines You have come. He joyfully prepares the flower bed, and anxiously watches the path for Your arrival.”

Commentary

The sakhī informs Rādhā, “The slight sounds – falling leaves, movements of the air, or birds coming and going in the trees – arouse Keśava’s anticipation. ‘She must be coming.’ With joyful enthusiasm, He busies Himself in quickly refreshing the bed and glances towards the path of Your expected arrival with restless eyes.”

VERSE 11

*mukharam adhīraṃ tyaja mañjīraṃ ripum iva keliṣu lolam cala sakhi kuñjaṃ satimīra-puñjaṃ śīlaya nīla-nicolam
dhīra-samīre yamunā-tīre... (4)*

“Sakhī, remove Your anklebells, those enemies that betray Your amorous play with their loud chatter. Don this dark cloak and hasten to that dense, dark kuñja.”

Commentary

The sakhī says, “O Rādhā, it is getting dark; this is just the right time to go for rendezvous. Abhisārikā heroines meet their lovers in the dark, so set off for that secret forest grove now. My dear friend, remove these restless anklebells. They are informers: their talkative tinkling betrays You when walking and playing at love. Like enemies, they open their mouths without understanding the nature of the occasion, and stand in the way of the fulfillment of Your desire. Cover Yourself with this blue shawl which will mask Your golden effulgence as You move along, making You one with the darkness (or one with Śyāma).”

VERSE 12

*urasi murārer upahita-hāre ghana iva tarala-balāke taḍid iva pīte rati-viparīte rājasi sukṛta-vipāke
dhīra-samīre yamunā-tīre... (5)*

“Soon You will reap Your reward from pious deeds. You will dominate in the play of love as Your pearl necklace, looking like a beautiful flock of cranes flitting across the cloudy sky, falls on Murāri’s dark chest. You will shine like a streak of lightning upon the dark raincloud of His torso.”

Commentary

Rādhā’s sakhī says, “O Gaurāṅgī, if You go there, do you know how much You will gain? You are so fortunate that Your pearl pendants will dangle on Murāri’s chest, recalling a flock of white cranes flying in the cloud-filled sky. You will glimmer like a flash of lightning ornamenting His cloudy dark chest. Moreover, You will lie on His breast and become His garland; reclining there You Yourself will appear like white cranes flying past the clouds. Go and enjoy viparīta-rati and triumph over Him.

VERSE 13

*vigalita-vasanam pariḥṛta-rasanam ghaṭaya jaghanam apidhānam kisalaya-sayane paṅkaja-nayane nidhim iva harṣa-nidhānam
dhīra-samīre yamunā-tīre... (6)*

“O blue lotus-eyed one, shed Your silken cloth and untie Your waistbells . Place the treasured jewel of Your thighs on the bed of fresh, tender leaves. This will give Him great delight.”

Commentary

In the previous verse, the sakhī awakened Rādhā’s zest for viparīta-rati, when the heroine plays the aggressive lover. Now, Her sakhī arouses Rādhā’s eagerness to experience Kṛṣṇa as the active element in Their love play. “O Rādhā, Your eyes are as captivating as lotus flowers. When You see how Vanamāli is ten million times more ravishing than the god of passion, the cloth covering Your hips will slip off by itself, and Your noisy waistbells will be cast aside. Then You should place the precious jewel of Your hips – the receptacle of bliss which provides for Hari’s happiness – on the flower bed He has crafted for the occasion.”

VERSE 14

*harir abhimānī rajanir idānīm iyam api yāti virāmam kuru mama vacanaṁ satvara-racanaṁ pūraya madhuripu-kāmam
dhīra-samīre yamunā-tīre... (7)*

“Hari is being stubborn. The night is just about to end, so accept my advice. Go at once without further delay, and fulfill the desires of the enemy of Madhu.”

Commentary

Her sakhī says, “Madhuripu has a mind of His own.” The implied meaning is, “Śyāmasundara’s heart and mind are at odds with each other. He is trying very hard to appease You, so do not worry that He will meet with anyone else. Still, because He is headstrong and, remarkably enough, feels the need to protect His own dignity, He cannot come to You; and at the same time, He cannot get You out of His mind. Sooner or later, You will have to approach Him, so why not go now? The night is passing and the opportunity to meet will be lost. Do as I say – go to Mādhava immediately and fulfill His desires.”

VERSE 15

*śrī-jayadeve kṛta-hari-seve bhaṇati parama-ramaṇīyam pramudita-hṛdayaṁ harim ati-sadayam namata sukṛta-kamaṇīyam
dhīra-samīre yamunā-tīre... (8)*

O gentle saints, reciting this enchanting poetry penned by Śrī Hari’s servant Jayadeva, bow down to Him who is most charming, merciful and blissful-hearted.

Commentary

Poet Jayadeva concludes, “O devotees of Bhagavān! Because this endearing conversation has been composed by one who is ever absorbed in serving the Lord, Hari is eternally pleased with it. So, when the devotees deeply meditate on it, the lovable Śrī Kṛṣṇa grants them a sphūrti of His delightful pastimes, and thus He becomes the object of everyone’s desires. With glad heart may you all prostrate before He who is exuberant, causelessly merciful, exceptionally sweet, virtuous and adorned with all desirable qualities.”

VERSE 16

vikirati muhuḥ śvāsān āsāḥ puro muhur īkṣate praviśati muhuḥ kuñjam guñjan muhur bahu tāmyati racayati muhuḥ śayyām paryākulam muhur īkṣate madana-kadana-klāntaḥ kānte priyas tava vartate

“He Kāmini, O passionate girl! Burning with amorous desire, Your beloved is waiting for You in the seclusion of the nikuñja. Sighing and apprehensively looking all around, again and again He laments in indistinct words. Time after time He comes out of the blossoming bower only to return again disappointed. Over and over He refreshes the flower-bed and looks down the path in expectation of Your arrival.”

Commentary

The poet concludes this act with the sakhī telling Śrī Rādhā about Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s condition and presents many arguments to convince Her to meet with Him. “In Your absence Madhusūdana is desolate, His desires unfulfilled. He repeatedly sighs in disappointment, ‘Ahhh, You have not come yet.’ He comes out of the latā-kuñja looking expectantly for You in all directions. Then He goes back in, thinking that You might have hidden Yourself inside. He goes in and out over and over – why? Because He is thinking, ‘She is not here yet? Maybe She is on Her way. Perhaps

She has stopped for something or maybe She is afraid.' Unable to understand why You have not come, He mulls over all these different possibilities. Then again He thinks, 'Anyway, all this guesswork and speculation is useless. She will surely come.' With this conviction He begins to make the bed."

The word kadana implies that Śrī Kṛṣṇa thinks, "Because of Her ever fresh and ever increasing love for Me, She will definitely come." Therefore once again He eagerly continues to watch for Her arrival.

This verse includes dīpaka alānkāra. The meter is hariṇī.

VERSE 17

tvad-vāmyena samam samagram adhunā tigmāmsur astam gato govindasya manorathena ca samam prāptam tamaḥ sāndratām kokānām karuṇa-svanena sadṛśī dīrghā mad-abhyarthanā tan-mugdhe viphalam vilambanam asau ramyo 'bhisāra-kṣaṇaḥ

"O Mugdhe, bewildered one! The sun has fully set and so has Your contrary mood. The darkness has become extremely dense, as has Govinda's desire. My request has become futile, just like the continuous crying of the lonely cakravāka bird, who uselessly laments in pathetic tones throughout the night. I have been imploring You from the core of my heart for a long time. To delay any longer is useless. The delightful time for abhisāra has arrived."

Commentary

"He Rādhe! O bewildered one! Now is the perfect time to go to Your beloved. You became indignant, helplessly impelled by Your contrary nature, and refused to go. But now there are no obstacles to Your tryst, since Your māna, along with the sun, has set. As the darkness of the night has grown deep, the ardent desires of love for You within Govinda's heart have flourished; and His longing to meet You has also intensified a millionfold.

“During the night the male and female cakravāka birds, being far away from each other, let out long pitiful cries of agony due to extreme feelings of separation. Just as their sustained cries go in vain, my repeated requests for You to meet Kṛṣṇa have also proved futile. O Mugdhe, naive girl! Do not miss this opportunity. The time for abhisāra is just ripe. The darkness is impenetrable and Your dearmost beloved is eager for You. Do not delay on the pretext of dressing and decorating Yourself. Go at once!”

Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī has quoted this verse in Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi (Sakhī-prakāraṇām, 8.107) to describe how Rādhā’s sakhī (identified by Rūpa Gosvāmī as Sudevī) is encouraging Her to go for abhisāra.

This verse features sahokti alaṅkāra and śardūla-vikrīḍita chanda.

VERSE 18

āśleṣād anu cumbanād anu nakhollekhād anu svāntaja-prodbodhād anu sambhramād anu ratārambhād anu prītayoh anyārtham gatayor bhramān militayoh sambhāṣaṇair jānator dampatyor iha ko na ko na tamasi vrīḍā-vimiśro rasaḥ

O sakhī, once before, being so much in love, You went for abhisāra on a night as dark as this. After wandering about for quite some time, You met Your beloved by chance, but in the pitch dark You both thought You had encountered a stranger. Only after conversing did You recognize each other, upon which You immediately embraced, kissed and scratched each other. As desire rose to dizzying heights, You both lost composure and excitedly engaged in love play. Your amorous pleasure, tinged with shyness, left both of You feeling an astonishing type of affection. O Beautiful One, what delight is awaiting You in this darkness! Therefore, go as quickly as possible to Your sylvan love chamber. How can You possibly neglect such a golden opportunity?”

Commentary

Having openly described how anxious Kṛṣṇa is to meet with Rādhikā, Her sakhī now speaks this verse beginning with āśleṣād anu to increase Rādhā's eagerness for abhisāra. Kṛṣṇa had instructed the sakhī to remind His sweetheart about a previous meeting recounted in Gīta-govinda's very first verse – meghair meduram.

Her sakhī reports to Rādhikā, “Kṛṣṇa remembers how once before, when the night was pitch black with a thick carpet of clouds covering the sky, You suddenly met each other in the dark. Due to long separation and the natural embarrassment inherent in śṛṅgāra-rasa, You were hesitant at first to engage in amour, thinking, ‘How can We act so suddenly?’ Nevertheless You overcame Your bashfulness and enjoyed together, experiencing all the varieties of śṛṅgāra-rasa. Govinda has recaptured that moment, ‘What didn't We taste? I long to relish that same enjoyment again.’”

By conveying Śrī Kṛṣṇa's desire, the sakhī encourages Śrī Rādhikā. To further arouse Her enthusiasm, she describes the details of Their past experience: “Full of anguish because You had not seen one another for a long time, the two of You, unbeknownst to each other, set out to arrange a tryst. After roaming about for some time, You suddenly came upon each other unexpectedly. And then what happened? A rasa mingled with bashfulness arose. Why? At first You did not recognize each other and were shy, thinking you had encountered an unknown person. Upon exchanging a few words You realized, ‘Oh, this is My own beloved.’ At this, You impetuously embraced, then You kissed and after that You scratched each other. As amorous desire soared high, in full eagerness You commenced Your amatory enjoyment in great haste, time being short and fearing that you might be seen. Thus You both experienced the astonishing and unprecedented bliss of vrīḍā-miśrita śṛṅgāra-rasa, erotic ecstasies mixed with feelings of shame. Are there any mellows beyond this? No, all flavors are incorporated in this vrīḍā-miśrita rasa.

“Kṛṣṇa is ever eager to meet with You again. Therefore, it is not proper to delay any longer.” Thus reminding Rādhikā of a previous romantic encounter, Her sakhī urges, “Fulfill this desire as the two of You did once before. O Rādhā, You are also anxious to meet with Him. Go and consummate Your and Kṛṣṇa’s deepest longings.”

When lovers meet, they undergo a sequence of emotions. The word bhramāt means ‘roaming.’ They meet while wandering about and come to identify each other in the dense darkness only after speaking. They may have set out with other purposes and then meet by chance along the way. Recognizing their lover, they suddenly embrace as sāttvika-bhāvas arise, but both still remain inhibited, afraid that someone might see them. Now losing all inhibition they start their love play, and experience the happiness of rasa. When kāma escalates, they indulge in varieties of playful exchanges as they laugh and speak joking words to each other. Finally, when their lovemaking, rati-kṛīḍā, is fully accomplished and they are both feeling complete joy, they realize the full sweetness and astonishment of amorous love, rasa-rāja śṛṅgāra-rasa, the supreme emperor of all mellows.

The entire sequence of the development of intimate amorous enjoyment (cauryarata krama) has been explained by Bharata Muni:

āśleṣa-cumbana-nakha-kṣata-kāma-bodhaśighratvamaithunam ananta-sukha-prabodham prītis tato 'pi rasa-bhāvanam eva kāryam evam nitāntanaturāḥ suciram ramante

“Embracing, kissing, scratching with nails, quickly expressing amorous desire – such amorous union brings unlimited pleasure. Love is to be expressed, and then the rasas are relished. Thus, without any fatigue, lovers enjoy for a very long time.”

Dīpaka, samuccaya and bhrāntimān alaṅkāras are prominent in this verse. The meter is śardūla-vikrīḍita chanda.

VERSE 19

sa-bhaya-cakitaṁ vinyasyantīm dṛṣaṁ timire pathi prati-taru muhuḥ sthitvā mandaṁ padāni vitanvatīm katham api rahaḥ prāptāṁ aṅgair anaṅga-taraṅgibhiḥ sumukhi subhagaḥ paśyan sa tvām upaitu kṛtārthatām

“O beautiful girl! Timidly looking around as You tread the dark path with fright, stopping at each tree and then gradually resuming Your steps, You move along with waves of desire billowing through You till You finally reach the secluded rendezvous. When Your hero sees You He feels greatly blessed.”

Commentary

“Being with You, O stunningly beautiful one, means everything to Hari,” the sakhī tells Rādhā. “When You set out from here, You will move cautiously along the path in the dense darkness. It is only natural to be afraid in the dark, and You are also apprehensive that someone might see You. In amazement You will think, ‘I am actually on My way on this black night to the rendezvous (saṅketa-sthāna) to meet with My prāṇa-nātha.’ And at the same time, You will wonder, ‘When I arrive there, will I meet with Keśava or not?’ Because of Your heavy breasts and hips, You cannot walk fast and You tire quickly, so stop and wait beneath every tree before going on. Hari will burst with joy when He sees You arrive at the meeting place in this enfeebled condition, with waves of anaṅga rippling through Your body. Feeling His life successful, Hari will plunge into turbulent waves of excitement.”

This verse is embellished by atiśyokti alankāra. The meter is hariṇī.

VERSE 20

rādhā-mugdha-mukhāravinda-madhupas trailokya-mauli-sthālī nepathyocita-nīla-ratnam avanī-bhārāvatārāntakaḥ svacchandaṁ vraja-sundarī-jana-manas-toṣa-pradoṣodayaḥ kaṁsa-dhvaṁsana-dhūmaketur avatu tvām devakī-nandanaḥ

He is the bumblebee who drinks the honey of Rādhā's charming lotus face. He is the sapphire ornamenting Vṛndāvana, which is itself the crest jewel of the three worlds. He is the twilight effortlessly satisfying the beautiful girls of Vraja. He is death incarnate annihilating the wicked Daityas and Dānavas who overburden the Earth. He is the comet Dhūmaketu foreboding Kāmsa's destruction. May that Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the son of Devakī, protect you all.

Commentary

After describing Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa's emotions during separation, the poet portrays the śṛṅgāra-rasa evoked by Their meeting. In this verse, Śrī Jayadeva bestows blessings upon the reciters and audience of this poem.

Mugdha-mukhāravinda-madhupaḥ – Rādhā's face is like a lotus flower. As a bumblebee frequents the lotus flower to drink the nectar of its pollen, similarly Kṛṣṇa tastes the sweetness of Rādhā's lotus face. Therefore He has been addressed as mugdha-madhupa, the bewildered bumblebee. This part of the verse indicates Their pastimes of meeting.

Trailokya-mauli-sthālī-nepathyocita-nīla-ratnaḥ – He is a sapphire upon the crown of the three worlds; that is, He beautifies the best places in the entire creation (the kuñjas). The phrase nepathyocita means 'a befitting ornament.'

Avanī-bhārāvantārāntakaḥ – When demons such as Śiśupāla, Dantavakra and Kāmsa took birth to increase the burden of the Earth, Kṛṣṇa appeared to bring about their destruction. The word antaka means yama, or death personified. Kṛṣṇa is death for those who are a burden on the Earth.

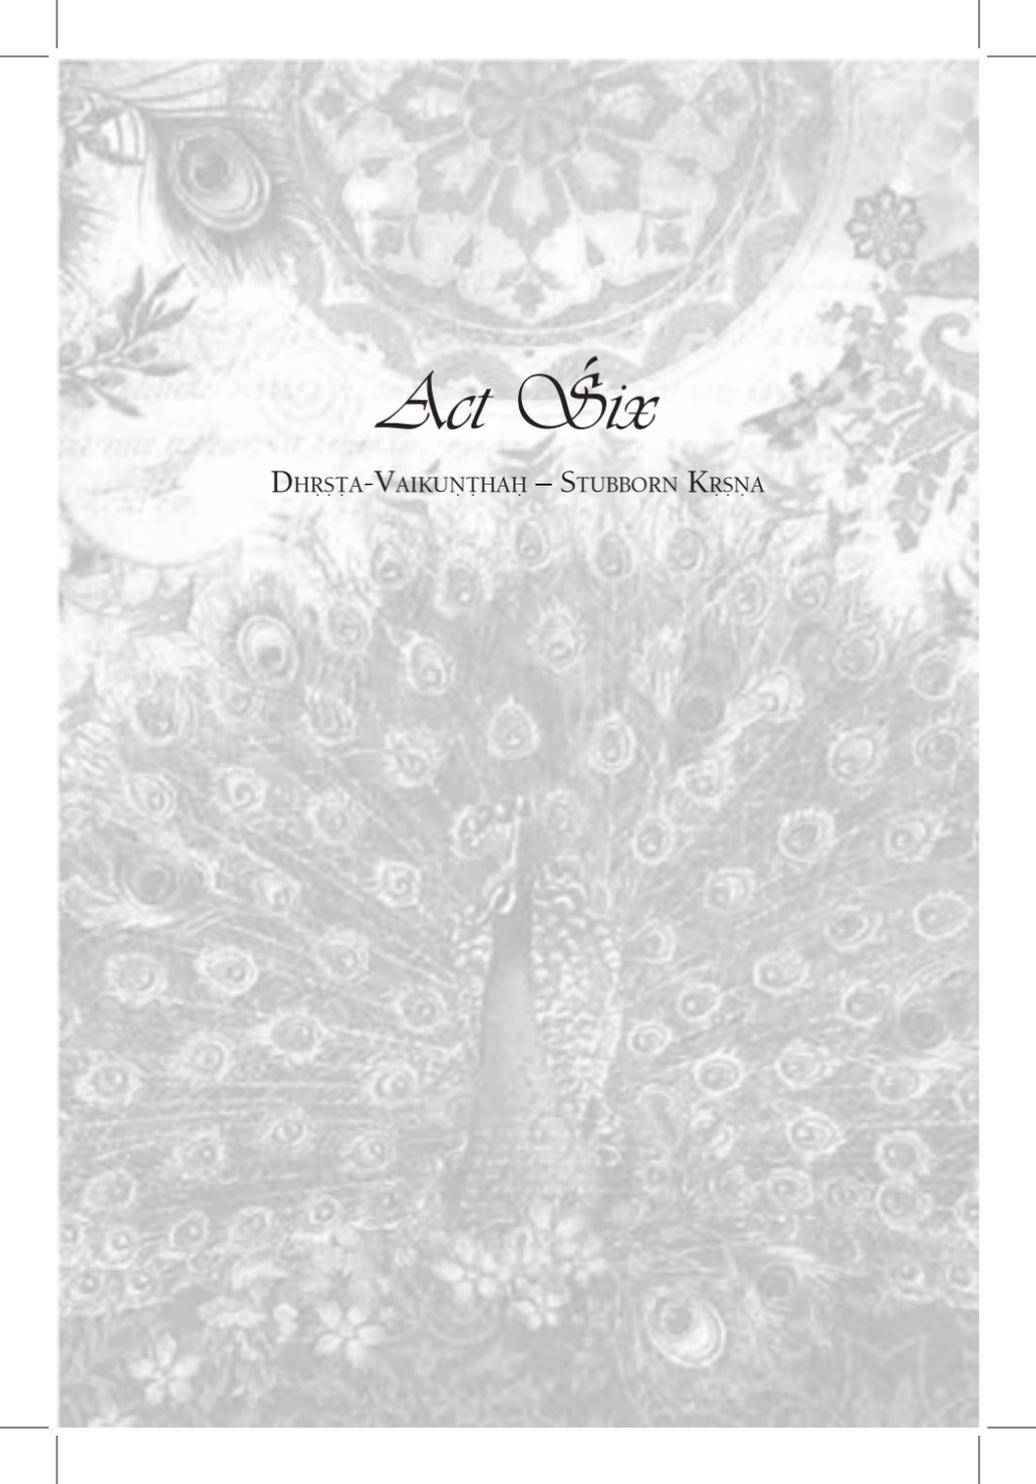

Svacchandam vraja-sundarī-jana-manas-toṣodayaḥ – Kṛṣṇa nourishes the hearts of the strikingly beautiful vraja-gopīs like twilight. As the rising moon at dusk pleases women by setting the scene for them to meet with their lovers, Kṛṣṇa uninhibitedly delights the hearts of the attractive vraja-gopīs and gratifies their desires.

Kāmsa-dhvāmsana-dhūmaketuḥ – Kṛṣṇa, the destroyer of the demon Kāmsa, is like the comet Dhūmaketu, whose appearance augurs the imminent destruction of the king. Similarly, the descent of Kṛṣṇa forebodes the destruction of Kāmsa. Another meaning of dhūmaketu is ‘one who illuminates like the sun.’ Śrī Kṛṣṇa is effulgent like the sun, and He is also the Dhūmaketu that spells the pacification of Śrī Rādhā’s kāma.

The etymology of the word pradoṣa is pragatā doṣādayaḥ yasmin, which means: ‘that [period] in which the night has started.’ Night personified is called doṣā. This verse includes the alaṅkāras called śleṣa, luptopamā, parikara and varṇopamā. The meter is sardūla-vikrīḍita and the rīti is pāncālī.

Act Five has described the abhisārikā nāyikā, the heroine who embarks for a secret tryst. The lotus-eyed Kṛṣṇa is ready and waiting for Rādhā’s arrival.

THUS ENDS THE BĀLABODHINĪ-PRAKĀŚA COMMENTARY ON ACT FIVE OF ŚRĪ GĪTĀ-GOVINDĀ, ENTITLED SĀKĀṆKṢA-PUNḌARĪKĀKṢA, PUNḌARĪKĀKṢA (LOTUS-EYED KRṢṆA) PINING AWAY.

Act Six

DHRṢṬA-VAIKUNṬHAḤ – STUBBORN KRṢṆA

Act Six

DHRṢṬA-VAIKUNṬHAH – STUBBORN KṚṢṆA

VERSE 1

atha tām gantum aśaktām ciram anuraktām latā-gr̥he dṛṣtvā tac-caritaṁ govinde manasija-mande sakhī prāha

When Her sakhī saw Rādhā in the bower of vines, Her heart set on Kṛṣṇa but too weak to go to Him, Rādhā's friend described Her condition to Govinda, who was Himself tortured by Cupid.

Commentary

Rādhā was sorely hankering for Kṛṣṇa, but, being debilitated from the trauma of separation, She was unable to go to Him. Seeing this, the sakhī left Rādhikā there in the bower of flowering creepers and went to inform Kṛṣṇa about Rādhā's predicament. Kṛṣṇa was sitting down in a state of depression, languishing and burning with unfulfilled passion. The purport of latā-gr̥ha is saṅketa-sthala, the appointed meeting place.

The meter of this verse is aryā.

Song Twelve

The musical mode is naṭa or guṇakarī rāga and the rhythm is rūpaka tāla.

VERSE 2

*paśyati diśi diśi rahasi bhavantam
tad-adhara-madhura-madhūni pibantam (1)*

nātha hare! sīdati rādhā vāsa-grhe (refrain)

“In all directions and in the core of Her heart, She sees You in Her loneliness – You who are so skillful in drinking the sweetness of Her lips.

“He nātha, O Hari, You are Her only refuge. Rādhā pines for You in Her sylvan retreat.” (refrain)

Commentary

Her sakhī says, “Now listless, Rādhā is sitting alone in the saṅketa kuñja. Due to the mighty storm of Her emotions, She sees You everywhere – all directions have become kṛṣṇamayī, She beholds nothing but You.”

Another meaning can be taken for kṛṣṇamayī: “In Her forest bower, Rādhā with great fervor drinks through Her ears sweet depictions of You, which color the whole atmosphere. In Her heart She wants to come to You, but Her body is not cooperating. This is the nature of long-standing prema – body and mind do not work in harmony. This is why She has become so lifeless.”

VERSE 3

*tvad-abhisaraṇa-rabhasena valantī patati padāni kiyanti calantī
nātha hare! sīdati... (2)*

“Eager to go for abhisāra Rādhā quickly readies Herself, but taking a few steps She falls down.”

Commentary

Rādhā impetuously stands up to decorate and prepare Herself to go meet Her beloved, but She is so enfeebled in the wake of separation that after taking a few steps, She falls helplessly to the ground in a swoon.

VERSE 4

*vihita-viśada-bisa-kisalaya-valayā
jīvati param iha tava rati-kalayā
nātha hare! sīdati... (3)*

“She adorns Herself with a profusion of ornaments made of tender, white lotus stems and freshly sprouted leaves. Only the hope of enjoying amour with You keeps Her alive.”

Commentary

“Rādhā has covered Herself with lotus stems and freshly sprouted leaves to relieve the burning of kāma. Although feeble and emaciated, She has held onto Her life-air until now only because the hope of enjoying amorous pastimes with You gives Her some happiness. Even now, the ways of Your love reside in Her very breath and are resonating upon Her heart-strings. Her total absorption in reveling in pleasure with You is the only cause of Her continued existence.”

VERSE 5

*muhur avalokita-maṇḍana-līlā madhuripur aham iti bhāvana-śīlā
nātha hare! sīdati... (4)*

“Looking repeatedly at Her ornaments She fancies, ‘I am Madhuripu.’”

Commentary

“O Hari, Her heart has become one with Yours. Imagining that ‘I am Madhusūdana. I am Rādhā’s prāṇa-nātha,’ She identifies as You and becomes just like You. As She adorns Herself She muses, ‘These ornaments – this crown, these earrings and this garland of forest flowers – are just right for romancing with Rādhā.’ She casts aside ladies’ ornaments, and instead adorns Herself as a male lover and looks just like You. Then, after transforming into Mādhava, She gazes with wonderment upon Rādhā’s ornaments. In this way, She passes Her separation from You.”

VERSE 6

*tvaritam upaiti na katham abhisāram harir iti vadati sakhim anuvāram
nātha hare! sīdati... (5)*

“She keeps asking Her companion, ‘Sakhī, why is Hari taking so long to come for Our rendezvous?’”

Commentary

The sakhī informs Kṛṣṇa, “Sometimes She comes to me and asks repeatedly, ‘Why isn’t Hari hurrying to meet Me here in the saṅketa arbor?’”

VERSE 7

*śliṣyati cumbati jaladhara-kalpam
harir upagata iti timiram analpam
nātha hare! sīdati... (6)*

“She embraces and kisses the darkness, dense like rainclouds, thinking, ‘Oh, Hari has come.’”

Commentary

“Upon spying the dense darkness, blackish as a cloud about to burst, She thinks, ‘Hari, You have come.’ Then She embraces that lovely darkness to Her breast and kisses it.”

VERSE 8

*bhavati vilambini vilagita-lajjā vilapati roditi vāsakasajjā
nātha hare! sīdati... (7)*

“Realizing that You are late, She loses all shame and unabashedly weeps as She waits for You.”

Commentary

When She regains external consciousness, She realizes, “This is just the dense darkness. It is not Hari that I have been embracing and kissing.” Embarrassed at Her behavior, She weeps. Her deranged condition is such that She takes the dark night for Her dark-complected sweetheart. Upon understanding Her mistake, She laments, “Why has My dear love not come yet?”

Rādhā is portrayed here as vāsakasajjā nāyikā – the heroine who arrives at the appointed kuñja and waits for her hero with intense eagerness. She personally decorates the love bower, prepares a flower bed and sends messengers to the hero.

VERSE 9

*śrī-jayadeva-kaveri idam uditam rasika-janaṁ tanutām ati-muditam
nātha hare! sīdati... (8)*

May this song, composed by the poet Jayadeva, awaken unending rapture in the hearts of those who are expert in relishing rasa.

Commentary

Śrī Jayadeva says, “A sakhī has sung about Rādhā’s pitiful condition. May her words bestow bliss upon the expert devotees whose hearts are infused with śṛṅgāra-rasa.”

This Twelfth Song portrays the vipralambha-bhāva of śṛṅgāra-rasa, the mood of separation in the amorous mellow. The alaṅkāra is samuccaya, the hero is śaṭha-nāyaka, duplicitous, and the heroine is a distraught vāsakasajjā-nāyikā.

VERSE 10

vipula-pulaka-pāliḥ sphīta-sītkāram antarjanitajaḍima-kāku-vyākulaṁ vyāharantī tava kitava vidhāyāmanda-kandarpa-cintām rasa-jaladhi-nimagnā dhyāna-lagnā mṛgākṣī

“Rippling in rapture, murmuring indistinct and protracted sounds of pleasure, and stunned from within, the doe-eyed girl is fully agitated by Cupid. Embracing You in meditation, You cheater, She is plunged in the ocean of prema-rasa.”

Commentary

Painting a picture of Rādhā in the madness of love, Her sakhī says, “O cunning cheater! You treacherous rogue! The doe-eyed Rādhikā, absorbed in meditation, sinks into the nectar-ocean of Your binding embrace, feeling You tightly clasping Her to Your chest. Therefore every pore of Her skin is bursting with pleasure. She suddenly draws in Her breath and, as She swoons, coos indistinctly. When the frenzy of Her amorous longings subsides, She sinks into the ocean of ānanda.”

This verse features mālinī chanda and rasavad alaṅkāra.

VERSE 11

aṅgeṣv ābharaṇaṁ karoti bahuśaḥ patre 'pi sañcāriṇi prāptaṁ tvāṁ pariśaṅkate vitanute śayyāṁ ciraṁ dhyāyati ity ākalpa-vikalpa-talpa-racanā-saṅkalpa-līlā-satavyāsaktāpi vinā tvayā vara-tanur naiṣā niśāṁ neṣyati

“The beautiful Rādhā decorates Herself with a profusion of ornaments. Hearing the leaves rustle and thinking You are approaching, She prepares a soft bed and meditates on You in expectation. In this way, She keeps busy – ornamenting Herself, wondering about Your delay, preparing the bed, babbling loving words, and nurturing the conviction that You are on Your way. Still She will not survive the night without You.”

Commentary

Describing the state of mind and erratic behavior of the vāsakasajjā, Her sakhī tells Śrī Kṛṣṇa, “In meditation She enjoys amour with You, but without direct meeting She remains unsatisfied. O Mādhava, in expectation of Your imminent arrival, my most beautiful friend ornaments Her elegant limbs for Your sake. When the leaves rustle in the breeze, She presumes that You are on the way. With the conviction that You will surely come, She prepares a bed of tender leaves. Lost in thoughts of You, sometimes She looks outside to see if You are coming, and when You are late, She feels acute pain and becomes utterly dejected. Thus, although Rādhā remains occupied in all these activities with the firm conviction that You must be on the way, still She is incapable of lasting the night without You.”

Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī has quoted this verse in Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi (13.87) to illustrate autsukya vyabhicāri-bhāva, eagerness, coming from the ardent desire to meet with one’s beloved.

This verse features śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda and samuccaya alankāra.

VERSE 12

kiṁ viśrāmyasi kṛṣṇa-bhogi-bhavane bhāṇḍīra-bhūmī-ruhe bhrātar yāsi na dṛṣṭi-gocaram itaḥ sānanda-nandāspadam rādhāyā vacanam tad adhvaga-mukhān nandāntike gopato govindasya jayanti sāyam atithi-prāśastya-garbhā girāḥ

“When I was a guest in Śrī Rādhā’s home, She said to me, ‘O brother, why are you resting at the foot of this bhāṇḍīra tree? A poisonous black serpent lives here. Get up and go to the delightful home of Nanda Mahārāja, which is visible just before you. Why don’t you go there?’” On hearing Rādhā’s message from the lips of a pilgrim, Kṛṣṇa thanked ‘him’ in such a way that His father Śrī Nanda would not understand the inner meaning of the traveler’s words. May Govinda’s words of appreciation be victorious.

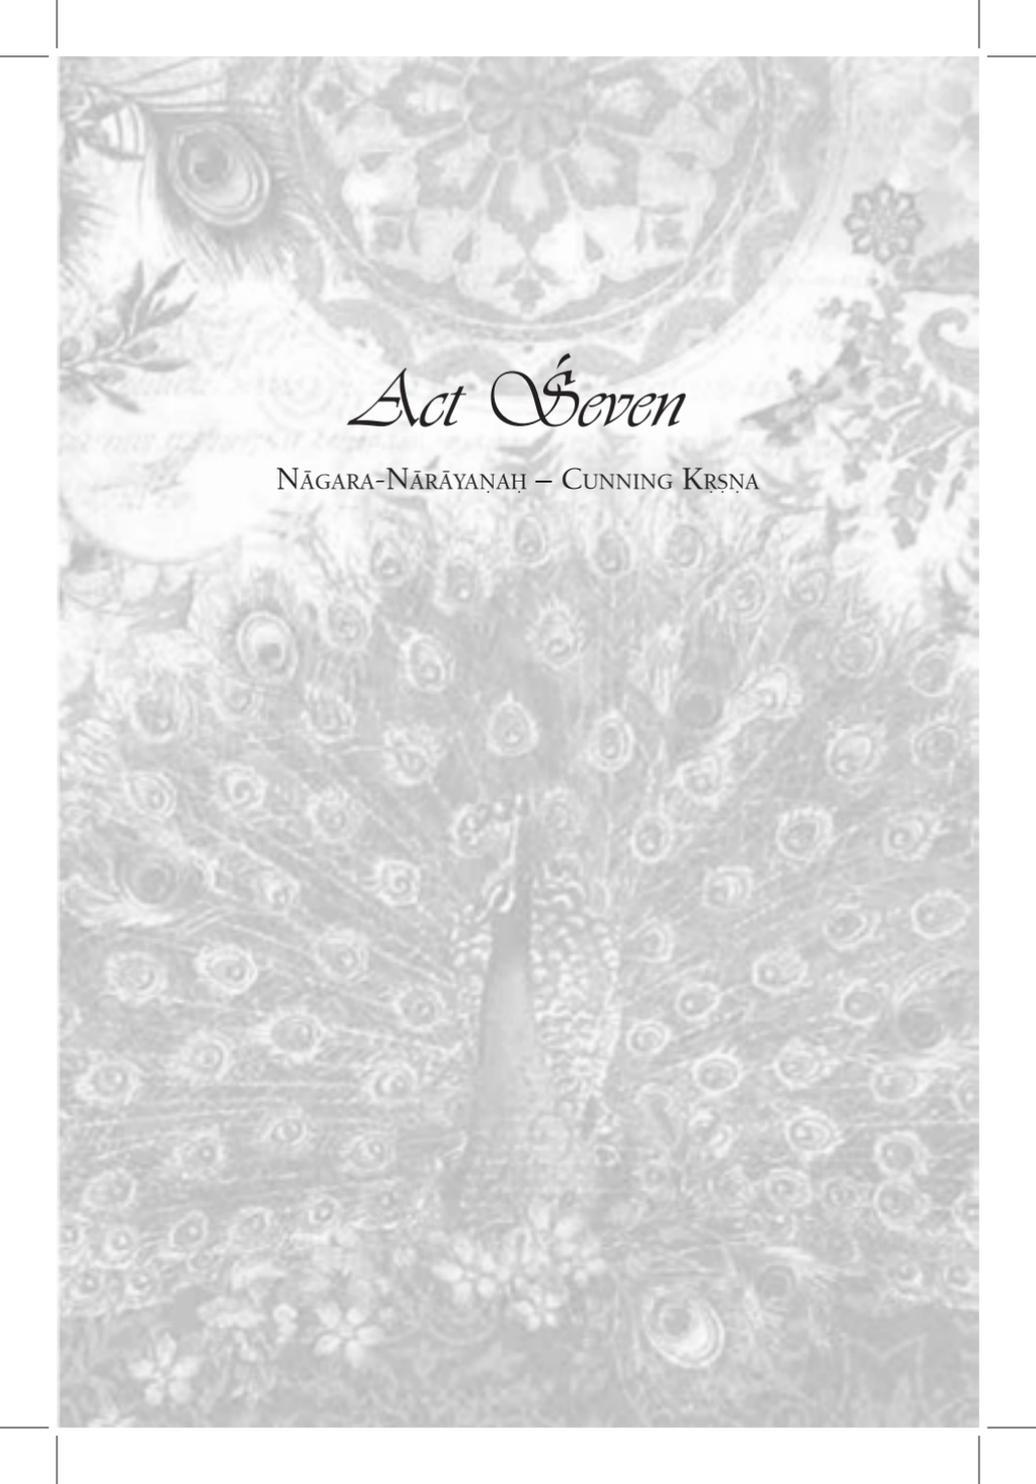

Commentary

As he concludes Act Six, Śrī Jayadeva bestows a blessing in the verse at hand. The context is as follows. When Rādhā saw that Her sakhī was late, She devised a scheme to send another female envoy, who disguised herself as a male pilgrim and approached Kṛṣṇa in the evening twilight. The ‘pilgrim’ relayed to Kṛṣṇa Rādhā’s message, indirectly informing Him about a secret tryst. Śrī Jayadeva says, “May Govinda’s words of thanks to that pilgrim be victorious.”

Concealing His intentions from His father, Śrī Nanda Mahārāja, Kṛṣṇa indicated His agreement by repeating the pilgrim’s message. “O brother, why are you lamenting here beneath this banyan tree which is the home of a black snake? Go to the delightful abode of pleasure. You will see it just a little further ahead.”

THUS ENDS THE BALABODHINI-PRAKĀŚA COMMENTARY ON ACT SIX OF ŚRĪ GĪTA-GOVINDA, ENTITLED DHRĪTA-VAIKUNṬHA, “STUBBORN KṚṢṆA,” WHICH DESCRIBES THE VĀSAKASAJJĀ-NĀYIKĀ,
THE HEROINE WHO PROUDLY DRESSES IN HER BEST FINERY AND PREPARES THE LOVE BOWER WHILE WAITING TO RECEIVE HER LOVER.

Act Seven

NĀGARA-NĀRĀYAṆAH – CUNNING KRṢṆA

Act Seven

NĀGARA-NĀRĀYAṆAH – CUNNING KṚṢṆA

VERSE 1

atrāntare ca kulaṭā-kula-vartma-pātasāñjāta-pātaka iva sphuṭa-lāñchana-śrīḥ vṛndāvanāntaram adīpayad aṁśu-jālair dik-sundarī-vadana-candana-bindur induḥ

Meanwhile, the moon lit the depths of Śrī Vṛndāvana Dhāma with his gentle rays. Appearing in the eastern direction, he was just like a drop of candana on the face of a beautiful newly married maiden. At the same time he bore a blemish for obstructing the paths of adulterous women.

Commentary

Śrī Jayadeva is describing the rising of the full moon which obliterates the reluctance of contrary heroines. The poet says, “When Śrī Rādhā was burning in separation from Kṛṣṇa, the rays of the full moon illuminated the Vṛndāvana forest. The moon had decorated all directions with his effulgence, perfectly ornamenting the beautiful eastern horizon, Pūrva-diśā, like a spot of sandalwood paste adorning the forehead of a lovely woman.”

Pātaka iva – A person who obstructs the path of others is considered sinful. Besides adorning the eastern horizon, the moon is also bearing the mark of his own ill-fame accrued as the sinful reaction for exposing the furtive journeys of women of ill repute. Unchaste women only have an opportunity to meet with their lovers at night. The moonlight creates an obstacle by jeopardizing the secrecy of their movements. The reaction to this sin is evident from the moon's deer-shaped mark. From one perspective, the moon is considered to be stained by infamy, and from another, it is the ornament of the open directions.

There is another explanation behind the moon's deer-shaped blemish. When the moon was abetting Indra's illicit meeting with Ahalyā, the wife of Gautama Ṛṣi, the sage angrily threw his deer-skin āsana at the moon, which left a mark, and cursed him with kṣaya-roga, the painful disease of decreasing for 15 days every month.

This verse includes rūpaka and utprekṣā alaṅkāras. The meter is vasanta-tilakā.

VERSE 2

prasarati śasadhara-bimbe vihita-vilambe ca mādhave vidhurā viracita-vividha-vilāpaṁ sā paritāpaṁ cakāroccaiḥ

Translation

As the moon rose in the sky and Mādhava was delaying, Rādhā loudly uttered a string of lamentations, being severely aggrieved in Her loneliness.

As the moon continued to rise, Rādhā lost all hope that Mādhava would come, and Her anguish increased. She felt completely helpless and began to weep loudly in great distress. The moon was shining everywhere but still Mādhava had not arrived. In utter despair, Rādhā burst into tears.

This verse is in āryā chanda.

 Song Thirteen

The musical mode is mālava rāga. The rhythm is yati tāla.

VERSE 3

kathita-samaye 'pi harir ahaha na yayau vanam mama viphalam idam amalam api rūpa-yauvanam (1)

yāmi he! kam iha śaraṇam sakhī-jana-vacana-vañcitā (refrain)

“Hari is late for Our forest rendezvous. Alas, alas! My pristine youthful beauty is going to waste.

“I have been deceived by My own sakhīs. Oh, who will give Me shelter now?” (refrain)

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā laments as She burns in the agony of separation, “Sakhī, you told Me, ‘Just wait here. I will bring Him immediately.’ But even you have betrayed Me. You said that you would return to the saṅketa-kuṅja before moonrise, but the moon has already fully risen. I was misled by your false words of reassurance. Now My youthful beauty, so exquisite and flawless, seems utterly worthless. If it had any value, He would have come by now.”

The word ahaha (Alas! Alas!) indicates Rādhā’s deep sorrow. The word he (Oh!) is used in addressing someone.

VERSE 4

*yad-anugamanāya niśi gahanam api śīlitam tena mama hṛdayam idam asamaśara-kīlitam
yāmi he! kam iha... (2)*

“Alas! I entered deep into the forest on this dark night in search of Him – He who is piercing My heart with the shafts of love. Oh, who else will give Me shelter now?”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā says, “He whom I came to meet in this secluded jungle has driven the stake of lust into My heart. Or perhaps a seed mantra of amorous desire has pinned Me down in such a way that I have lost all sense of where I belong.”

The word api implies, “I had never done such a thing before.”

VERSE 5

*mama maraṇam eva varam ati-vitatha-keṭanā kim iha viṣahāmi virahānalam acetanā
yāmi he! kam iha... (3)*

“What is the use of preserving this body any longer? It is better to die. How can I maintain My equilibrium with this intolerable fire of separation?”

Commentary

“I am ruined! Tonight I sit deep in the forest in this terrifying darkness, hoping to meet My lover. I am so unsettled by His absence that I am losing My mind. Where can I go? It is better to die. How much agony can I tolerate? All My hopes have been dashed. My body is worthless, otherwise Hari would not neglect Me in this way. Believing My sakhī, I dared to come here, but all My endeavors have gone in vain. It is useless to continue living.”

VERSE 6

*mām ahaha vidhurayati madhura-madhu-yāminī kāpi harim anubhavati kṛta-sukṛta-kāminī
yāmi he! kam iha... (4)*

“Oh, I am cursed! This sweet spring night embitters My loneliness. Certainly some fortunate damsel, reaping the fruit of her piety, is now basking in Hari’s arms.”

Commentary

Expressing the terrible pain in the core of Her heart, Rādhā says, “These rasa-laden spring nights bear the highest joy, but for Me they are a torture. While I am suffering alone here, some fortunate maiden is savoring the ambrosia of enjoying amour with Hari. He did not come to Me as promised because that seductress has trapped Him in the ropes of her love as He revels in their amorous play. How I must be lacking in pious credits!”

In the Viśvakoṣa dictionary vidhura is defined as vikalatā, agitation.

VERSE 7

ahaha kalayāmi valayādi-maṇi-bhūṣaṇam hari-viraha-dahana-vahanena bahu-dūṣaṇam
yāmi he! kam iha... (5)

“Alas, alas! Every bangle and jewel I wear is feeding the fire of separation from Hari and inflicting unlimited pain. Therefore they are also implicated.”

Commentary

“O sakhī, you have sorely deceived Me. I adorned Myself with a profusion of flowers, freshly-sprouted leaves and jeweled ornaments. But now, they all seem like flames in the fire of separation from Hari, a fire fueled with the pain of unfulfilled desire. They are no longer ornaments; rather, they have become a curse, and I don’t care for them anymore as they have turned traitor. The only reward for a ladylove’s beauty and attire is her sweetheart’s appreciative glance. Her ornaments are precious to her only if they make someone cast a loving look her way.”

VERSE 8

*kusuma-sukumāra-tanum atanu-śara-līlayā srag api hṛdi hanti mām ati-viśama-śīlayā
yāmi he! kam iha... (6)*

“Even this vana-mālā on My breast, as if an arrow of Kāma, vehemently rips the tender flower of My heart.”

Commentary

“O My beloved! What to speak of My other ornaments, the vana-mālā I wear over My heart for Your pleasure turns into a weapon of Kāmadeva and ravages My very being. It jabs My heart with the arrow of erotic desire, attacking Me so fiercely that the delicate flower of My body is unable to endure it. An ordinary kind of pain is experienced when one is severely wounded by arrows, but even more intolerable is the agony inflicted in a heart ravaged by the arrows of kāma.”

VERSE 9

*aham iha nivasāmi na gaṇita-vana-vetasā smarati madhusūdano mām api na cetasā
yāmi he! kam iha... (7)*

“Fearlessly I wait for Him in this dense bamboo forest. But Madhusūdana does not remember Me even for a moment.”

Commentary

In great humility Śrī Rādhā says, “Believing in My sakhī’s words I entered this eerie forest to meet with Madhusūdana, but He is indifferent to Me. He is extremely fickle in His affection. How amazing it is that I am fearlessly waiting here for someone who does not remember Me even for an instant. Alas, this is simply My misfortune.”

VERSE 10

hari-caraṇa-śaraṇa-jayadeva-kavi-bhārātī vasatu hṛdī yuvatir iva komala-kalāvātī
yāmi he! kam iha... (8)

May this song of Śrī Jayadeva, who is unconditionally surrendered at the lotus feet of Śrī Hari, always grace the hearts of rasika devotees like a charming and tender maiden skilled in all the arts.

Commentary

Śrī Jayadeva proclaims the lotus feet of Śrī Kṛṣṇa as his sole protector. His poem is adorned with tender words and lyrical expressions. Just as a beautiful, soft-natured damsel talented in the six amorous arts [such as decorating with ornaments and cosmetics], always fills the heart of her hero with unlimited joy, may this song attain a position in the hearts of the devotees. This is the poet's cherished desire.

VERSE 11

tat kim kām api kāmīnīm abhisṛtaḥ kim vā kalā-kelibhir baddho bandhubhir andhakāriṇi vanābhyarṇe kim udhrāmyati kāntaḥ klānta-manā manāg api pathi prasthātum evākṣamaḥ saṅketī-kṛta-māñju-vāñjula-latā-kuñje 'pi yan nāgataḥ

“Why has My dearest prāṇa-vallabha not come to this charming vine-covered bower where We agreed to meet? Has He gone in pursuit of another alluring maiden? Have His gopa friends detained Him with their joyful pranks? Has He lost His way in the dark forest? Or has My lover become exhausted at heart and thus unable to take another step?”

Commentary

Pondering the possible reasons why Śrī Kṛṣṇa has not come to the saṅketa-sthala, virahiṇī Rādhikā is beset with doubts. “I wonder why He has not come.” Śrī Rādhā reveals Her suspicions: “This charming vetasa-latā thicket is the place where We agreed to meet, so what could have happened to Him? Why is He not here? Did He go off with another girl? But how can He love someone else more than Me? How can it be possible that He has left Me waiting in such a beautiful place to enjoy with another? Did His skillful friends, engrossed in their sports, detain Him in their woodland playground, preventing Him from coming here? This is also not feasible – how could He forget the time for abhisāra? It seems that the crest jewel of cunning tricksters cannot find Me in this darkness; He may still be searching for Me all over. But He has met Me in this forest many times before. The path is well known to Him, so how could He forget the way? This is impossible. Could He be languishing so much in separation that He is unable to walk? Perhaps He is worrying, ‘How will Rādhā feel after the moon has risen?’ and becoming afflicted with the distress of separation, He is unable to make His way here.”

This verse features śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda and the alankāra is saṁśaya (doubt).

VERSE 12

athāgatām mādhavam antareṇa sakhīm iyaṁ vīkṣya viśāda-mūkām viśaṅkamānā ramitaṁ kayāpi janārdanaṁ dṛṣṭavad etad āha

When Rādhā saw Her companion return without Mādhava, Her heart sank. Silently grieving, She suspected Janārdana's fresh dalliance with another captivating maiden and spoke to Her friend as if having witnessed His infidelity.

Commentary

Rādhā was pondering over the many possible reasons for Kṛṣṇa's not coming to the trysting place. When She saw Her friend return without Him, Her emotions reached the peak for a vipralabdhā nāyikā, a disappointed mistress whose lover has not kept their appointment. Rādhā was rendered speechless by the intensity of Her anguish and Her friend also remained silent in a state of despair. Rādhā presumed, "She is silent and disheartened because she has seen Vrajendra-nandana romancing with another girl. That's why she is not saying anything." Rādhā burst out crying, "Doesn't Janārdana mean 'who wants to inflict pain upon others?' This is why He is tormenting Me."

Vipralabdhā nāyikā – Impelled by ever increasing passion, the ladylove arrives first at the prearranged meeting place and sends a messenger to her hero. However, by the will of providence the hero does not show up and the time for meeting passes. At this point, the heroine becomes a vipralabdhā nāyikā, who, in her disappointment, anxiously laments, cries constantly, sighs deeply and faints.

The meter of this verse is upendra-vajrā.

❧ Song Fourteen ❧

The musical mode is vasanta rāga. The rhythm is yati tāla.

VERSE 13

smara-samarocita-viracita-veśā
dalita-kusuma-dara-vilulita-keśā (1)

kāpi madhuripuṇā vilasati yuvatir adhika-guṇā (refrain)

“Sakhi, beautifully dressed and ornamented, she is appropriately attired for the battle of love. As absorption in anaṅga-rasa overtakes her, her braid opens and the flowers falling from her disheveled tresses are crushed.

“Some lovely damsel, more qualified than Myself, is blissfully reveling with Madhuripu.” (refrain)

Commentary

With great apprehension, Rādhā says, “O sakhī! Some enticing beauty, dressed for amorous combat (kāma-saṅgrāma), is sporting with Madhuripu. In the course of her love games, her tightly bound braid came apart and now her loose tresses are swaying freely. The flowers that were woven in her hair have cascaded down.”

Madhuripu – “Kṛṣṇa is the enemy of mādhurya. He does not approve of sweetness. Therefore He has neglected Me to woo another maiden.”

Yuvatir adhika-guṇā – “This lovely vraja-gopī is more qualified than I.” But that is impossible. The suggested meaning is, “How amazing it is that a less qualified girl is enjoying amour with Him.” This description alludes to viparīta-rati, an intimate encounter in which the heroine assumes the dominant role.

Smara-samara – Conjugal love has been called smara-samara, an erotic battle. Their love making is such an intense scuffle that the heroine’s braid opens and the flowers woven therein cascade down and scatter.

In this aṣṭapadī and the next one, Rādhā is in citra-jalpa-bhāva. In the delirium of separation, She engages in mad, emotional talks, containing veiled anger, intense love, and great longing within the heart.

VERSE 14

hari-parirambhaṇa-valita-vikārā kuca-kalaśopari taralita-hārā
kāpi madhuripuṇā... (2)

“Enchanted by Hari’s deep embraces, she exhibits the symptoms of Eros – her hairs bristle in rapture, and the necklace on her waterpot-like breasts swings to and fro.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā is imagining the behavior of that other ladylove. Painting a vivid picture of her actions, She says, “Due to Hari’s embrace, that damsel must be feeling the upsurge of the symptoms of Eros. Her hairs must be standing on end and her necklace must be swinging upon her full, raised breasts.” When a maiden takes the active role in lovemaking, her necklace trembles. This only happens during viparīta-rati, when the heroine prevails over her hero.

VERSE 15

vicalad-alaka-lalitānana-candrā
tad-adhara-pāna-rabhasa-kṛta-tandrā
kāpi madhuripuṇā... (3)

“Straying curls set off the beauty of her moon-like face and her eyes are blissfully closed from zealously drinking the nectar of His lips.”

Commentary

“The moon-like face of that charming girl is even more beautiful with her curling locks bouncing about. As she makes love with Śrī Kṛṣṇa, she quaffs the ambrosia of His lips. Plunged in the joy of union, she keeps her eyes closed, feigning sleep.”

Verse 16

*cañcala-kunḍala-lalita-kapolā mukharita-rasana-jaghana-gati-lolā
kāpi madhuripuṇā... (4)*

“The swinging of her earrings enhances the loveliness of her cheeks. The tiny bells on the jeweled sash elegantly adorning her waist tinkle sweetly with the swaying of her hips.”

Commentary

“As she plays love’s game, her earrings naturally swing, rendering her cheeks more charming. The restless bells on the sash around her waist peal repeatedly with the constant moving of her hips.”

VERSE 17

*dayita-vilokita-lajjita-hasitā bahu-vidha-kūjita-rati-rasa-rasitā
kāpi madhuripuṇā... (5)*

“The glances of her beloved incite her bashful laughter. Tasting the ambrosia of love, she murmurs like a cuckoo or a warbling kalahaṃsa, voicing her pleasure at the sudden surge of euphoria.”

Commentary

Being pleased, her beloved Śrī Kṛṣṇa gazes upon her. She lowers her face shyly and giggles softly. As she breathes heavily in the intensity of her rapture, she murmurs many different types of sweet sounds like the trills of the cuckoo or the kalahansa.

VERSE 18

vipula-pulaka-pṛthu-vepathu-bhaṅgā śvasita-nimilita-vikasad-anaṅgā
kāpi madhuripuṅā... (6)

“She thrills with the ecstasies of Cupid, the pores of her skin swelling in delight and her body shivering in waves of pleasure. She closes her eyes and sighs deep, revealing her profound absorption in amorous rapture.”

Commentary

“As they make love her kāma gradually increases in intensity. The pores of her skin swell in delight, she trembles, her voice falters and she excitedly heaves deep sighs. She closes her eyes in the climax of her rapture.”

Vepathu-bhaṅgā – In this verse, horripilation and trembling have been compared to waves. “Just like the billows in the ocean, wave upon wave of horripilation and trembling swell in her body.”

VERSE 19

śrama-jala-kaṇa-bhara-subhaga-śarīrā paripatitorasi rati-raṇa-dhīrā
kāpi madhuripuṅā... (7)

“This impassioned maiden, a connoisseur of amorous love, looks even more attractive sparkling with droplets of perspiration from her love play. She is expert in exhibiting great fortitude in amorous combat. How beautiful she is when she finally collapses upon her lover's chest, thoroughly exhausted from the tussle of lovemaking.”

Commentary

“Absorbed in sensual enjoyment she is now completely exhausted. How splendidly her lotus face glistens, drenched with drops of perspiration from love's labor! And how astonishingly beautiful she looks having fallen upon Śrī Kṛṣṇa's chest, she who is thoroughly adept in delightful amorous warfare.”

VERSE 20

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇita-hari-ramitam kali-kaluṣaṁ janayatu pariśamitam
kāpi madhuripuṇā... (8)*

May Śrī Jayadeva's description of Hari's love play subdue the ill-effects of the age of Kali and pacify the lusty desires of all.

Commentary

The Fourteenth Song of Śrī Gīta-govinda, entitled Hari-ramita-campaka-śekhara, “Hari who Enjoys with the Best Golden Campaka Flower,” describes viparīta-rati. Although the current era (Kali-yuga) is highly contaminating, Hari's amorous dalliances depicted here are extremely pure. May this poem cleanse every lusty desire from the hearts of all those who recite and hear it.

VERSE 21

viraha-pāṇḍu-murāri-mukhāmbujadyutir ayaṁ tīrayann api vedanām vidhur atīva tanoti mano-bhuvāḥ suhṛd aye hṛdaye madana-vyathām

“Priya sakhī, O dear friend! The fading moon, resembling Murārī’s lotus face now pale in My absence, briefly diminishes My anguish. But then again, being the friend of Kāmadeva, it increases the burning of amorous desires in My heart.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā lamented throughout the night. Seeing the moon moving towards Mount Asta on the western horizon, She remembered Kṛṣṇa’s previous affection for Her and told Her dear friend, “O sakhī, how painful it is that the moon increases the distress of jilted lovers. With the setting of the moon the burning of amorous desires within Me is now cooling down. The moon’s wan complexion stirs recollections of Murārī’s lotus face. How listless He must have become away from Me.” Then, Her thoughts taking a different direction, She said, “Hari has deserted Me and is amusing Himself with another beloved. Therefore His luster, now pale like the setting moon, deepens the crevice of pain in My heart.”

❀ Song Fifteen ❀

The musical mode is gurjarī rāga. The rhythm is ekatālī tāla.

In this song that beautiful enchantress engrossed in dallying with Śrī Kṛṣṇa on the bank of the Yamunā has been portrayed as svādhīna-bhartṛkā, the mistress who controls her lover.

VERSE 22

samudīta-madane ramaṇī-vadane cumbana-valitādhare mṛgamada-tilakaṁ likhati sa-pulakaṁ mṛgam iva rajanī-kare (1)

ramate yamunā-pulina-vane
vijayī murārīr adhunā (refrain)

“This enchanting maiden, every pore of her body swelling in rapture, is the very embodiment of everything that excites amorous desire. With kastūrī-tilaka Murārī is drawing the mark of a deer on the moon of her face. His hairs bristling in exhilaration, He kisses her.

“Even now, Madhuripu, invincible in love battle, is romancing with another maiden in the woods along the Yamunā’s bank.” (refrain)

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā, in great distress, fantasizes about Her imaginary rival. Actually, sitting alone She is remembering Her own previous pastimes with Śrī Kṛṣṇa and describing what She sees through the eyes of Her bhāva. Rādhā envisions a wonderful heroine who is thinking, “Madhuripu has defeated me in this love battle and now He is celebrating the vijaya-utsava, His victory festival, in the nikuṅja.”

Śrī Rādhā continues, “In a grove adjoining the Yamunā’s sandy bank, Kṛṣṇa is amusing Himself by artistically decorating that alluring coquette. As He applies deer-musk tilaka upon her lotus face, every pore of her body swells with rapture. Wanting to kiss her, Murāri has drawn her face close to His. This fully arouses His desire, and now His hairs also are standing on end. Unable to contain His feelings, He encounters great difficulty in painting her tilaka, which has ended up crooked. Now she is beautiful like the moon with its deer mark. Smudged with that tilaka, Kṛṣṇa's lips tell the story of His having kissed her all over her face.”

VERSE 23

*ghana-caya-rucire racayati cikure taralita-taruṇānane kurubaka-kusumaṁ capalā-susamaṁ rati-pati-mṛga-kānane
ramate yamunā-pulina vane... (2)*

“That young maiden’s charming locks are a park where Madana, the god of love, frolics like a deer. He is now arranging kurubaka blossoms in her tresses, which resemble a mass of dark rainclouds and from which her fresh, tender face always dazzles forth.”

Commentary

Commenting on Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s playfully decorating His beloved, Śrī Rādhā says to Her sakhī, “Not only has He drawn tilaka upon her forehead, He has also adorned her hair with kanera flowers. Her thick hair is very black, soft and curly, resembling a mass of rainclouds or a dense forest wherein Kāmadeva, like a deer, can wander without fear. Kurubaka flowers arranged by Śrī Hari flash through her hair like streaks of lightning. Just the sight of these tresses makes the hearts of young men restless.”

VERSE 24

*ghaṭayati sugthane kuca-yuga-gagane mṛgamada-ruci-rūṣite maṇi-saram amalaṁ tāraka-pāṭalaṁ nakha-pada-śaṣi-bhūṣite
ramate yamunā-pulina vane... (3)*

“Her plump breasts smeared thick with black kastūrī powder resemble the night sky. Upon that dark firmament He lays an enchanting pearl necklace shimmering like a myriad of stars, and embellishes it with the half-moon marks of His fingernails.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā is saying, “That enchantress is blessed with wondrous hair and large round breasts. Hari lays a pearl necklace on her bosom, as if placing a multitude of stars upon the sky of that ladylove’s breasts, decorated with half-moons etched by His fingernails.” There is a charming and multifaceted similarity between the sky and her two breasts:

Kuca-yuga-gagane – “As the sky is expansive, so are her breasts.”

Sughane – “That heroine’s firm breasts touch each other in the middle, appearing like the sky full of beautiful, dense clouds.”

Mṛgamada-ruci-rūṣite – “Droplets of perspiration are trickling down her breasts from the fatigue of tumultuous loving. They are dried by smearing kastūrī powder on them. Kastūrī, like the night sky, is also bluish-black.”

Tāraka-pāṭalam nakha-pada-śaṣi-bhūṣite – “In the night sky of her breasts, her pearl necklace appears like a constellation of twinkling stars and the impressions left by the tips of Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s fingernails are as radiant as half-moons in that night sky.”

All these comparisons taken together comprise a delightful use of imagery. Her tilaka is a deer, her forehead is the moon and her luxuriant hair is a safe and peaceful forest. The kurubaka flowers are flashes of lightning and her breasts are the sky, enhanced by the moon and stars in the form of nail-marks and tiny pearls.

VERSE 25

*jīta-bisa-śakale mṛdu-bhuja-yugale kara-tala-nalinī-dale marakata-valayaṃ madhukara-nicayaṃ vitarati hima-śītale
ramate yamunā-pulina vane... (4)*

“Her arms, more delicate than lotus stems, are beautified by the tender lotus petals of her hands, cool like snow. Over these petal-like hands He slips sapphire-studded bangles looking like swarms of bumblebees.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā is saying, “The arms of that fortunate maiden defeat the softness of lotus stems. Her hands are fair like snow and her cool palms red as lotus flowers. Just as the sight of black bumblebees upon the petals of a red lotus is very pleasing, similarly her lotus-petal hands look delightful as Murāri adorns them with bangles encrusted with blue sapphires that resemble a line of black bumblebees hovering around her hands.”

Hima-śītale – “The arms of His beloved have become as cool as snow, the heat of her amorous desires having been relieved by His touch.” Coolness can also indicate this absence of desire, which is rekindled when her cool hands receive those bracelets.

VERSE 26

*rati-gr̥ha-jaghane vipulāpaghane manasija-kanakāsane mañimaya-rasaṇaṁ toraṇa-hasaṇaṁ vikirati kṛta-vāsane
ramate yamunā-pulina vane... (5)*

“The hips of that enthralling beauty are as voluptuous, fragrant and broad as the golden throne of Kāmadeva. He is decorating her hips – the shrine of Eros – with a gem-studded sash, as if He were embellishing the arched doorway to that shrine with an auspicious festoon.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā is saying, “The hips of that inviting damsel embody the very abode of amorous amusement. Her beautiful thighs, round and full, are the shining pillars supporting the golden throne of the god of love. The very sight of them awakens intense hankering for erotic pleasure in Murāri’s heart.”

Kṛta-vāsanam – “Heroines perfume their limbs with a special kind of fragrant smoke that makes their lovers submissive. That bewitching beauty has perfumed her hips with this scent and brought Keśava under her control.”

Kanakāsane – ‘The golden throne of Kāmadeva.’ The word kanaka, meaning ‘gold,’ also refers to the poisonous herb, dhatūrā, which is very dear to Śaṅkarajī. Because this herb has an intoxicating effect, the word kanaka has been used to indicate the incitement of desire.

Maṇimaya-rasanam toraṇa-hasanam – Whenever a king ascends to the throne, the principal arched gateway to the palace is decorated with vandana-vāra, an auspicious festoon of leaves and flowers. Here, Śrī Kṛṣṇa decorates His beloved with vandana-vāra, a jeweled waistbelt, in honor of King Kāmadeva’s ascension to the golden throne of her fair thighs.

Vikirati – Śrī Kṛṣṇa trembles with amorous desire at the touch of her thighs. Thus He is not able to properly dress her with the maṇimaya-mekhalā, that jeweled waistbelt. Still, He tries. His futile attempt triggers the recollection of one special lilā.

VERSE 27

carāṇa-kisalaye kamalā-nilaye nakha-maṇi-gaṇa-pūjite bahir-apavaṇam yāvaka-bharanam janayati hṛdī yojite
ramate yamunā-pulina vane... (6)

“The tender buds of her feet glow and her toenails shimmer like precious jewels. He places these feet upon His chest, honoring the residence of Goddess Lakṣmī, and carefully colors them with enthralling red yāvaka-rasa.”

Commentary

Describing Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s new love play, Śrī Rādhā says, “The lotus feet of that greatly fortunate maiden are the very abode of Lakṣmī. They are reddish like soft, fresh flower petals and her toenails shine like precious jewels. Sitting down, He embraces them to His heart. Lakṣmī eternally resides upon His chest, which is now decorated with an array of gems and the nail marks made by that enthralling ladylove. Kṛṣṇa is applying yāvaka footlac with His own lotus hands on her naturally reddish feet and adorning them with ornaments, thereby carefully protecting them.”

The adjectival phrase nakha-maṇi-gaṇa-pūjita, worship of and worship with the gem-like toenails, is applicable to both Śrī Kṛṣṇa and His sweetheart.

VERSE 28

*ramayati subhṛṣaṁ kām api sudṛṣaṁ khala-haladhara-sodare kim aphalam avasaṁ ciraṁ iha virasaṁ vada sakhi viṭapodare
ramate yamunā-pulina vane... (7)*

“That wicked brother of Haladhara is an indiscriminate, ill-mannered rogue. It is sure that He is tightly embracing and sharing intimacies with that beautiful-eyed girl. So sakhī, tell Me how long shall I continue pining in this bower of flowering vines without any pleasure?”

Commentary

After waiting for a long time, Śrī Rādhā becomes hopeless and tells Her friend, “Sakhī, say something. Break your silence. What is the use of waiting for so long in a wild thicket in the forest?”

Khala-haladhara-sodare – Haladhara, a name of Balarāma, means ‘He who wields a plough.’ Rādhārānī refers to His extremely mischievous younger brother as such because, just like a farmer, Śrī Kṛṣṇa is base, rustic and unsophisticated.

“Neglecting and cheating Me, He is amusing Himself with that lovely-eyed beauty. Oh, how can it be that she has such exquisite eyes? She is simply an uncouth villager, just like Him. What connection do I have with Him? I spent the whole night sitting in this wild jungle because I trusted Him. Just see how He has neglected Me! Should I allow Myself to be consumed by remorse in this kuñja any longer? Should I continue to search for Him? What recourse do I have? Sakhī, how can I tolerate this? He told Me that He would come, but He is fully occupied dallying with another sweetheart.”

The heroine of this Fifteenth Song is svādhīna-bhartṛkā-nāyikā. Śrī Kṛṣṇa cannot leave her because He is captivated by her qualities. This is the root cause of His neglect towards Rādhā.

VERSE 29

*iha rasa-bhaṇane kṛta-hari-guṇane madhuripu-pada-sevake kali-yuga-caritaṁ na vasatu duritaṁ kavi-nṛpa-jayadevake
ramate yamunā-pulina vane... (8)*

Madhuripu’s servant, the king of bards Jayadeva, glorifies Hari’s romantic śṛṅgāra-rasa pastimes. May his song check the ill effects of Kali-yuga.

Commentary

In the ecstasy of writing this song, Śrī Jayadeva considers himself the best among all the servants of Madhuripu and prays that the disgraceful characteristics prevalent in this present age of quarrel and hypocrisy may never enter those who hear this poem. The word rasa-bhaṇane means ‘one who speaks of amour in a way that is full of rasa.’ Hari-guṇane refers to Kāvīrāja Jayadeva as ‘one who repeats the topics of Śrī Hari.’ All of the poet’s statements in this song are uddīpana, excitants of rasa. When this rasa appears, the dark tendencies aroused by the influence of Kali-yuga cannot enter the heart.

This song, entitled Hari-rasa-manmatha-tilaka, “Hari Wearing Irresistible Kandarpa Tilaka that Maddens all Women,” has been called the king of all songs. It is sung in druta-tāla and druta-laya. The rāga is malhāra.

VERSE 30

nāyātaḥ sakhi nirdayo yadi śaṭhas tvaṁ dūti kiṁ dūyase svacchandaṁ bahu-vallabhaḥ sa ramate kiṁ tatra te dūṣaṇam paśyādyā priya-saṅgamāya dayitasyākṛṣyamāṇaṁ guṇair utkaṅṭhārti-bharād iva sphuṭad idaṁ cetaḥ svayam yāsyati

“My dear Rādhā, He did not come.”

“O My messenger friend, if that cruel-hearted, two-faced cheater did not come, why are you upset?”

“That libertine delights in loving many women.”

“Is that your fault? Look! Attracted by My beloved’s virtues and broken by the burden of longing for Him, My heart flees to meet Him of its own accord.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā continued to express Her anxious longing in the great distress of separation. When Śrī Kṛṣṇa failed to come, Her despondent-faced messenger told Rādhā, “My dear friend Rādhā, I summoned that Casanova many times, but He is so cruel that He did not come.” Śrī Rādhā replied, “He dūti, O My dear messenger friend, if that double-dealing rogue has not come, how is that your fault? Why are you so upset? You have nicely done your duty as a messenger.” The dūti replied, “I am upset because I could not bring Him. He has numerous beloveds and is independent. He enjoys whenever and wherever He wants.” Śrī Rādhā again asked, “So why are you to blame? Now look here. My heart is forcibly attracted by His qualities and it is being torn apart by the intolerable agony of not being able to meet with Him, so My devastated prāṇa will surely leave and reach Him on its own.”

What is the nature of Rādhā’s heart? It is spontaneously attracted by Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s qualities. The phrase utkaṅṭhārti-bharād means, “My heart is breaking apart under the painful burden of the unfulfilled desire to meet with My beloved. Although I try to check My heart, it will not listen; it will certainly reach Him.” Alternatively, “Look, sakhī, it is not possible for Me to be with My beloved at this time since He is tied up with another alluring beauty. Nevertheless, My eagerness is increasing by the moment.”

Śrī Rādhā’s words may also be understood in the following sense. “This heart has previously experienced erotic joy with Hari, so it will definitely join Him. This is no fault of yours and no fault of Mine. That charming maiden is also not to be blamed. Providence has surely become adverse to Me.”

There is yet a further meaning: “Thus, My heart must go to Him and, after attaining release, it will cease all activity.”

As Śrī Rādhā sang of Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s qualities in a state of calm despondency (śānta-nirveda), She attained daśamī-daśā, the tenth and final condition of separation in which She desires Her own death. That charming maiden who is deriving happiness from Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s qualities experiences not even the slightest distress. And Śrī Rādhā, on the other hand, is thrown into extreme despondency, feeling great misery in His absence.

The first half of this verse is a dialogue between Śrī Rādhā and Her sakhī. Śrī Rādhā has the impression that this dūtī went to summon Śrī Kṛṣṇa on Her behalf, and now she has returned after making love with Him herself. Therefore She accuses Kṛṣṇa of being a hard-hearted, two-faced cheater. “What an uncouth rustic He is. He does not even know the difference between a nāyikā and a dūtī.”

In this verse the meter is vikrīḍita and the alāṅkāra is called kāvyaṅga.

❀ Song Sixteen ❀

The musical mode is deśavarāḍī rāga. The rhythm is rūpaka tāla.

VERSE 31

anila-tarala-kuvalaya-nayanena tapati na sā kisalaya-śayanena (1)

sakhi! yā ramitā vanamālinā (refrain)

“That superior maiden is delighted by Keśava, whose eyes are as restless as a lotus flower swaying in the wind. As she reclines with Him upon the couch of fresh, tender leaves, it is unlikely that she feels even the slightest distress.

“Friend, Vanamālī is amusing Himself with that inviting maiden.” (refrain)

Commentary

In this song Śrī Rādhā’s jealousy has become even more inflamed. She tells Her friend, “O sakhi! Kṛṣṇa is Vanamālī, garlanded with the flowers of the forest. His eyes are as restless as a blue lotus moving in the southern breeze. He is giving amorous pleasure to that most qualified damsel, who is in turn delighting Him. So, why would she be scorched like Me, even while I recline on a bed of fresh leaves? I am the only one who knows how a heart can be ravaged.” Here Śrī Rādhā has praised Śrī Kṛṣṇa in this verse by describing Him as a courteous and considerate lover.

If Śrī Rādhā’s words are taken as nindāparaka artha, a criticism, the meaning would be, “Immersed in enjoying the splendor of the naturally lush forest, Vanamālī is so distracted that He is actually uninterested in romantic pursuits. His eyes, roving like blue lotuses waving in the wind, merely skim over that gopī, hardly paying Her any heed at all. Reclining on a bed of soft leaves, does that gopikā feel distress because she is unable to induce Him to do more than simply enjoy her only with His eyes? She surely does.” In other words, “Certainly that gopī feels dejected because Vanamālī, whose lotus eyes are restless, is absent-mindedly looking about for another sweetheart.”

VERSE 32

*vikasita-sarasija-lalita-mukhena sphutati na sā manasija-viśikhena
sakhi! yā ramitā... (2)*

“Kandarpa’s deadly shafts can never wound that bewitching beauty enjoyed by Him whose charming face is a fully blossomed lotus flower.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā tells Her sakhī, “Vanamālī’s face shines with romantic expressions like a lotus in full bloom as He gives joy to His sweetheart. How could she know the pain inflicted by the shafts of Madana? That ladylove is certainly not afflicted with the pain of kāma’s arrows as I am, My heart devastated in separation.” This is a stuti-paraka vyākhyā – the commentator is praising Vanamālī for being the expert lover.

Alternatively, Rādhā criticizes Him, “But Kṛṣṇa is indifferent to lovemaking. He is busy laughing and joking; thus this gopikā is not able to enjoy amour with her charming-faced lover. Is she suffering from Madana’s arrows or not? She certainly is.”

VERSE 33

*amṛta-madhura-mṛdutara-vacanena jvalati na sā malayaja-pavanena
sakhi! yā ramitā... (3)*

“She who has been delighted by His extremely sweet and tender words is not scorched by contact with the Malayan breeze.”

Commentary

“Sakhī, He charms that lovely beauty with the ambrosia of His soft and endearing words. How would she know that the cool southern wind coming from the Malayan Hills actually sets off blazing fires? She will not know the pain that burns jilted heroines.”

The alternative meaning is, “Vanamālī is not enjoying amorous love with that gopikā. Rather, He is simply enticing her with the ambrosia of His sweet and gentle words. Is that maiden burning in the Malayan breeze? She certainly is.”

VERSE 34

sthala-jalaruha-ruci-kara-caraṇena luṭhati na sā himakara-kiraṇena
sakhi! yā ramitā... (4)

“That enchantress, having been enraptured by Vanamālī, whose cooling hands and feet gleam like a land-lotus, is not rolling in the dust, anguished by the scorching rays of the moon.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā tells Her friend, “O sakhī, the palms of Keśava’s hands and the soles of His feet are cooling and radiant like land-lotuses. Will that ravishing beauty, enjoying love with Him, know how cool moonbeams can burn? Will she be shifting from side to side throughout the night while lying on her bed as she burns in the moonshine?”

Alternatively, “She is continually tossing and turning throughout the night for want of attaining the embrace of Keśava’s cool lotus limbs.”

VERSE 35

*sajala-jalada-samudaya-rucireṇa dahati na sā hṛdi viraha-davena
sakhi! yā ramitā... (5)*

“That enchanting Vanamālī, more fresh and lustrous than a host of new rainclouds, showers affection on that shapely maiden. The poison of long separation does not scorch her heart.”

Commentary

“O sakhī, that enthralling beauty, who enjoys with Śyāmasundara – whose form is exceptionally enchanting and fresh like a new raincloud – is not afraid of the venom of separation. He is drenching her with His love. What does she know about the prolonged separation that tears one to pieces?”

Alternatively, “That gopī is not really enjoying love with Śyāmasundara, whose complexion resembles a fresh raincloud. Is she suffering from the severe poison of prolonged separation? She certainly is.”

VERSE 36

*kanaka-nikaṣa-ruci-śuci-vasanena śvasiti na sā parijana-hasanena
sakhi! yā ramitā... (6)*

“Pure yellow cloth reflecting against His dark complexion, He resembles a testing stone radiating gold. The fortunate beloved enjoyed by Him does not sigh deep at the taunts of her companions.”

Commentary

“Sakhī, our beloved Pītāmbara’s yellow cloth is as pure and radiant as golden lines rubbed upon the testing stone of His dark body. That greatly fortunate mistress is also pītāmbarī, becoming His yellow garment when He binds her in the ropes of His arms. So, what will that noble maiden who has been delighted by Him know of the pain felt when teased by one’s own friends? And as a consequence, will she know how one’s breathing becomes stifled and how dejected one feels?”

Alternatively, “Śyāmasundara’s yellow garments glow like gold against His dark complexion. After that gopī attained the happiness of union with Him, her garments are fragrant and spattered with many colors. For this reason her friends are teasing her so she must be feeling embarrassed.”

VERSE 37

sakala-bhuvana-jana-vara-taruṇena vahati na sā rujam ati-karuṇena
sakhi! yā ramitā... (7)

“Enjoying amour with the best of all youths in the entire universe, she is not tortured by the pain of separation, being the object of His vast compassion.”

Commentary

“Among all tender young men of the universe, Vanamāli is by far the best. He is thoroughly enchanting, being the most handsome and radiant, the best among all fresh, youthful, artistic dancers – nava-kiśora naṭavara – and an ocean of mercy. That enchantress, being delighted by Him, will not become despondent and listless like Me.”

Alternatively, “The attractive young mistress who enjoys love with the best of the young men in the universe must feel pain when she is separated from He who makes her heart melt with special affection.”

VERSE 38

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇita-vacanena
praviśatu harir api hṛdayam anena
sakhi! yā ramitā... (8)*

May Śrī Hari enter the hearts of the devotees through the words of Śrī Jayadeva’s song.

Commentary

May Mādhava be pleased with Śrī Jayadeva’s rendition of Rādhā’s words glorifying Him, and may He enter the heart. Whose heart should He enter? Śrī Rādhā’s – and also the reciters’ and listeners’ of this song. May Nāgara Nārāyaṇa Hari, the supreme paramour, entering through their ears along with Śrī Rādhā’s words of lamentation, take His place in their lotus hearts moistened with ecstatic loving moods.

Thus ends the Sixteenth Song entitled Nārāyaṇa-madanāyāsa, “The Supreme Skillful Lover.”

VERSE 39

manobhavānandana candanānila prasīda re dakṣiṇa muñca vāmatām kṣaṇam jagat-prāṇa vidhāya mādhavam puro mama prāṇa-haro bhaviṣyasi

“O southern breeze from the Malaya Hills, giver joy to Kandarpa! Stay where you are! Be gracious and give up your opposition towards Me! O breeze that brings life to the world! Bring Mādhava to Me, even if just for a moment, and then you can take away My life.”

Commentary

Unable to tolerate the onslaught of Kāmadeva's shafts, Śrī Rādhā addresses the Malayan breeze, "O wind from the Malaya Hills, who carry the arrows of desire to their target, you have turned against Me. You have delighted your friend Kāmadeva by setting Me on fire, burning Me in the devouring flames of amorous desire. Since you are the Southern wind that gives joy to the whole world and an ally of Madana, why are you hostile towards Me? The sandalwood trees on the Malaya Hills are full of snakes, and certainly by contact with them your nature has become defiled. How much suffering you are inflicting on Me! Jagat-prāṇa, O life of the universe! Be pleased for just a moment and forgive Me. Abandon your animosity towards Me. Take My life, but first give Me the opportunity to see My prāṇanātha Mādhava and then you can plunder My prāṇa."

Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī has quoted this verse in Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi (Uddipana-prakarana 10.107) as an example of gandhavaḥ uddipana – the fragrant breeze acting as a stimulant of prema.

This verse features vaṁśastha-chanda and atisayokti-alāṅkāra.

VERSE 40

ripur iva sakhī-saṁvāso 'yaṁ śikhīva himānilo viṣam iva sudhā-raśmir yasmin dunoti manogate hṛdayam adaye tasminn evaṁ punar valate balāt kuvalaya-dṛśāṁ vāmaḥ kāmo nikāma-nirankuśaḥ

"O sakhī, in My heart friends feel like foes. The cool and gentle breeze seems like fire. The moonbeams torment Me like poison. Nevertheless My heart is forcibly attracted to Him against My will. It is true that kāma is always completely unbridled when attacking impassioned young maidens with eyes beautiful as blue night-lilies."

Commentary

Maddened by separation Śrī Rādhā berates Her enfeebled heart, saying to Her sakhī, “Alas! Who can I blame? Now, when I think of that Kṛṣṇa whom My priya-sakhīs would forbid Me to meet, these usually pleasing friends seem to be like longstanding enemies. Today the cool breeze burns like fire and the soothing moon seems just like the deadly halāhala poison [produced when the demigods and demons churned the ocean]. Despite all this, sakhī, My unrestrained heart still races after that Kṛṣṇa, and, being undiscerning, has become the cause of My suffering. Lotus-eyed women who have no power of discrimination fall prey to the unrelenting strikes of Kāmadeva, who becomes a source of endless misery for them. As it is, Kāmadeva is undefeatable. For stunningly beautiful women such as these, he is exceptionally harsh and antagonistic, and for heroines in separation he is utterly ruthless.”

This verse features hariṇī-vṛtta and virodhālankāra.

VERSE 41

bādhām vidhehi malayānila pañca-bāṇa prāṇān gṛhāṇa na gṛhaṁ punar āśrayiṣye kiṁ te kṛtānta-bhagini kṣamayā taraṅgair aṅgāni siñca mama śāmyatu deha-dāhaḥ

“O Malayan breeze, go ahead, give me trouble! O Pañcabāṇa! God of love who shoots five arrows, you may rob Me of My life, but I will never return home. O Yamunā, sister of Yama, the lord of death! Why should you hold back? Drown Me with your waves so that the conflagration raging in My body will be extinguished forever.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā is now burning in the heat of separation. Taking a vow to give up Her life, She says, “O Malayan breeze! O cooling wind, what are you waiting for? Give Me as much pain as you like! O Pañcabāṇa, plunder My prāṇa. That is why you have been invested with five arrows – to steal My five life-air. Stealing prāṇa is your only business in life. That may be, Kāmadeva, but you inflame those who are suffering and turn them into householders. However, I will die first. No matter how much you control Me, I will never go back to My house. I will take shelter of the lotus feet of Vanamālī.”

Devastated by amorous desire, Śrī Rādhā reproaches both Kāmadeva and the Malayan breeze, and then turns to the Yamunā River, “O Yamunā, you are the sister of Yamarāja, the lord of death. The Malayan breeze and Pañcabāṇa are tormenting Me. Kāmadeva compels lovers to meet, but he has reversed his behavior. The Malayan breeze, generally a cause of happiness, instead is making Me depressed. When they seize My life-air, what answer will you give to your brother Yama? So do not spare Me. Swallow Me up in your waves. Submerge My lifeless body in your waters, thereby extinguishing its burning, and let it lie in peace.”

In this way Śrī Rādhā’s feelings of separation from Śrī Kṛṣṇa reached the tenth condition, namely, desiring one’s own death. The hero is śaṭha, an underhanded, double-dealing rogue who plays with ladies’ affection, and the heroine is vipralabdha-nāyikā, disappointed by her lover who does not come.

This verse features vasanta-tilaka chanda and aprastuta-prasamsā alaṅkāra.

VERSE 42

prātar nīla-nicolam acyutam uraḥ saṁvīta-pītāṁśukam rādhāyās cakitam vilokya hasati svairam sakhī-maṅdale vrīḍā-cañcalam añcalam nayanayor ādhāya rādhānane svādu-smera-mukho ’yam astu jagad-ānandāya nandātmajah

One morning, Acyuta found Himself mistakenly garbed in Śrī Rādhā’s blue veil and Her breast covered with His yellow shawl. This caused all the sakhīs to burst out laughing. Seeing their mirth He fell shy and with a mild smile, He fired a mischievous sidelong glance at Śrī Rādhā's lotus face. May that Nanda-nandana give joy to all the worlds.

Commentary

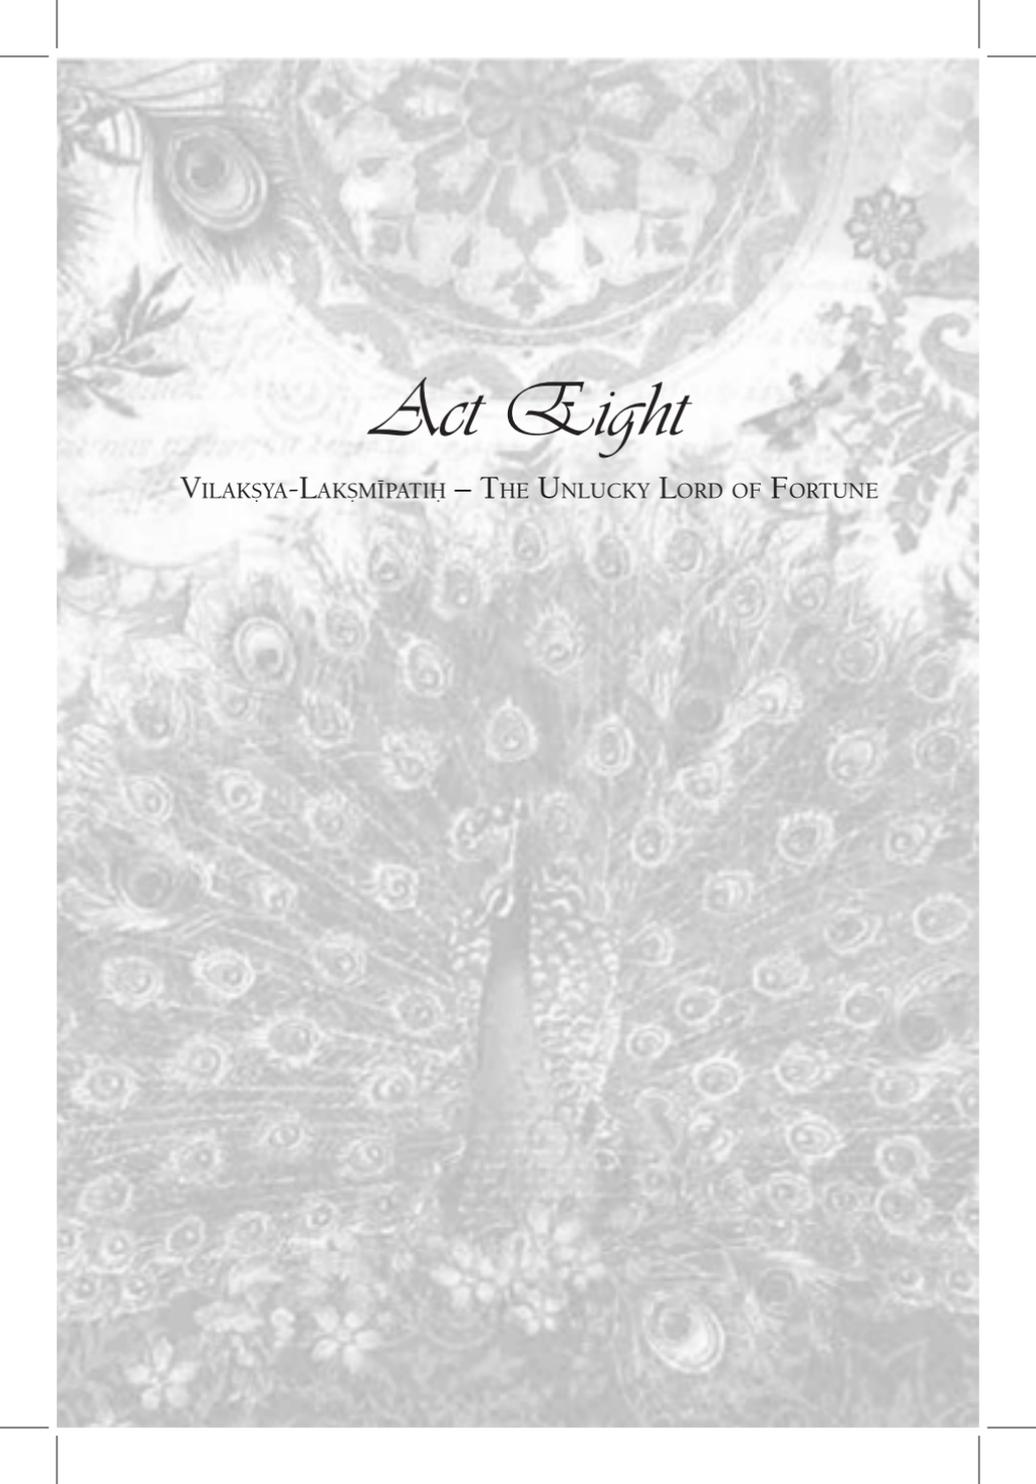

In the final verse of this act the poet Jayadeva has given a blessing to the Vaiṣṇavas: "May this Nanda-nandana Śrī Kṛṣṇa bestow bliss upon the whole world." Śrī Jayadeva remembered one of Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava's previous, matchless amorous pastimes that took place in the early morning in a nearby secluded forest.

Unable to further describe Śrī Rādhā's pain in separation, the poet instead affords us a glimpse of Her blissful state of disarray after passing the night with Kṛṣṇa. Jayadeva employs the logic of a lion's glance (simhāvalokana-nyāya) to depict the general trend of the night-time pastimes. This form of logic refers to the casting of a retrospective glance while simultaneously proceeding.

Śrī Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava had passed the night together engaged in rati-keli and They had taken each others' clothes by mistake. Struck with wonder, the sakhīs burst out laughing at this surprising exchange. Acyuta Kṛṣṇa had put on Her blue veil and Śrī Rādhā had covered Her breast with His yellow shawl. Śrī Kṛṣṇa's eyes darted about in embarrassment. His sidelong glance fell upon Śrī Rādhā's face and He smiled gently.

This verse reveals Śrī Jayadeva's desire for the world's auspiciousness. It includes hasya-rati (the mellow of laughter) and svabhāvokti alaṅkāra. The hero is anukula nāyaka, the obedient lover completely fixed on his ladylove, and the heroine is abhisārikā nāyikā, a girl who happily meets her lover at the appointed rendezvous.

THUS ENDS THE BALABODHINI-PRAKĀSA COMMENTARY ON ACT SEVEN OF ŚRĪ GĪTA-GOVINDA, ENTITLED NĀGARA-NĀRĀYANA,
"THE SUPREME TRANSCENDENTAL HERO."

Act Eight

VILAKSYA-LAKSMĪPATHI – THE UNLUCKY LORD OF FORTUNE

Act Eight

VILAKṢYA-LAKṢMĪPATIḤ – THE UNLUCKY LORD OF FORTUNE

VERSE 1

atha katham api yāminīm vinīya smara-śara-jarjaritāpi sā prabhāte anunaya-vacanam vadantam agre praṇatam api priyam āha sābhyasūyam

Though split asunder by the arrows of love, Śrī Rādhā somehow managed to pass the night. When Her beloved came at dawn, falling at Her feet and humbly attempting to pacify Her, She condemned Him in Her jealous anger.

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā spent the night weaving a network of assumptions about Śrī Kṛṣṇa entirely from the figments of Her imagination. She waited for His arrival with intense longing, and when He did not come She was shattered by disappointment. Throughout the night She sent messages and counter-messages one after another describing the distress caused by the intoxicating spring breeze. The vasanta season was bombarding Her from all directions at once with the fragrance of many flowers and the arrows of amorous desire. Waiting in the appointed meeting place, She lamented incessantly while dreaming about meeting with Śrī Kṛṣṇa. She completely lost Herself in memories of union with Him. In such a state of unremitting separation, She passed the night and morning came. Finally, in a submissive mood Śrī Kṛṣṇa came before Her, bowing down and begging for a reconciliation.

He attempted to comfort Her and to dispel Her anger. However, under the influence of the devastating pain of unfulfilled kāma, She saw signs of lovemaking on Śrī Kṛṣṇa's body and became even more agitated.

How ironic it is that the māna of pouting heroines increases even more in the presence of their beloved. Bowing at Śrī Rādhā's lotus feet, Śrī Kṛṣṇa displayed the peak of prema. Śrī Rādhā, Her prāṇa having risen up to Her throat, was on the verge of leaving Her body. The sight of Her beloved increased Her jealousy even more, and She spoke as follows.

❁ Song Seventeen ❁

The musical mode is bhairavī rāga. The rhythm is yati tāla.

VERSE 2

rajani-janita-guru-jāgara-rāga-kaṣāyitam alasa-niṣeṣam vahati nayanam anurāgam iva sphuṭam udita-rasābhiniveṣam (1)

hari hari yāhi mādharma yāhi keśava mā vada kaitava-vādam tām anusara sarasīruha-locana yā tava harati viṣādam (refrain)

“Your reddish, drowsy, half-closed eyes tell of Your wakeful night passed in the flurry of lovemaking and expose Your ardent passion for that vraja-sundari.

“Go, Mādharma! Go away, Keśava! Do not ply Me with Your deceptive words. O lotus-eyed one, go to that agreeable damsel who is quite capable of removing Your sorrow.” (refrain)

Commentary

Hari! Hari! – “O God, Lord have mercy!” These two words are used here to express Rādhā's profound disappointment and also to complete the meter. Alternatively, Hari implies: the expressive glances from Your beautifully enchanting eyes steal away the heart.

Red from the night-long vigil, Śrī Kṛṣṇa's eyes display the feelings of separation that He has undergone. He is so tired that He can hardly keep His eyes open. Noticing His half-closed red eyes, Rādhā addresses Him by three names that reveal Her inner moods, especially jealousy towards Her rival.

Mādhava – In the mood of khaṇḍitā-nāyikā, a forsaken heroine, Śrī Rādhā says to Her prostrated beloved, “O Mādhava! O Lakṣmīpati! Go! Go away! You are passionately absorbed in someone else, so what right do You have to go and deceive others? You are not My (mā) husband (dhava). If You were, would You have cheated on Me?”

Alternatively, mā implies, “I am devoted to one beloved, while Lakṣmī is fickle by nature. It is only logical that her husband will be the same. So how can You have true affection for Me? Just go away!” Mā actually means Śrī Rādhā and dhava refers to prāṇa-priyatama, Her most beloved Śrī Kṛṣṇa, whom She holds dearer than Her own life.

Keśava – Lodging further accusations and expressing Her dissatisfaction She says, “O Keśava, go away!” He who wears excellent attire and ornaments and who always leaves His hair untied is called Keśava. Or, he who is fascinated with one having beautiful hair is also addressed as Keśava: “Keep Your heart with that maiden whose hair is so attractively arranged.”

She continues to berate Him, “O bahu-vallabha, beloved of many! What is the point of speaking deceptive words to Me when I love only one? Do not lie. If You are wondering why I am angry and upset, then listen. It is not so.”

Sarasīruha-locana – “O lotus-eyed one, go to that lotus-eyed lady who takes away all Your cares and woes. Your beloved must also have many lovers – like attracts like.” The word sarasīruha can refer to either the day-blooming lotus (kamala) or the night-blooming lotus (kumuda). It is well known that Śrī Kṛṣṇa's eye's resemble the kamala, but here Śrī Rādhā's intended meaning is kumuda, which remains open throughout the night and closes at the break of day. Śrī Kṛṣṇa also appeared in the moon dynasty. Therefore, Rādhā suspects that, just like the moon, He has spent the whole night awake with another. “Even now, Your thirst for her is visible in Your eyes. The red glow of love, still coloring them, speaks of Your guilt. Your burning absorption in śṛṅgāra-rasa last night is evident in Your eyes even now. The nature of one’s heart determines the degree to which one’s cunning will manifest.” Sarasīruha-locana also denotes one whose eyes are half closed because He is always immersed in bliss.

“Hari, Hari! Go to that ladylove who has showered her favor on You all night.” Śrī Kṛṣṇa replies, “By heart and body You and I are one. Rādhā, I am speaking the truth when I say that I did not stay awake all night with any other girl. My reddish eyes are closing simply because I’m tired.”

VERSE 3

kajjala-malina-vilocana-cumbana-viracita-nīlima-rūpam daśana-vasanam aruṇam tava kṛṣṇa tanoti tanor anurūpam
hari hari yāhi mādharma... (2)

“Your beautiful red lips, the raiment of Your teeth, have become blackish like Your body, Mādhava, from kissing her kajjala-annointed eyes.”

Commentary

Thinking that Mādhava has betrayed Her, Śrī Rādhā pierces Him in His most vulnerable spot, maiming Him with the shafts of Her scathing insinuations. “Syāma! There is no need for deceit. If You say, ‘I have not spent the night with any other lover,’ why, then, are Your eyes so red? Your prema for that provocative beloved radiates from Your eyes even now.” Śrī Kṛṣṇa replies, “Priya, My dearest! I am telling You the truth. I have not been awake the whole night with another girl. My eyes are closing simply because I am tired.” Śrī Rādhā continues, “Then why have Your red lips become black and now match the color of Your body? It is because You have been kissing her collyrium-smearred eyes all night. Go away! Go back to that sweetheart who has colored Your eyes, tinged Your lips and showered You with favors all night. Do not lie to Me. Just go! Your eyes are reddish from Your all-consuming absorption in love play. Being colored by the redness of anurāga, they are clearly expressing Your proclivity for that beautiful vraja-gopī.”

VERSE 4

*vapur anuharati tava
smara-saṅgarakhara-nakhara-kṣata-rekham marakata-śakala-kalita-kala-dhauta-liper iva rati-jaya-lekham
hari hari yāhi mādharma... (3)*

“Your dark body, scratched by the sharp nails of that enticing maiden expert in erotic combat, bespeaks of Your amorous play. These marks are like love’s proclamation of victory inscribed in golden letters upon an emerald tablet.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā says, “O Mādharma! Every part of Your body tells the story of Your kāma-keli, Your amorous encounter. That charming maiden has scratched Your chest with Her sharp nails. Your heart appears to be a battlefield where a great war has taken place. Your dark body bears the clear, red scratches of that maiden. It appears as if rati-jaya-patrī, a proclamation of victory in lovemaking, has been written in golden ink upon a dark emerald plaque, announcing her triumph. An impassioned maiden has sent this love-letter to her lover: ‘I won complete victory in this erotic contest.’”

Śrī Rādhā is sarcastically insinuating that Śrī Kṛṣṇa is in a fallen position, having been sent as a messenger to deliver Her rival’s victory letter. With a particular purpose in mind, Śrī Rādhā uses the word khara, or sharp. One meaning indicates humiliating defeat in lovemaking. Another indicates hard scratches which are painful. Nail scratches should not be cutting, rather they should be soft. So Śrī Rādhā is implying, “It seems that Your ladylove is not very expert in the techniques of romance. Now go away!” Śrī Kṛṣṇa replies, “Rādhā, these are not the nail-marks of some sweetheart. My body got scratched by thorns when I was searching for You in the woods.”

VERSE 5

*carāṇa-kamala-galad-alaktaka-siktam idaṁ tava hṛdayam udāram darsayatīva bahir madana-druma-nava-kisalaya-parivāram
hari hari yāhi mādharma... (4)*

“Your celebrated chest bears the crimson marks of red lac from the lotus feet of that fair maiden. It seems as if madana-vṛkṣa, the tree of amorous desire, firmly rooted in the core of Your heart is outwardly manifesting its newly sprouted red buds.”

Commentary

Her words full of veiled accusations, Śrī Rādhā says to Śrī Kṛṣṇa, “Aha! What a munificent heart You have! And just see the enchanting appearance it has assumed! You are so magnanimous that You have clasped Your sweetheart’s lotus feet to Your heart in the joy of prema. The red lac from her feet has flowed onto Your chest – that crimson color against Your śyāma complexion makes You even more handsome. These fresh, bud-like marks are just like the fresh buds sprouting on the tree of desire within Your heart. Manifesting outwardly, they expose Your intense passion for this forbidden love affair. You cannot conceal Your ardor for her. So go away! There is nothing for You here.”

Pleading innocence, Śrī Kṛṣṇa says, “This is just a design painted with red ocher. I have not held any girl’s lotus feet over My heart and this is certainly nobody’s foot-lac.”

According to the opinion of some commentators, the intended meaning of Śrī Rādhā's statement here is that Śrī Kṛṣṇa has enjoyed love with this heroine in a special way called krodha-bandha.

VERSE 6

*daśana-padam bhavad-adhara-gataṁ mama janayati cetasi khedam kathayati katham adhunāpi mayā saha tava vapur etad abhedam
hari hari yāhi mādharma... (5)*

“Seeing all the bite-marks left by that playful coquette on Your lips, My heart sinks in sorrow, and still You insist that Your body is not separate from Mine.”

Commentary

“O Mādhava! You can make excuses to cover up for the redness of Your eyes and everything else with Your deceptive words, but how can You conceal all the cuts – clear as shining crescent moons – left by the teeth of that coquette on the tender petals of Your lips? Your shameless smile makes My heart blaze. The bite-marks that ramaṇī impressed on Your lips during lovemaking stir up My grief. Separation from You has driven Me to the point of death (mṛti – the tenth and last stage of separation). You repeatedly say, ‘You and I are one’, but under the circumstances how can You suggest that We are non-different? Just go.”

Defending His innocence, Śrī Kṛṣṇa retorts, “Priya, My darling! These cuts are from bumblebees who, greedy after the fragrance of My lips, were biting them. These are not bites from any ramaṇī.”

VERSE 7

*bahir iva malinatarāṁ tava kṛṣṇa mano 'pi bhaviṣyati nūnam katham atha vañcayase janam anugatam asamaśara-jvara-dūnam
hari hari yāhi mādharma... (6)*

“O Keśava, Your body is black, and so is Your heart. How could You deceive someone faithful to You, especially when She has been maimed by Cupid’s shafts?”

Commentary

Distraught, Śrī Rādhā says, “He Kṛṣṇa! You are even blacker on the inside than on the outside. If it were not so, then how could a heart that is by nature noble and pure become so indifferent to Me? Your black heart is wicked even with those who favor and rely on You. Only one with such a polluted heart could neglect Me and enjoy with another ramaṇī, thereby deceiving a person who has taken shelter of You. How could You betray Me when You see that I am already traumatized by the arrows of kāma? Go, cheater! Just leave. A pure-hearted person would never do such a thing.”

Śrī Kṛṣṇa says, “Rādhā, do not harbor these unfounded doubts. I could never cheat You.”

VERSE 8

*bhramati bhavān abalā-kavalāya vaneṣu kim atra vicitram prathayati pūtanikaiva vadhū-vadha-nirdaya-bāla-caritram
hari hari yāhi mādharma... (7)*

“You wander from one forest to the next with the simple purpose of preying upon weak maidens. What is surprising about this? While still an infant You killed Pūtanā, and demonstrated Your cruel-hearted nature. Killing women is Your habit.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā continued, “It is just Your inherent nature to wander about the forests ‘devouring’ and abusing women. So if You also misuse Me, then what is so unusual about that?”

“Even in Your infancy You became renowned for killing the belligerent Pūtanā, the sister of Bakāsura. When such a powerful woman immediately aged and died by Your influence, then what is astonishing about killing a woman like Me? It would be just a small matter for You. The Vedic scriptures prohibit murdering ladies, considering it most heinous and unpardonable. But this depravity on Your part is inherent in Your character from birth. Kindly go away. Because You are a young man, You will not have to make the slightest endeavour to slay a female like Me. Cruel one, now leave Me alone.”

VERSE 9

śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇita-rati-vañcita-khaṇḍita-yuvati-vilāpam śṛṇuta sudhā-madhuram vibudhā vibudhālayato 'pi durāpam
hari hari yāhi mādharma... (8)

O learned sages! Please listen to Śrī Jayadeva’s account of the bitter lament of Śrī Rādhā, a maiden betrayed and cheated by passion, a lament which is even sweeter than amṛta and rarely heard even in the celestial realm.

Commentary

Here, the poet, addressing the learned scholars (and the devatās), says, “O learned sages! Listen to the lament of this deserted maiden deprived of Her coveted amorous pleasure. Her grief-stricken song of separation is sweeter than any heavenly nectar. In the celestial worlds, it is not possible to taste the kind of nectar contained in Her lament. The sweetest substance available in Devaloka is amṛta, the ambrosia of the demigods. However this amṛta is bitter in comparison with Śrī Rādhā’s lament, which is only available to humans here on Earth. Therefore, learned scholars eager to attain real amṛta, which is the constant remembrance of Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa, should definitely drink the incomparable nectar found on Earth in Śrī Jayadeva’s exquisite Gītā-govinda.

In this song, Śrī Rādhā is khaṇḍitā-nāyikā. A heroine becomes khaṇḍitā when:

nidrā-kaśāya-mukulīkṛta-tāmranetro nārī-nakhavraṇaviśeṣa-vicitratāṅgaḥ yasyāḥ kuto'pi patireti gṛham prabhāte sā khaṇḍeti kathitākavibhiḥ purāṇaiḥ

“In the early morning the hero enters the heroine’s abode from elsewhere. He has had no chance to sleep because he was awake the whole night. His eyes are red and his whole body is beautifully marked with scratches made by some other girl. Learned poets have called the heroine in this situation khaṇḍitā-nāyikā.” She becomes extremely jealous, and either chastizes him, or turns aside and silently pouts.

This Seventeenth Song of Śrī Gīta-Govinda, entitled Lakṣmīpati-ratnāvalī, “Kṛṣṇa Bejeweled,” features megha-rāga and the vipralambha aspect of śṛṅgāra-rasa and karuṇa-rasa.

VERSE 10

tavedaṁ paśyantyāḥ prasaraḍ-anurāgaṁ bahir iva priyā-pādālakta-cchuritam aruṇa-dyoti-hṛdayam mamādya prakhyāta-praṇaya-bhara-bhaṅgena kitava tvad-ālokaḥ śokād api kim api lajjāṁ janayati

“He śaṭha, O two-faced cheater! My long-standing and well-known love for You is shattered when I see Your chest colored with the red lac from that vraja-gopī’s feet. That radiant red color seems to be outwardly proclaiming the passion You harbor for her within. It is shame more than sorrow that I feel within My heart.”

Commentary

Khaṇḍitā Rādhikā, the deserted heroine, now resorts to arrogance, accusing Śrī Kṛṣṇa, “He kitava, O charlatan! You did not come, but still I waited for You for a long time. Our glorious pranaya, the love that made Our hearts one, is now shattered to pieces. The overwhelming anguish I have suffered in Your separation is indescribable. I do not know whether to live or die. There is no question of continuing to live and at the same time death refuses to take Me. How have I fallen into such a dilemma?

“O traitor, seeing You like this, I do not feel as much anguish as I feel shame. You passed the night enjoying with that temptress, and having clasped her feet to Your heart Your chest is now adorned with her red footlac. The red glow of the rising dawn suggests to me that the anurāga You were carrying in Your heart has today spilled outside. When I see the signs of that ladylove’s pleasure where You used to wear the Kaustubha jewel, I feel totally mortified.

“The pride I felt from the matchless love We shared filled Me with unbounded happiness. But now You have broken that connecting thread of prema with Your contemptible behavior. You have enjoyed intimacies with her and You are not even ashamed of it. May You be blessed, Keśava! Now go away! O unfaithful one, why did I ever love You?”

Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī has quoted this verse in Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi (Vyabhicārī-prakarāṇa 13.63) to illustrate vriḍa, shame.

The meter of this verse is śikharinī chand.

Śrī Kṛṣṇa considered, “Despite all My many attempts, Rādhā’s obdurate sulk is not dissipating. So now I will have to employ vaṁśī-dūtī, My flute-messenger. I have no alternative. The sound of My flute will surely dispell Rādhikā’s māna.” Therefore the poet Jayadeva offers a benediction through the vaṁśī-dhvani, the sound of the flute, in the following verse.

VERSE 11

antar-mohana-mauli-ghūrṇana-calan-mandāra-visraṃsana stabdhākarṣaṇa-dṛṣṭi-harṣaṇa-mahā-mantraḥ kuraṅgi-dṛṣām dṛpyad-dānava-dūyamāna-diviṣad-durvāra-duḥkhā-padām bhraṃśaḥ kamsa-ripor vyapohayatu vaḥ śreyāṃsi vaṃśi-ravaḥ

The sound of Kāmsa-ripu's flute casts a magic spell that bewilders the gopīs, causing their heads to reel and their flower decorations to fall. Attracted by that bewitching melody, the doe-eyed maidens become stunned in rapture and stare vacantly into space as their eyes brim with bliss. That enchanting sound, acting as a potent mantra, drives away the unbearable suffering of the devatās harassed by the arrogant dānava demons. May that flute song destroy all impediments to everyone's auspiciousness.

Commentary

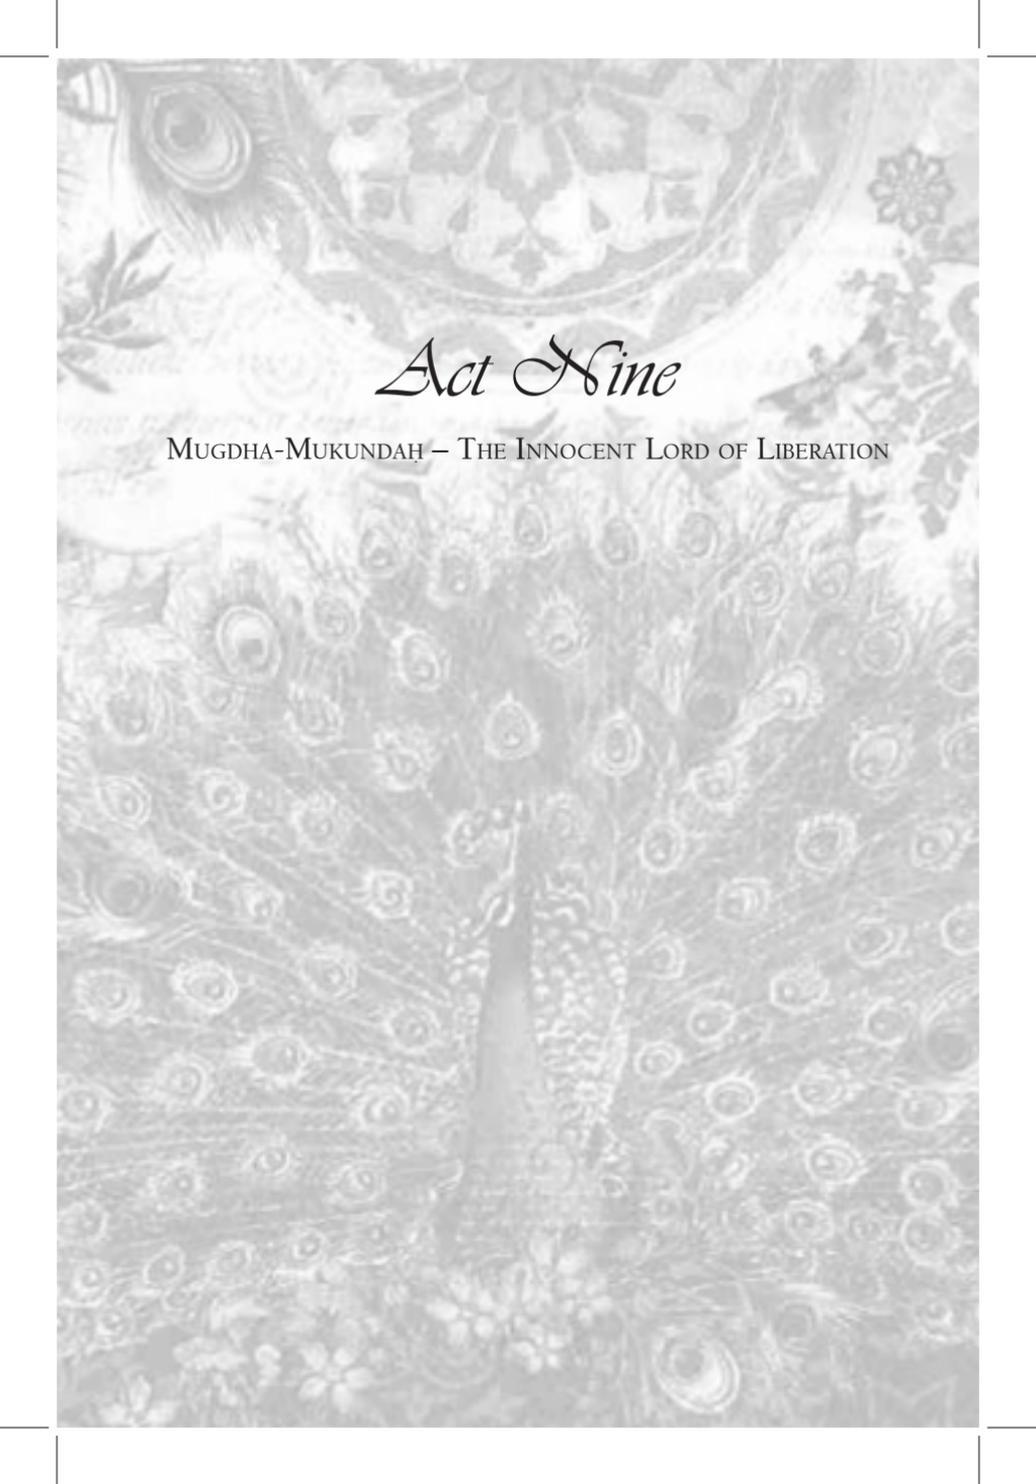

Śrī Jayadeva bestows a benediction upon the singers and audience of his poem through an auspicious invocation in this final verse. "May the sound of Kāmsāri's flute spread good fortune. This flute melody dispels the demigods' intolerable suffering caused by the arrogant demons. It enchants the hearts of the doe-eyed gopīs to such an extent that, struck with rapture, they continuously stare in bewilderment as their heads spin, their jeweled tiaras tremble, and their mandāra flower garlands break and fall."

Śrī Kṛṣṇa's flute song is endowed with six powers: 1) mohanatva – the power to bewilder one in the core of his heart, 2) vaśikarānatva – the magical power to enslave others, 3) stambhatva—to stun them, 4) ākaraṣānatva—to attract them, 5) uccātanatva—to make them give up their inherent nature, and 6) māraṇatva—to destroy all opposing elements. Therefore it is, indeed, a mahā-mantra whose spell-binding magic has a special kinship with the gopīs.

Aware of the flute's bewitching effect, the presiding deity of the art of subjugating others by magical spells (the vaśikṛta-devatā) calls out "Sādhu-sādhu! Bravo!" and nods his head in appreciation. The trembling of the head and the falling of mandāra flowers indicate the flute's power of māraṇa, or the authority to destroy opposition. Śrī Kṛṣṇa's vaṁśī is famous for its ability to attract and stun. This flute sound charms the female deer of Vraja also and leaves them dazed.

In order to vanquish Śrī Rādhā's extremely deep māna, Śrī Kṛṣṇa began to play upon His vaṁśī, the sound of which is the greatest mystical incantation, endowed with six effective methods of accomplishment.

THUS ENDS THE BĀLABODHINI-PRAKĀŚA COMMENTARY ON ACT EIGHT OF ŚRĪ GĪTA-GOVINDA, ENTITLED VILAKṢYA-LAKṢMĪPATI, "THE UNLUCKY
LORD OF FORTUNE," DESCRIBING THE KHAṆḌITĀ-NĀYIKĀ, THE FORSAKEN HEROINE.

Act Nine

MUGDHA-MUKUNDAH – THE INNOCENT LORD OF LIBERATION

Act Nine

MUGDHA-MUKUNDAH – THE INNOCENT LORD OF LIBERATION

VERSE 1

tām atha manmatha-khinnām rati-rasa-bhinnām viṣāda-sampannām anucintita-hari-caritām kalahāntaritām uvāca rahaḥ sakhī

Oppressed by Cupid's arrows, deeply disappointed at being deprived of amour and obsessed with Hari's romantic tactics, She released Her anger on Her beloved. Then Her sakhī spoke to Her in a secluded place.

Commentary

Now Śrī Jayadeva reveals Rādhā's mood that prompts Her sakhī to encourage Her to accept Kṛṣṇa and receive Him with honor.

Manmatha-khinnā – Śrī Rādhā is tormented by Madana.

Rati-rasa-bhinnā – She is grief-stricken being deprived of the joy of love play.

Viṣāda-sampannām – Her intense desire to enjoy intimacies with Śrī Kṛṣṇa has pushed Her into the stage of conflicting emotions (bhāva-śabalatā).

Anucintita-hari-caritām – She is continuously mulling over Kṛṣṇa's activities.

Kalahāntaritā – A heroine who, although seeing her beloved falling at her feet even in front of her friends, severely reprimands him and denies his requests. She is prone to incoherent speech, anguish, debility and other symptoms such as drawing long breaths.

The traits of the kalahāntarītā-nāyikā are: (1) She pours scorn on all the statements made by her lover, considering His reasonable explanations and submissive mood to be nothing but cunning trickery. (2) She critically analyzes his behavior and lodges various allegations against him out of loving anger. (3) The more he prostrates himself before her, the more her obstinacy escalates. (4) In addition to that, her anguish increases as she goes on contemplating her own fabricated contentions. (5) Her lover and nothing else completely occupy her anxious thoughts. Śrī Rādhā exhibits all these five characteristics.

Song Eighteen

The musical mode is gurjarī rāga. The rhythm is yati tāla.

VERSE 2

harir abhisarati vahati madhu-pavane kim aparam adhika-sukham sakhi bhavane mādhava mā kuru mānini mānam aye (refrain) (1)

“The honeyed spring breezes bring Hari to meet with You.
 O friend, what could be a greater source of happiness than this?”

“He mānini, O indignant girl! Do not be angry with Mādhava.”
 (refrain)

Commentary

“O sakhī, give up Your māna and cooperate with Your Lakṣmī-pati Mādhava. He has appeared in the Madhu dynasty and He possesses great riches. Nevertheless, He is humbly propitiating You. Drop Your sulky mood. The spring breeze is blowing and Hari has personally come to meet with You in Your private chamber. What could be a greater source of happiness than this? His arrival heralds the ultimate in joy. O Rādhā, honor Him.”

VERSE 3

*tāla-phalād api gurum ati-sarasam kiṁ viphalī-kuruṣe kuca-kalaśam
mādhave... (2)*

Translation

“Your jug-like breasts are heavier and richer than fully ripened palm fruits. Why let them go to waste?”

Commentary

The sakhī says, “O Rādhā, Your pitcher-like breasts are better than tāla fruits. Rasa-sāstra describes tāla fruits as big and juicy, but, next to Your ample breasts, they are puny and dry. The fulfillment of those breasts lies with Hari and His touch. The heaviness of those pitchers is meant for His enjoyment and You are thwarting their purpose.” Śrī Rādhā’s breasts have been compared to waterpots to express their immensity. “Give up Your contrary mood and facilitate Śrī Hari in relishing the flavor of erotic escapades.”

VERSE 4

*kati na kathitam idam anupadam aciram mā parihara harim atīśaya-ruciram
mādhave... (3)*

“How many times must I tell You, ‘Do not spurn Hari when He so longs to entertain You!’”

Commentary

Her sakhī says, “O Rādhā, how long I have been trying to convince You to give up Your māna! Hari is so handsome and lustrous. Change Your attitude – forget Your sulky mood and welcome Him. Hari is so delightful that He steals everyone's heart. It is foolish to reject Him."

VERSE 5

*kim iti viṣḍasi rodiṣi vikalā vahasati yuvati-sabhā tava sakalā
mādhave... (4)*

"Why do You weep in dejection? Seeing Your behavior, all Your rivals are laughing at You."

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā hears the words of Her sakhī but continues sobbing. Then our sakhī says, "O Rādhā, why are You upset and still crying? All Your rivals are mocking You to witness Your method of seduction. How foolish You are. Hari is rolling on the ground at Your feet and You just go on crying."

VERSE 6

*sajala-nalinī-dala-śīlita-śayane harim avalokaya saphalaya nayane
mādhave... (5)*

"Make Your eyes successful by gazing lovingly upon Hari as He reclines upon a cool bed of moist lotus petals."

Commentary

Her sakhī tells Śrī Rādhā, "O Rādhā, behold Hari in this appointed love bower as He relaxes upon a bed of cool lotus petals adorned with diamonds and pearls. Feast Your eyes upon that person for whom You have been thirsting. Do not quarrel with Him. He is waiting for You so just let go of Your wounded pride."

VERSE 7

*janayasi manasi kim iti guru-khedam śṛṇu mama vacanam anīhita-bhedam
 mādhave... (6)*

“Why do You allow distress to possess Your heart? Listen to me. I am speaking only for Your benefit, without any separate interest.”

Commentary

Even after hearing all of Her sakhī's suggestions, Śrī Rādhā was still disturbed. Her sakhī continued, “He priya sakhī, O my dear friend! Why are You making such trouble for Yourself? How have You allowed this animosity to plunder Your heart and unfounded suspicions to devour You? I can see that the tribulation of separation has paralyzed You, leaving You in apathy. Heed my words. Just understand this – I only want Your welfare. There is no difference between You and Mādhava; You and He are one.”

VERSE 8

*harir upayātu vadatu bahu-madhuram kim iti karoṣi hṛdayam ati-vidhuram
 mādhave... (7)*

“Let Hari come. Allow Him to speak to You sweetly. Why doom Your heart to loneliness?”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā's sakhī says, “He priya Rādhā! Let Hari approach You and speak honeyed words. It is not befitting for You to keep Him distant. Make Yourself happy by listening to His flattering words and thereby make Him blissful. Your heart craves Him, so why are You resisting? You are uselessly betraying Your own better interests by being indignant and thus making Yourself suffer. Give up Your māna.”

VERSE 9

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam ati-lalitam sukhayatu rasika-janaṁ hari-caritam
mādhave... (8)*

May Śrī Jayadeva's charming description of Śrī Hari's behavior increase the happiness of devotees expert in relishing rasa.

Commentary

This Eighteenth Song of Śrī Gīta-Govinda is entitled Amanda-mukunda, "Exuberant Mukunda." The only purpose of this song and its fruit as well is the pleasure of Śrī Hari and the rasika-bhaktas. Śrī Jayadeva says, "I have described Śrī Kṛṣṇa's appealing activities. May they bring joy to the hearts of pure devotees."

VERSE 10

snigdhe yat paruṣāsi yat praṇamati stabdhāsi yad rāgiṇi dveṣasthāsi yad un mukhe vimukhatām yātāsi tasmin priye tad yuktaṁ viparīta-kāriṇi tava śrīkhaṇḍa-carcā viṣaṁ śītāṁśus tapano himaṁ hutavahaḥ kṛīḍā-mudo yātanāḥ

"Hari petitions You very affectionately but You meet His appeals with harshness. He prostrates before You and You remain rigid. He displays His deep love for You, yet You are hostile. He approaches You and You turn away. He viparīta-kāriṇī! O You whose behavior is totally perverse! Your behavior makes sandalwood paste feel like poison, the refreshing moon like the harsh sun, cooling camphor like fire, and the happiness of lovemaking like torture."

Commentary

When Śrī Rādhā did not reply or register even the slightest response, Her sakhī said, "Rādhā, what has happened to You? Your behavior is thoroughly perverse. You were burning in despair for His prema, and now, when He has come to meet You, Your attitude has surprisingly reversed. Do not let this golden opportunity slip through Your fingers. How much tender affection Hari has for You, but You are harsh and cruel towards Him, rebuking Him with abrasive words. He is bowing at Your feet while You simply stand haughtily. He is endowed with all good qualities. Just see how madly in love with You He is, yet You are still hostile towards Him. How He is looking upon Your beautiful face, beaming with whole-hearted attention, joy and eagerness, but not only do You remain unaffected, You are averse to Him.

“Perhaps Your intelligence has turned topsy-turvy. Your behavior is thoroughly backwards, so naturally on such a happy occasion sandalwood paste burns You like venom, the cool rays of the moon seem as oppressive as the scorching heat of the sun, camphor burns like fire, and the joy of lovemaking seems miserable. Your mind is pervaded by pessimism. At once abandon this contrary behavior.”

VERSE 11

sāndrānanda-purandarādi-diviṣad-vṛndair amandādarād ānamrair mukuṭendranīla-maṇibhiḥ sandarśitendindirām svacchandaṁ makaranda-sundara-galan-mandākinī-medurām śrī-govinda-padāravindam aśubha-skandāya vandāmahe

We offer prayers to Śrī Govinda’s lotus feet, which annihilate all adversity. Those lotus feet were radiant like blue lotuses reflecting the sapphire-encrusted crowns of the overjoyed devatās who bowed down reverentially to Him upon the defeat of King Bali. Those lotus feet are the source of the enchanting Mandākinī (Ganges), which spontaneously issued forth like a flow of honey.

Commentary

When Śrī Jayadeva remembered the flattering words Śrī Kṛṣṇa spoke to Śrī Rādhā, Her greatness flashed in the poet’s heart. To establish the extent of Her good fortune he begins to describe Śrī Kṛṣṇa's opulence, saying, "Along with my disciples and their disciples, I offer prayers to Śrī Govinda's lotus feet, which nullify all inauspiciousness that impedes prema-bhakti."

In this verse Bhagavān Śrī Govinda's feet have been compared to charming lotus flowers enhanced by fragrant pollen in the form of the spontaneous flow of the celestial Ganges. The devatās headed by Indra blissfully offer prostrated obeisances at Kṛṣṇa's lotus feet like bumblebees adorning a pollen-covered lotus. When they bow down, the aura of sapphires and other jewels upon their crowns falls upon Śrī Kṛṣṇa's feet and thus they appear to be blue lotuses. Just as bumblebees always hover around blue lotuses, the hearts of the devotees eternally hover around the lotus feet of Śrī Kṛṣṇa and perpetually sing their glories. The yogīs continually meditate upon His lotus feet for the annihilation of their impediments.

Who has the power to describe the glories of Śrī Mukunda's lotus feet? But how curious it is that Mukunda is now perplexed with worry about how to pacify Śrī Rādhā's māna. So what can be said of Her glories? Mukunda is personally praying to clasp Her lotus feet upon His head.

Śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda and rūpaka alaṅkāra have been employed in this verse. Śrī Kṛṣṇa's feet have been compared to lotuses, the Gaṅgā to fragrant pollen, and sapphires and other crest jewels to bumblebees.

THUS ENDS THE BĀLABODHINI-PRAKĀSA COMMENTARY ON ACT NINE OF ŚRĪ GĪTĀ-GOVINDA ENTITLED MUGDHA-MUKUNDA,
"THE INNOCENT LORD OF LIBERATION."

Act Ten

CATURA-CATURBHUJAH
CLEVER KRṢṆA, THE FOUR-ARMED FLATTERER

Act Ten

CATURA-CATURBHUJAH
CLEVER KṚṢṆA, THE FOUR-ARMED FLATTERER

VERSE 1

atrāntare maṣṇa-roṣa-vaśām-aśīma-niḥśvāsaniḥ saha-mukhīm sumukhīm upetya savriḍam iḁṣita-sakhī-vadanām pradoṣe sānanda-gadgada-padam harir ity uvāca

With the advent of evening Śrī Hari approached Śrī Rādhā, whose face was softening as Her anger abated. Exhausted from endless sighing, She glanced bashfully at the face of Her sakhī as Hari, blossoming in bliss, stammered an emotional appeal.

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā's dear sakhī tried various ways to make Her understand that She should give up Her anger, but Kīṣorījī's fury did not wane. In the meantime, the day was drawing to a close. Now Rādhā, Her lotus face looking extremely dejected, was gasping in the pain of separation. After exhausting all possible methods to alleviate her Svamīnī's māna, Her sakhī fell silent. Gripped in the perplexities of prema as She looked shyly at Her friend, Rādhā thought, "Just now I have slighted Him, so how can I suddenly just change My mind and ask for His company?" Her depression cast a shadow over the whole atmosphere.

As the evening approached, Śrī KṚṢṆA thought that Śrī Rādhā must be feeling remorse. "Let Me go to Her. I will accept all

Her accusations and pray for forgiveness.” Then He approached Rādhā and, blossoming with joy, He began to plead with Her in a voice choked with loving emotions.

❀ Song Nineteen ❀

The musical mode is deśavarāḍī rāga. The rhythm is aṣṭatālī tāla.

VERSE 2

vadasi yadi kiñcid api danta-ruci-kaumudī harati dara-timiram ati-ghoram sphurad-adhara-sīdhave tava vadana-candramā rocayatu locana-cakoram (1)

priye! cāruṣile! muñca mayi mānam anidānam sapadi madanānalo dahati mama mānaṣaṁ dehi mukha-kamala-madhu-pānam (refrain)

“If You would speak to Me, even a little, then the effulgent rays of Your teeth would dispel the terrible darkness of My fears. Let Your moon-like face lure My cakora-bird eyes, longing for the sweet drink of Your lips.

“O My cherished love! O sweet-natured one! Cast off Your wrath for Me. The fire of amorous desire has set My heart ablaze. Allow Me to drink the honey of Your lotus lips.” (refrain)

Commentary

Śrī Kṛṣṇa says to Śrī Rādhā, “He priye, O My darling! O You who have such an exquisite nature, You are unnecessarily upset with Me. This fierce resolve to continue Your māna is improper. Ever since You have been sulking, I have been burning in the fire of kāma. There is no reason for Your ire. Your suspicions about another lover are unfounded.

“Cupid inflicts pain upon Me only when You spurn Me. Allow Me to drink the honey of Your lotus lips – so rarely attained – thus quelling the fire raging within Me. If You do not agree, then at least say something – whether good or bad – but say something. As You speak, Your lotus face will bloom, allowing the moonbeams of Your teeth to shine forth and destroy the dark fear gripping My heart. He Rādhe, the cakora birds of My eyes long to drink the life-giving nectar flowing from Your moonlike face. O My beloved, whose disposition is so pleasing! You alone are the life and soul of My eyes.”

VERSE 3

*satyam evāsi yadi sudati mayi kopinī dehi khara-nayana-śara-ghātam ghaṭaya bhuja-bandhanam janaya rada-khaṇḍanam yena vā bhavati sukha-jātam
priye! cāruṣīle!... (2)*

“O beautiful girl with radiant teeth! If You are really furious with Me, then strike Me with the sharp arrows of Your nails. Bind Me in the ropes of Your arms. Bite My lips with Your teeth. Do whatever arouses Your happiness.”

Commentary

To pacify Śrī Rādhā, Śrī Kṛṣṇa says, “O My dearest Rādhā, whose teeth shine so brightly! Do not be angry with Me. If You really want to give vent to Your fury, then gouge Me with Your piercing nails. And if this does not pacify You, then imprison Me by binding Me in the ropes of Your embrace. If You are still not satisfied, then injure Me with Your teeth. And if that does not appease You, then just do whatever will excite Your pleasure. I deserve to be abused and punished.” On the pretext of accepting punishment, Kṛṣṇa is ardently requesting Rādhā to scratch Him with Her nails, embrace Him and kiss Him.

VERSE 4

*tvam asi mama bhūṣaṇaṁ tvam asi mama jīvanaṁ tvam asi mama bhava-jaladhi-ratnam bhavatu bhavatīha mayi satatam anurodhinī tatra mama hṛdayam ati-yatnam
 priye! cāruṣīle!... (3)*

“You are My only ornament. You are My very life. You are the jewel in the sea of My existence. Be gracious towards Me always. Pleasing You is the sole aim of My life.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā might say, “O Mādhava, I will not punish You. For that, You have other sweethearts, so go and beg from them.” Fearing thus, Śrī Kṛṣṇa says, “Beloved, You alone are My complete adornment. I am fortunate in all respects only when I am decorated by You. More than this, You are the very foundation of My life. You are My prāṇa – without You I cannot even live. So what is the question of other lovers?”

“You are the only treasure in the ocean of existence. Just as one considers Himself fortunate upon finding a wonderful jewel in the ocean, so I feel My life a grand success having found the incomparable gem of a lover like You. Therefore, always be gracious towards Me – I continually strive only for this. All My endeavors are simply for the sake of receiving Your favor.”

VERSE 5

*ñīla-nalinābham api tanvi tava locanaṁ dhārayati kokanada-rūpam
 kusumaśara-bāṇa-bhāvena yadi rañjayasi kṛṣṇam idam etad anurūpam
 priye! cāruṣīle!... (4)*

“O slender maiden, Your blue lotus eyes are now scarlet with anger. Shoot the flower-arrow of Your crooked glance and color My dark figure red with passion.”

Commentary

Śrī Kṛṣṇa says, “Rādhā, Your eyes naturally resemble blue lotus flowers, but now they have assumed the color of a red lotus. Since You are well versed in the art of dyeing, You have become expert in coloring Your eyes with ever fresh and increasing anurāga. It is clear that You are proficient in making dark substances red. If You were to accept Me and color Me scarlet, then My life would be auspicious.

“Therefore, if You pierce Me with the arrows of amorous desire with a sidelong glance, then I will understand that You have employed Your knowledge most befittingly. Rādhā, give up this anger and show Me Your love. Immerse Yourself in erotic play and let Your intrinsic nature shine forth.”

VERSE 6

*sphuratu kuca-kumbhayor upari maṇi-mañjarī rañjayatu tava hṛdaya-deśam rasatu raśanāpi tava ghana-jaghana-maṇḍale ghoṣayatu manmatha-nideśam
priye! cāruṣīle!... (5)*

“May this jeweled necklace shining on Your full breasts beautify the region of Your heart. Let this sash of bells adorning Your plump hips proclaim the edict of Kandarpa.”

Commentary

Here, by means of subtle suggestion Śrī Kṛṣṇa prays to Śrī Rādhā for rati-keli. “May Our auspicious love games commence. Give up Your shyness – You are ready for Cupid’s combat. But before enjoying amour (surata) one must perform the ritual of installing the water pots. May this jeweled necklace illuminate Your large water-pot breasts and enhance their beauty as it swings to and fro. May the sash of bells encircling Your voluptuous hips resound with a sweet kiṇa-kiṇa sound as We make love, thus announcing Kāmadeva's command. His mandate reflects his rising ambitions: 'May all men and women eager for amour during this intoxicating springtime become completely absorbed in romance. Contrary women, give up your resistance and prepare yourselves for rati-kṛīḍā!'"

VERSE 7

*sthala-kamala-gaṅjanam mama hṛdaya-rañjanam janita-rati-raṅga-para-bhāgam bhaṇa masṛṇa-vāṇi karavāṇi caraṇa-dvayam sarasa-lasad-alaktaka-rāgam
priye! cāruṣile!... (6)*

“O soft-spoken girl! Your feet, more beautiful than the land lotus, color My heart as Your radiance fills the stage of love. Utter one word of command and I will paint Your feet with gleaming red lac.”

Commentary

As Rādhā has not given any reply, Śrī Kṛṣṇa encourages Her to speak. “O softly-spoken one, how sweet Your words are! Release the arrow of Your tender words and gently whisper an order. Allow Me to apply red lac to Your feet, more beautiful than a land lotus. When they are painted and become even lovelier, they color My heart red with passion; and during Our amorous play they stimulate kāma. He priya-bhāṣiṇī, O You who speak so endearingly! These colored feet will take on an indescribable splendor in the midst of Our erotic enjoyment. They are the charming reservoir of śṛṅgāra-rasa, the door to the arousal of passion, and the cause of the upsurge of desire. O graceful one, give up Your māna.” When a young man sees a beautiful young maiden's charming feet painted with red lac, his mind becomes overwhelmed with desire.

VERSE 8

smara-garala-khaṇḍanaṁ mama śirasi maṇḍanaṁ dehi pada-pallavam udāram jvalati mayi dāruṇo madana-kadanānalo¹ haratu tad-upāhita-vikāram
 priye! cāruṣile!... (7)

“O My beloved! The delirium of love has lodged in My head. Place the fresh petals of Your enchanting feet there to counteract its poison, and let those feet pacify the harsh fire of amorous desires burning within.”

Commentary

“O Rādhā, My suffering will be vanquished only when You accept Me. An overwhelming flash of Your all-conquering qualities has lit up My heart, and I am helplessly praying to You to kindly place the freshly sprouted buds of Your feet upon My head. These munificent tender feet fulfill the innermost cherished desires of those who pray to them. They are perfect for ornaments because, like new leaves, they are red, soft and cooling. If You offer them upon My head, the poisonous effect of kāma will be counteracted and simultaneously My head will be ornamented.”

Here kāma has been likened to the venom of a snake. “The touch of Your feet destroy the poison of kāma just as the touch of Garuḍa’s feet is the antidote for the poison of a snake. Even My defects, such as the agitation of My mind arising from the heat of kāma, will cease when You offer Your feet to Me. The terrible suffering produced by kāma is burning My heart, turning every vital limb into smoldering coals. The fever of kāma blazing within and without will be vanquished only when You rest Your tender feet upon My head.”

Throughout this song Śrī Kṛṣṇa is anukūla-nāyaka (the favorable lover, faithful to one beloved). The nāyikā, Śrī Rādhā,

1. Some editions of the text read madana-kadanārūṇaḥ – “The affliction of desire burns with the intensity of the blazing sun.”

is praudhā (whose mature, fully developed prema cannot tolerate separation) and mānavatī (indignant). She is exhibiting kilakiñcita-bhāva, simultaneous manifestation of seven anubhāvas – pride, desire, weeping, smiling, envy, fear and anger. Inwardly She is overjoyed to finally have Her beloved present before Her, but nevertheless meets His fervent supplications with indignation and a complex of other emotions.

VERSE 9

*iti caṭula-cātu-paṭu-cāru mura-vairiṇo rādhikām adhi vacana-jātam jayati padmāvati-ramaṇa-jayadeva-kavi-bhāratī-bhaṇitam ati-śātam
priye! cāruśīle!... (8)*

May this endearing and ingenious sweet talk Mura's foe spoke to pacify Śrī Rādhikā, and joyfully sung by the poet Jāyadeva, Padmāvati's dear one, be victorious.

Commentary

The statements of Muravairī Śrī Kṛṣṇa, elicited by His beloved Rādhā's scornful and contrary mood, are both delightful and cogent because they brilliantly illuminate His intense hankering. May they triumph in every respect. This charming song contains ingenious flattery and appealing tender words. May it conquer the hearts of Śrī Śrī Rādhā-Kṛṣṇa (padmāvati-ramaṇa). Alternatively, padmāvati-ramaṇa refers to the eloquent poet Śrī Jayadeva, the husband of Padmāvati. Kṛṣṇa came personally in the guise of Śrī Jayadeva and wrote the line, dehi pada-pallavam udāram ("Kindly bestow upon My head the tender buds of Your munificent lotus feet."), which had been revealed to Śrī Jayadeva in his trance.

This Nineteenth Song of Śrī Gīta-govinda is entitled Caturbhujā-rāgarāji-candrodyota, "Caturbhujā Kṛṣṇa, Reddish with Rādhā's Anurāga, Beams like the Rising Moon."

VERSE 10

parihara kṛtātanke śaṅkāṁ tvayā satataṁ ghanastana-jaghanayā-krānte svānte parān-avakāśini viśati vitanor anyo dhanyo na ko 'pi mamāntaram praṇayini parīrambhārambhe vidhehi vidheyatām

“Fretful Rādhā, be done with Your unfounded suspicions. Your voluptuous breasts and hips always fill My heart, leaving no room for another. Only Madana, the disembodied god of love, has the fortune to enter. My Love, command Me as to what I should do as I begin to embrace You.”

Commentary

Now Śrī Kṛṣṇa is telling Rādhā, “Why has this apprehension uselessly arisen within Your heart? Do not accuse Me of associating with another ladylove. The weight of Your ample breasts and heavy hips have so overpowered My heart that they leave Me no chance even to remember anyone else. Your love has invaded and completely captured My heart so there is not the slightest space left for another. Then how can there be anyone else? The only other who can enter is Madana, and he has no body. O My beloved Rādhā! Now give up Your māna. Do the needful so that I may embrace Your round breasts. Make Me Your servant and grant Me permission to proceed.”

This verse features hariṇī chanda and kāvyaṅga alaṅkāra. Śrī Kṛṣṇa is pragalbha-nāyaka, the bold lover, and Śrī Rādhā is praudha-nāyikā, whose love is mature and who cannot stay a moment without her nāyaka.

VERSE 11

mugdhe vidhehi mayi nirdaya-danta-damśa-dor-valli-bandha-niviḍa-stana-pīḍanāni caṇḍi tvam eva mudam aṅca na pañca-bāṇacāṇḍāla-kāṇḍa-dalanād asavaḥ prayāntu

“O tender, innocent one! Punish Me at once. Bite Me with Your teeth and cruelly hurt Me. Bind Me tightly with the slender creepers of Your arms. Crush Me with Your hard breasts. O angry maiden, You should take pleasure in torturing Me. If Your severe punishment causes My life to leave, I do not mind, but do not allow the arrows of the vile Cupid to bring about My demise.”

Commentary

Śrī Kṛṣṇa pleads, “O lovely fool, if You have no faith in My words, then You can punish Me. What are You waiting for? You are so wrathful that You are not trying to understand Me. So just punish Me as You like. That rogue Cupid is trying to kill Me with his five arrows. Kindly favor Me and prevent him from succeeding.

“My dear naive one, You do not even know Your own good. Do not be so hot-tempered. The outcaste Kāmadeva is piercing Me with his arrows on Your account and My life is ebbing away. Please save Me. May You find satisfaction in punishing Me. Ruthlessly bite Me with Your teeth. Crush Me with Your firm breasts. Bind Me tightly in Your creeper-like arms and as You laugh, tell Me, ‘Now You are My prisoner, and You will never escape.’”

VERSE 12

śāsimukhi tava bhāti bhaṅgura-bhrūr yuva-jana-moha-karāla-kāla-sarpī tad-udita-bhaya-bhañjanāya yūnām tvad-adhara-sidhu-sudhaiva siddha-mantraḥ

“Śāsimukhi, O moon-faced girl! The crooked eyebrows shining on Your face are a formidable black female snake which makes young men like Me fall unconscious out of fear. But the intoxicating nectar flowing from Your lips is indeed the potent mantra to dispel their fear of that serpent.”

Commentary

Taking shelter of vātsyāyana-nyāya (the logic of Vātsyāyana Ṛṣi, the author of Kāma-sūtra), Śrī Kṛṣṇa says, “O Śāśimukhi, although Your face is as gentle as the moon, Your curved eyebrows can bewilder a young man like Me exactly like the fearsome female serpent. They generate intense fear and oh, they look so ferocious. But You are Candra-mukhī, You have a moon-face, so why will You be angry with young men? No youth can survive the bite of this female snake, as it has no antidote. But yes, to counteract the poisonous snake-bite of Your eyebrows there is one siddha-mantra – the nectar of Your lips.”

The chanda of this verse is puṣpitāgrā. The alaṅkāras are kalpitopamā and rūpaka.

VERSE 13

vyathayati vṛthā maunaṁ tanvi prapañcaya pañcamaṁ taruṇi madhurālāpāis tāpaṁ vinodaya dṛṣṭibhiḥ sumukhi vimukhī-bhāvaṁ tāvad vimuñca na muñca mām svayam atiśaya-sniḡdho mugdhe priyo ’yam upasthitaḥ

“O Tanvi, graceful girl, Your vain, stubborn silence is torturing Me. Taruṇi, O tender maiden, sing a melodious love song in the pañcama-svara (note). Destroy My torment with a compassionate glance. Sumukhi, O lovely-faced girl, do not cast Me aside; You should cast away Your indifference instead. Foolish one, Your affectionate lover has come to You.”

Commentary

So far, Śrī Rādhā has met all of Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s suggestions with silence. Now He appeals to Her with courteous words. “Kṛśāṅgi, O slender maiden! How gaunt You have become! Your pointless silence is eating You alive, and this is causing Me great pain. Start singing in the pañcama-svara, the fifth note, and let Your heart be soft. Your voice is sweeter than a cuckoo’s, so speak some honeyed words. O Taruṇi, delicate damsel, let Your gracious glance shower Me with rasa and extinguish all My anguish. O fair-faced Sumukhi, it is not proper for You to disregard Me. Give up Your indifference and Your pride. Mugdhe, O bewildered one, You have lost all sense of discrimination. I am Your beloved, fully devoted to You. I have so much affection for You that I have come without invitation. Look, I am standing before You with tears in My eyes. Come to Me like impassioned girls in the springtime run to their dearest beloveds. Bind Me with Your affectionate glance.”

This verse includes hariṇī chanda, yathāsamratna alaṅkāra, prasāda guṇa, kausikī vṛtti, vaidarbhī rīti and māgadhī gīti. The hero is anukūla-nāyaka, the lover who is finally properly disposed.

VERSE 14

bandhūka-dyuti-bāndhavo 'yam adharah snigdho madhūka-cchavir gaṇḍaś caṇḍi cakāsti nīla-nalina-śrī-mocane locanam nāsābhyeti tīla-prasūna-padaviṁ kundābha-danti priye prāyas tvan-mukha-sevayā vijayate viśvaṁ sa puṣpāyudhaḥ

“My beloved Caṇḍi, My darling hot-tempered girl! Your enchanting lips are red like the kindred bandhūka flower. Your soft cheeks bear the splendor of a madhūka blossom. Your eyes glare more than a gleaming blue lotus. Your nose follows the path of a sesame flower. Your teeth are radiant as white kunda flowers. O My beloved, it is only by first worshiping Your face that the flower-archer Kāmadeva is able to conquer the entire universe with his five flower-arrows.”

Commentary

Kṛṣṇa addresses Rādhā as Caṇḍi (hot-tempered girl) because She is still angry. “My dearest! Five weapons shine upon Your lotus face like the weapons of the flower-archer, Kāmadeva. O passionate one, by borrowing flower weapons from You, the highly acclaimed conqueror of the universe, Kāmadeva, dominates the entire creation. After vanquishing the universe, he returned those weapons, which now, reposing radiantly upon Your face, have become more powerful and more attractive.”

The special characteristics of Kāmadeva’s five arrows are as follows:

1) “Your lips, red as a bandhūka flower, are Kāmadeva’s red ākaraṣaṇa-bāṇa, his arrows that captivate.”

2) “Your cool cheeks wear the elegant golden-white luster of a madhūka blossom, looking as if nectar is just about to ooze out. They are Kāmadeva’s yellow vaśikaraṇa-bāṇa, his arrows that subjugate by casting a spell.”

3) “Your blue eyes, having collected within themselves the essence of all beauty, humiliate the beauty of blue lotus flowers. They are Kāmadeva’s dark blue unmādana-bāṇa, his arrows that intoxicate.”

4) “Your nose resembles a sesame flower. This is drāvaṇa-bāṇa, his arrow that melts the heart.”

5) “Your teeth are like kunda flowers. They are Kāmadeva’s white śoṣaṇa-bāṇa, his arrows that suck up one’s strength.”

“In this way, Kāmadeva attained Your mercy by serving Your face with all five weapons. On the strength of that mercy he conquers the entire universe.”

This verse features śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda and utprekṣā alankāra.

VERSE 15

dṛśau tava madālase vadanam indu-sandīpanam gatiṃ jana-manoramā vijita-rambham ūru-dvayam ratis tava kalāvatiḥ rucira-citra-lekhe bhruvāv aho vibudha-yauvatam vahasī tanvī pṛthvī-gatā

“Tanvi, O delicate damsel! You are like Madālasā, Your indolent eyes intoxicated in rapture. You are like the moonlight nymph Indumatī, Your face aglow. You are like Manoramā, with Your enthralling gait. You are like Rambhā, Your thighs like plantain stalks in motion. You are like Kalāvati, mistress of the erotic arts. You are like Citralekhā, with spellbinding eyebrows. Precious Rādhā! You are like an assembly of young demigoddesses descended to this Earth.”

Commentary

“O slender-waisted Rādhikā! Although You are situated upon this Earth planet, it seems as if all the heavenly goddesses are residing within You. Your eyes are listless as You are intoxicated with the good fortune of having Your lover at Your feet. This has made You so jubilant, My lovely consort, that it appears that the celestial apsarā, Madālasā, is in Your eyes, rolling in pleasure. Your face is the abode of Indumatī, the wife of the moon; yet it is even more essential for Me than moonlight is for the moon. Candramā’s heart fills with envy upon seeing Your face, because he has no power in comparison with You.

“Your walking puts joy in everyone’s hearts; thus goddess Manoramā resides in You. Your thighs, which appear to be the residence of Rambhā, defame the trunk of a plantain tree. Your movements are adorned with all the seductive arts such as hāva, bhāva, vilāsa and kilakiñcita. Therefore You are the abode of goddess Kalāvati. Your eyebrows are fascinating like Citralekhā’s. Although You reside on Earth, it seems that You are heavenly youthful beauty incarnate. In other words, Your youthfulness is divine.”

This verse features pṛthvī-chanda and kalpitopamā-alāṅkāra.

VERSE 16

sa prītiṁ tanutām hariḥ kuvalayāpīḍena sārḍham raṇe rādhā-pīna-payodhara-smaraṇa-kṛt-kumbhena sambhedavān yatra svīdyati mīlati kṣaṇam api kṣipte dvipe tat-kṣaṇāt kamsasyālam abhūt jitaṁ jitaṁ iti vyāmoha-kolāhalaḥ

While fighting with the elephant Kuvalayāpida, whose protruding cranial globes reminded Hari of Śrī Rādhā's stout breasts, He broke out in perspiration and closed His eyes, becoming absorbed in anaṅga-rasa. That instant Kāṁsa's followers joyfully cried out in their confusion, "We have won! We have won!" May that Śrī Hari increase the bliss of the entire universe.

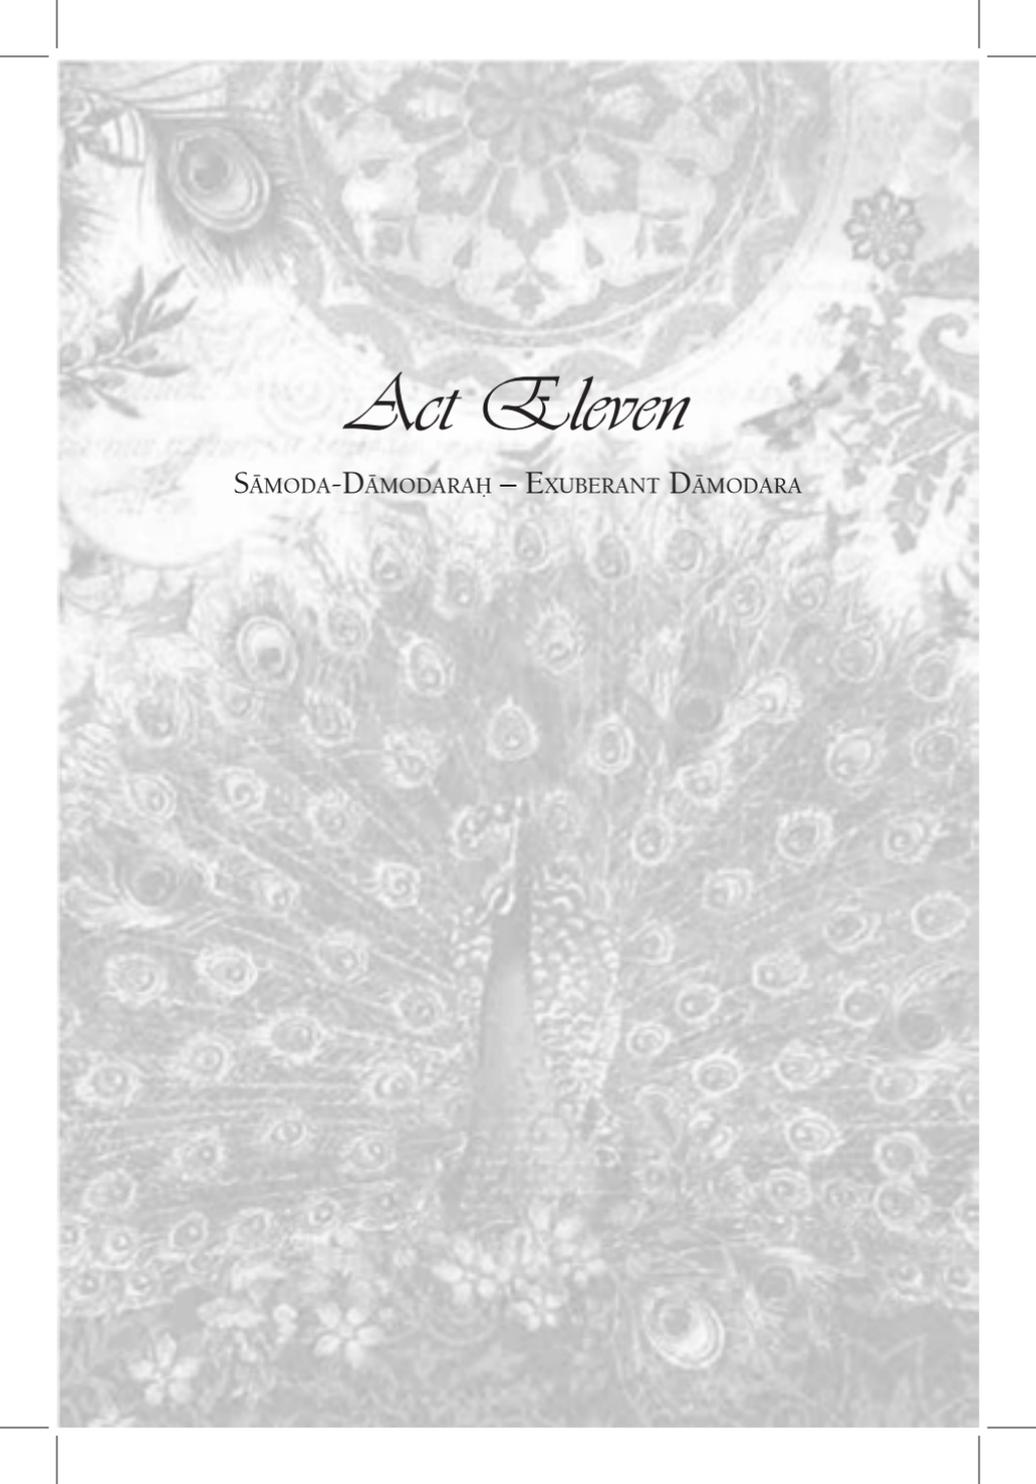

Commentary

Śrī Jayadeva bestows a benediction upon everyone. Śrī Kṛṣṇa, absorbed in glorifying His beloved Śrī Rādhā, remembers the happiness of Her touch, even in an extremely perilous situation. May that Śrī Hari increase Your love.

When Bhagavān Śrī Kṛṣṇa fought with Kāṁsa's elephant, Kuvalayāpida, He saw the elephant's large temples and was reminded of Rādhā's full, round breasts. Due to absorption in anaṅga-rasa, the erotic mellow, He experienced some bodily transformation (sāttvika-bhāva) as if He had been touched by Rādhā; and He closed His eyes in bliss, overwhelmed by memories of the joy of union with Her. Seeing this, Kāṁsa's courtiers exclaimed with great delight, "We have won! Kṛṣṇa has closed His eyes in fear." But as soon as Śrī Kṛṣṇa heard the tumult of their mistaken words, He suppressed His feelings, beat the elephant to the ground, and quickly killed him. Immediately a commotion aroused among Kāṁsa's followers, "Oh, Kṛṣṇa has triumphed! He has triumphed!" This uproar was delightful.

Act Ten has described Kṛṣṇa's agitation on remembering Rādhā. Having lost His composure and exhibiting the ecstasies of amour, Mādhava looks extraordinarily charming.

THUS ENDS THE BĀLABODHINĪ-PRAKĀŚA COMMENTARY ON ACT TEN OF ŚRĪ GĪTĀ-GOVINDA ENTITLED CATURA-CATURBHUJAH,
"CLEVER KṚṢṆA, THE FOUR-ARMED FLATTERER."

Act Eleven

SĀMODA-DĀMODARĀḤ – EXUBERANT DĀMODARA

Act Eleven

SĀMODA-DĀMODARAH – EXUBERANT DĀMODARA

VERSE 1

suciram anunayena prīṇayitvā mṛgākṣīm gataṁ kṛtaveśe keśave kuñja-śayyām racita-rucira-bhūṣām dṛṣṭi-moṣe pradose sphurati niravasādām kāpi rādhām jagāda

Pacifying the doe-eyed Rādhā with His lengthy pleas, Keśava went to the kuñja where He dressed enchantingly and laid on the bed awaiting Her. As twilight came on, spreading its veil of darkness, Rādhā captivately decorated Herself and Her sakhī spoke to Her.

Commentary

Kṛṣṇa continued to plead with Rādhā until late into the day. When She was at last satisfied, He confidently set off to prepare a love-bed in the nikuñja. Her despair now dissolved, the doe-eyed Rādhā was shining with a joy that reflected in the ecstatic emotions overflowing from Her eyes and swelled in Her heart. She wore a dark blue garment to conceal Her journey through the forest, and decorated Herself with suitable enchanting ornaments that also would not draw attention. To intensify Rādhā's eagerness to meet with Kṛṣṇa, Her friend remarked emphatically, "Rādhā, now is it not clear that Madhusūdāna adores You?"

The word pradoṣa indicates that night is falling, and thus vision is obscured. The chanda of the present verse is mālinī.

❧ Song Twenty ❧

The musical mode is vasanta rāga. The rhythm is yati tāla.

VERSE 2

viracita-cātu-vacana-racanaṁ caraṇe racita-praṇipātam samprati mañjula-vañjula-sīmani keli-śayanam anuyātam(1)

mugdhe! madhu-mathanam anugatam anusara rādhike!(refrain)

“After soothing You with flattering words and falling at Your feet, He has returned to the couch of amorous enjoyment in a lovely forest bower of flowering creepers.

“O guileless Rādhikā, go and join the killer of Madhu at once.” (refrain)

Commentary

Her sakhī says, “Rādhikā, the enemy of Madhu is now completely under Your spell. Go and meet with Him at once. Do not waste another second. He has humbly appealed to You with such sweet words, and has thrown Himself at Your feet. He has prepared for Your arrival and is waiting on the pastime-bed in a remote love bower. Run after Him. O foolish one, You are so naive that You do not even know when to rendezvous with Your beloved. Go to Him at once and reciprocate with Him in every way.”

Rādhike – The suffix ka sheds light upon Rādhā’s state of innocence. The refrain is “Follow Madhusūdana. Do not delay.”

The nikuñja with its many trees and creepers has been described as delightful because it stimulates romantic emotions.

VERSE 3

*ghana-jaghana-stana-bhāra-bhare daramanthara-caraṇa-vihāram mukharita-maṇi-mañjīram upaihi vidhehi marāla-nikāram
mugdhe!...(2)*

“Under the weight of Your broad hips and full breasts, You move slowly. With Your jeweled anklets singing out an enchanting call, go to meet Him at a pace more graceful than a royal swan.”

Commentary

“O Rādhā, Your cumbersome hips and large breasts weigh You down, so walk slowly in Your rhythmical gait that embarrasses a swan. Go to the charming arbor of amour accompanied by the melodious ringing of Your jeweled anklebells which arouses passion. O innocent one, do not delay. Placing Your unsteady feet upon the earth and with jeweled anklebells resounding, go and join Madhusūdana.”

VERSE 4

*śṛṇu ramaṇīya-taraṁ taruṇī-jana-mohana-madhuripu-rāvam kusuma-śarāsana-śāsana-vandini pika-nikare bhaja bhāvam
mugdhe!...(3)*

“Listen to the delightful humming of bumblebees enticing tender maidens’ hearts. Enter the mood of the cuckoos melodiously broadcasting Kandarpa’s sweet royal edict.”

Commentary

“Sakhi, set off at once. How many auspicious signs have appeared for the sake of Your tryst! In the spring, the bumblebees’ buzzing resounds in all four directions. They are anxious to sing in harmony with the chime of Your anklebells. Listen to their drone, which bewilders the hearts of alluring maidens. As bumblebees are dark, so is Kṛṣṇa. The humming of the bees signals the time for trysting and fills maidens' hearts with auspiciousness. Indeed, whose mind will not be swayed by their polite flattering appeals?

“Listen! In this spring month Madhu, the cuckoos call out with a shrill cry in pursuance of the proclamation of Kāmadeva. Indeed, they seem to be Kāmadeva’s bards, their fifth note announcing his order. Mix Your moods with those of the cuckoos and let Cupid’s command manifest far and wide. With the beating of drums, announce the flower-archer’s order: ‘May all impassioned youths and maidens enjoy each other without restraint.’”

Madhuripu-rāvam – The word madhuripu, meaning ‘bumblebee,’ alludes to Kṛṣṇa.

The cuckoos’ stimulating effect (vibhāva) has been expressed by the phrase kusuma-śarāsana-śāsana-vandini, the order of the flower-archer.

VERSE 5

anila-tarala-kisalaya-nikareṇa kareṇa latā-nikurambam preraṇam iva karabhoru karoti gatim prati muñca vilambam
mugdhe!... (4)

“O lovely-thighed girl, profusely budding vines dance in the breeze, like hands waving the way to the bower and inviting You to go there, gesturing to Your tapering thighs to quicken their pace. Do not tarry.”

Commentary

Her sakhī says, “O You whose excellent thighs taper like an elephant’s trunk! The creepers flutter in the wind, their leaves like hands beckoning You to join Hari. Go at once. All nature is anxious to unite You with Him. Do not delay any longer.

“The gentle, cool breeze and the signaling of the new leaves trembling in the wind are encouraging You to go. The insentient objects of nature are instructing You as if they were sentient. Therefore Your cherished desire is bound to be fulfilled. Your most beloved Kṛṣṇa, rapt in love for You, is waiting on the love-couch in a bower of vañjula creepers. Go swiftly. Make haste. When You walk, the slope of Your thighs is most attractive.”

VERSE 6

*sphuritam anaṅga-taraṅga-vaśād iva sūcita-hari-parirambham pṛccha manohara-hāra-vimala-jaladhāram amuṁ kuca-kumbham
mugdhe!... (5)*

“Ask Your quivering jug-like breasts what to do. Helplessly trembling in waves of love, and beautified by the immaculate stream of Your enchanting necklace, Your full breasts indicate the imminence of Hari’s embrace.”

Commentary

Her sakhī says, “Rādhā, what thoughts occupy Your mind? Now, what more evidence do You need? If You do not believe me then ask Your own breasts, which are just like waterpots bearing the stream of Your captivating necklace. What is causing them to tremble? They are under the control of the waves of amorous desire and are indicating that Your lover will soon embrace You. Hari will be carried along by the powerful current of rasa from Your breasts, only to be immersed in the ocean of prema. They are intensely hankering for the caress of Hari’s lotus hands. Your breasts are two auspicious pots and the immaculate, charming necklace resting upon them is a flow of pure and sparkling water, whose waves indicate that You are about to attain Your darling. Erotic desire makes Your breasts quiver and thus they augur auspiciousness. Do not think this kāma is a curse and delay any longer. Go quickly.”

VERSE 7

*adhigatam akhila-sakhībhir idam tava vapur api rati-ṛaṇa-sajjam caṇḍi raṇita-rasanā-rava-ḍiṇḍimam abhisara sarasam alajjam
mugdhe!... (6)*

“O Caṇḍi, peevish one, Your sakhīs know well that Your body is arrayed for love battle. So enthusiastically sound the war-drums of Your chiming sash of bells. Shed Your bashfulness and boldly go forth to rendezvous with Your beloved.”

Commentary

The sakhī says to Rādhā, “Now, why are You being so haughty? Your desire has already crossed all limits, so why hesitate? There is no reason to be ashamed to go and meet with Keśava. We are all Your intimate friends. Certainly no one else is here but us, so why be angry? All Your sakhīs can see that Your body is appropriately ornamented with everything required for a love skirmish. Arrayed as the beautiful female warrior, You are now ready for combat. As You set off, the bells on Your waistbelt will ring out like the instruments announcing the march to battle. Declare war! Abandon all shyness and flow along in the current of rasa as You move forward with ever increasing eagerness to meet Hari. O passionate maiden, face the direction of the meeting place. Advance, Caṇḍi!”

Caṇḍi, or ‘belligerent woman,’ is an appropriate address for Rādhā when She is ready to fight.

VERSE 8

*smara-śara-subhaga-nakhena kareṇa sakhīm avalambya sa-līlam cala valaya-kvaṇitair avabodhaya harim api nija-gati-śīlam
mugdhe!... (7)*

“Go forth, playfully resting Your lotus hand on Your companion – Your attractive fingernails like Cupid’s five arrows. With the jingling of Your bracelets celebrate Your arrival to the highly acclaimed Hari.”

Commentary

Her sakhī says to Rādhā, “O fortunate one, the nails of Your soft, charming hands are Kāmadeva’s five flower arrows, fit for the love battle. Hold Your sakhī’s hand and be on Your way, ornamented by Your suggestive hāva-bhāva gestures. Your enchanting nails, as piercing as the shafts of passionate desire, are Your weapons in this amorous skirmish. As a warrior first informs his adversary that he is on the warpath, You should alert Mādhava of Your arrival with the jangling of Your bangles. Now under Cupid’s control, He is eagerly awaiting You, occupied in preparing Himself with the desire to fulfill the hankerings of His heart. Let Him know that You are ready and determined for a love battle.”

VERSE 9

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam adharīkṛta-hāram udāsita-rāmam hari-vinihita-manasām adhiṭṭhatu kaṅṭha-taṭim avirāmam
mugdhe!...(8)*

Śrī Jayadeva’s song is more beautiful than elegant jeweled necklaces and the fairest maidens. May it perpetually grace the throats of those who devote their hearts to Śrī Hari.

Commentary

This song of Śrī Jayadeva puts to shame the beauty of jeweled necklaces and charming damsels. May it always beautify the throats of Bhagavān’s devotees. Vaiṣṇavas such as Parāśara, whose hearts are attached to Bhagavān, will wear this precious necklace narrated by Jayadeva rather than any necklace of jewels and pearls. And they will embrace this song instead of a beautiful woman. Necklaces and attractive maidens adorn the bosom of those who are attached to worldly pleasures, and even then, only during their youth. May this song, glorifying Śrī Hari, adorn the throats of His devotees under all circumstances.

This Twentieth Song of Śrī Gīta-govinda is entitled Śrī Hari-tālarāji-jaladhara-vilāsita, “Śrī Hari – the Dark Raincloud Shining with Rādhā’s Anurāga.” The rasa herein is vipralambha-śṅgāra. The hero is uttama-nāyaka, the topmost lover.

VERSE 10

sā mām draṅsyati vaksyati smara-kathām praty-aṅgam āliṅganaiḥ prītim yāsyati raṁsyate sakhi samāgatyeti cintākulaḥ sa tvām paśyati vepate pulakayaty ānandati svidyati praty-udgacchati mūrcchati sthira-tamaḥ-puñje nikuñje priyaḥ

“Sakhi, Your beloved is wrapped in the dense darkness of a secluded bower, anxiously thinking, ‘When Rādhā comes, Her eyes will be brimming with affection for Me. She will speak words of love, revealing Her amorous desires. She will take delight in fully embracing Me and We will enjoy intimacies.’ Feeling Your presence and thus absorbed, He pines for You, His body trembling, hairs bristling, perspiring profusely and blooming with unlimited joy. Thinking You have come, He steps forward to meet You and faints in the frenzy of pleasure.”

Commentary

Her sakhī says, “Rādhā, Hari behaves strangely as He sits in the dense darkness of the nikuñja. His unusual behavior is symptomatic of His burgeoning thirst for You. Anxiously remembering You, He is overrun with thoughts of amour. He pines for You, thinking, ‘Rādhā will see Me, and will serve Me the sweet, intoxicating wine of Her rasa-laden, impassioned words. She will become overjoyed by embracing My whole body and will then be eager for love games.’

“In this way, Kṛṣṇa becomes exuberant as His heart swells with many desires and expectations. When He sees You in His meditation, He suddenly trembles and thrills with horripilation, feeling the rasa of union with You. As Your amorous play gradually progresses, He becomes drenched in perspiration. Seeing You in this ecstatic vision, He stands up, and then, realizing that You are not there, He falls unconscious.”

This verse features śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda and dīpaka alaṅkāra. The eight sāttvika-bhāvas are divided as follows:

(1) Becoming stunned (stambha) and fading complexion (vaivarṇya) – Waiting anxiously for amour in the dark, He sees Rādhā coming from afar; His complexion fades and He becomes stunned.

(2) Trembling (vepathu) and the rising up of hair (romāñca) – When He dreams about Rādhā’s method of intensifying kāma-keli through Her erotic conversation, He trembles and horripilates.

(3) Tears (aśrū) and perspiration (sveda) – In His imagination, He feels the rapture of Rādhā embracing every one of His limbs and, in the gradual progress of Their lovemaking, He becomes wet with perspiration.

(4) Faltering of the voice (svara-bhaṅga) and devastation (pralaya) – He is unable to call Rādhā’s name when His voice falters in the joy of uniting with Her, and He is devastated when He realizes that He is bereft of Her association.

VERSE 11

akṣṇor nikṣipad añjanam śravaṇayos tāpiccha-gucchāvalīm mūrddhani śyāma-saroja-dāma kucayoḥ kastūrikā-patrakam dhūrtānām abhisāra-satvara-hṛdām viṣvaṅ nikuñje sakhi dhvāntam nīla-nicola-cāru sudṛṣām praty-aṅgam āliṅgati

“Sakhi, look! The night covers the kuñjas with a dark cherished cloak which embraces beautiful adulteresses whose hearts hasten to meet with their cunning lovers. The dark has lined their eyes with black collyrium, it has become the clusters of tamāla leaves on their ears, the dark blue lotus wreaths on their heads, and the leafy designs of musk on their full breasts.”

Commentary

“Rādhā,” Her sakhī continues, “the darkness of the whole world has been gathered up and is cloaking the keli-nikuñja where Śyāma eagerly awaits You. Do not delay another moment. Abhisārikā heroines, dressed in deep dark blue, move unnoticed in the dead of night. Their dear friend, the deep blue darkness of the night, covers them with its embrace and arouses their eagerness for amour with deceitful paramours in remote love bowers. That darkness is the mascara lining their eyes; it is the clusters of dark blue peacock feathers and tamāla leaves adorning their ears; it is the wreath of blue lotuses on their heads and the pictures painted in musk on their breasts.

“That same darkness has also enfolded You in its embrace and is adorning You with its ornaments. Thus suitably attired for Your tryst, set off into the dense darkness. Do not be late. The whole environment is encouraging accomplished lovers to go and meet with their sweethearts. This night, in its endless expansions, is the blue wrap providing full cover. Go! Be on your way! You should arrive there before another rival heroine takes Your place. Do not take the time to decorate Yourself with eye-liner, earrings, garlands, musk paintings or anything else. Just go at once.”

VERSE 12

kāśmīra-gaura-vapuṣām abhisārikāṇām ābaddha-rekham abhito ruci-mañjarībhiḥ etat tamāla-dala-nīla-tamaṁ tamisraṁ tat-prema-hema-nikaṣopalatām tanoti

Saffron-complected bodies of wanton women rushing to join their paramours leave golden streaks in the black tamāla-leaf darkness of night, creating the testing stone for the gold of their love.

Commentary

Her sakhī says, “My dear friend, for abhisārikā heroines whose bodies are as lustrous as saffron, this darkness, deep blue like tamāla leaves, is the testing stone for the gold of love. The darkness is marked everywhere with the lines of their shimmering golden luster.

“The testing stone of the darkness examines the purity of the gold of these young women’s prema. The gold leaves a line on the stone but the color of the stone does not come off on the gold. However, when You enter this dense darkness, golden-limbed Rādhā, the testing stone will make a dark blue line upon Your golden body. Now go to the meeting place as quickly as possible.”

This verse features upamā alaṅkāra and vasanta-tilakā chanda.

VERSE 13

hārāvalī-tarala-kāñcana-kāñci-dāma mañjīra-kañkaṇa-maṇi-dyuti-ḍīpitasya dvāre nikuñja-nilayasya hariṃ vilokya vrīḍavatīm atha sakhīm iyam ity uvāca

Her shining ornaments – the golden waistbelt, the brilliant pendant, the jeweled necklaces, armlets, bracelets and earrings – lit up the whole nikuñja as She stood at the entrance. Beholding Hari She became shy while Her sakhī urged Her on.

Commentary

After being encouraged by Her sakhī, the shy Rādhā arrives at the forest bower. When She sees Śrī Hari is already there, She becomes even more bashful. The radiance of Her ornaments – Her pearl necklace, gold waistbelt, topaz and jeweled earrings – light up the doorway of the nikuñja. She can see Kṛṣṇa waiting for Her by their effulgence and immediately She is overwhelmed with embarrassment.

Desire-filled maidens are naturally shy at the time of their first union and this excites their lovers' kāma. Now the sakhī is pressing Rādhā to enter the love bower.

The chanda of this verse is vasanta-tilakā.

 Song Twenty-one

The musical mode is varāḍī rāga. The rhythm is rūpaka tāla.

VERSE 14

mañjutara-kuñja-tala-keli-sadane vilasa rati-rabhasa-hasita-vadane (1) praviśa rādhe! mādharma-samīpam iha (refrain)

“Your smiling face is blooming with eagerness for amour, and this charming forest arbor is just the place for love play.

“O Rādhā, go inside and enjoy with Mādhava.” (refrain)

Commentary

Her sakhī told Rādhā, “O Rādhikā, Your happy face shows Your enthusiasm for love play; the force of prema makes You smile in jubilation. The playground in this captivating thicket is ready. Please enter and approach Mādhava for romance.”

VERSE 15

nava-bhavad-aśoka-dala-śayana-sāre
vilasa kuca-kalaśa-tarala-hāre
praviśa rādhe!... (2)

“Join Him upon the bed of fresh aśoka leaves as Your necklace gently quivers upon Your full breasts. Approach Mādhava and enjoy with Him.”

Commentary

“The pearl necklace lying restlessly upon Your bosom bespeaks Your eagerness for union. Go and revel upon this bed of tender, young aśoka leaves, elegantly decorated just for You.”

VERSE 16

kusuma-caya-racita-śuci-vāsa-gehe vilasa kusuma-sukumāra-dehe
praviśa rādhe!... (3)

“Enter the pleasure bower radiantly adorned with a profusion of flowers. Your tender body is itself a flower. Approach Mādhava and enjoy with Him.”

Commentary

“Your body is even softer than flower blossoms and this entire pastime retreat is composed entirely of brilliantly sparkling flowers. Therefore enter this shining flower arbor and experience rapture with Mādhava. Go! Proceed without fear; this is Your own boudoir.”

VERSE 17

cala-malaya-vana-pavana-surabhi-śīte vilasa rati-valita-lalita-gīte

(mṛdu-cala-malaya-pavana-surabhi-śīte vilasa madana-śara-nikara-bhīte)
praviśa rādhe!... (4)

“Enter the pastime pavilion of flowering vines, cool with the gentle gusts of the fragrant Malayan breezes. You fear Cupid’s shafts, yet Your sensual singing sets the mood for love. Approach Mādhava and delight in amorous pleasure with Him.”

Commentary

Her sakhī encourages Rādhā, “You are intimidated by Kāmadeva’s arrows, so take shelter in this love chamber where the Malayan breezes blow. The soft touch of the breeze makes the grove of blossoming creepers even more refreshing and aromatic. Enter this temple of prema and romance with Mādhava. The moment has come to express Your inner ecstasy with heartfelt song. Sing out the madly passionate song of love.”

VERSE 18

vitata-bahu-valli-nava-pallava-ghane vilasa ciram alasa-pīna-jaghane
praviśa rādhe!... (5)

“Enter this secluded bower dense with fresh foliage, O buxom-hipped one who moves lazily. Approach Mādhava and leisurely relish pastimes with Him.”

Commentary

“Because of Your broad hips, You move slowly. This nikuñja is a mass of flourishing vines, even more luxuriant now with newly sprouted leaves. No one will be able to see You, so go inside and revel at leisure with Your most beloved Keśava.”

VERSE 19

madhu-mudita-madhupa-kula-kalita-rāve vilasa madana-rasa-sarasa-bhāve
praviśa rādhe!... (6)

“Enter this flowery bower resounding with the humming of bumblebees maddened from drinking honey, O You whose heart is aroused for amour. Approach Mādhava and romance with Him.”

Commentary

“Your passion has been aroused by Kāmadeva. Intoxicated bumblebees, most happy in the spring, are humming in bliss as they drink the honey of the flowers in this thicket. You also enter and taste the honey of amour. This kuñja, abounding with joy, auspiciously opens the way to intimacy. Go inside, Rādhā, go!”

VERSE 20

madhuratara-pika-nikara-ninada-mukhare vilasa daśana-ruci-rucira-śikhare
praviśa rādhe!... (7)

“Romance here under the flowering vines, where flocking cuckoos croon sweetly, O Rādhā, with pearly teeth glowing like ripe pomegranate seeds. Join Mādhava and enjoy with Him.”

Commentary

Her sakhī urges, “O Rādhā, your teeth glisten like sparkling reddish jewels. Enter this nikuñja which is already resounding with the sweet low tone of warbling cuckoos. Sing along with them as You revel to Your heart’s content with Mādhava. No one will hear You.”

VERSE 21

vihita-padmāvati-sukha-samāje kuru murāre maṅgala-śatāni bhaṇati jayadeva-kavirāja-rāje
praviśa rādhe!... (8)

“O enemy of Mura, hearing the emperor of poets, Śrī Jayadeva, singing this song, which gladdens Padmāvati Rādhā’s heart, may You confer unlimited blessings upon all.”

Commentary

Offering his poem at Kṛṣṇa’s lotus feet, Śrī Jayadeva says, “O Murāri, on hearing this song by the king of bards, may You bestow all varieties of auspiciousness upon the entire world.” Padmāvati, the name of Śrī Jayadeva’s wife, also refers to the original Goddess of Fortune, Śrī Rādhā. The supreme poet Jayadeva, a worshiper of Padmāvati, humbly prays to Śrī Hari, “O Murāri, I have established Padmāvati within the secret love bowers of the lofty palace of this Gīta-govinda. Therefore this poetry is for Your happiness. May You be delighted and confer auspiciousness upon us hundreds of times over.”

Alternatively, Śrī Jayadeva personally appeals to Rādhā, “O Padmāvati, He who is the complete wealth of Lakṣmī is joyfully present today within the vilāsa-kuñja. May You confer unlimited auspiciousness upon Him, whose only welfare lies in enjoying amour with You.”

VERSE 22

tvām cittena ciraṁ vahann ayam ati-śrānto bhṛsaṁ tāpitaḥ kandarpeṇa ca pātum icchati sudhā-sambādha-bimbādharā asyāṅkaṁ tad alaṅkuru kṣaṇam iha bhrū-kṣepa-lakṣmī-lavakṛite dāsa ivopasevita-padāmbhoje kutaḥ sambhramah

“O ravishing beauty! Your beloved stands before You, wearied from bearing You in the core of His heart for so long while inflamed with desire. He ardently longs to drink the sweet nectar flowing from Your bimba-fruit lips. Go and adorn the chest of Your eager lover who worships Your lotus feet – a slave purchased merely with just Your precious fleeting glance. Why hesitate any longer?”

Commentary

Her sakhī tells Rādhā, “Hari is wasting away from carrying You in His heart all this time. Severely tormented by Kāmadeva, He has been scorched from deep within. Therefore allow Him to drink the sweet ambrosia of Your red bimba-fruit lips. My dear one, ornament Your lover who is hankering for You. You have purchased Him simply with a shooting glance. Now fully decorate the body of Your footservant, Hari. Why deliberate any further? Without inhibition, adorn His chest at once. Why are You shy? What are you waiting for?”

This verse features rūpaka and utprekṣā alaṅkāras. The chanda is śārdūla-vikṛīḍita.

VERSE 23

sā sa-sādhvasa-sānandaṁ govinde lola-locanā sinjāna-mañju-mañjīraṁ praviveśa niveśanam

Her roving eyes coming to rest on Govinda, Her heart mixing with trepidation and bliss, She entered the nikuñja to the sweet tinkling of jeweled anklebells.

Commentary

Feeling both nervous and elated, Rādhā glanced all around and then rested Her eyes on the expectant Govinda. Following the advice of Her friend She entered the forest bower, just perfect for love games, accompanied by the tinkling of Her anklebells. As She looked at Her beloved, She felt as if He were holding Her with His every limb.

 Song Twenty-two

The musical mode is varāḍī rāga and the rhythm is yati tāla. When an attractively coiffed woman, with bangles on wrists and flowers bunched on her ears, shyly takes up a yak-tail whisk and fans her beloved as she delights in amusement with him, her song is called varāḍī rāga.

VERSE 24

rādhā-vadana-vilokana-vikasita-vividha-vikāra-vibhaṅgam jala-nidhim iva vidhu-maṇḍala-darśana-taralita-tuṅga-taraṅgam (1)

harim eka-rasaṁ ciram abhilaṣita-vilāsam sā dadarśa guru-harṣa-vaśamvada-vadanam anaṅga-nivāsam
 (refrain)

Beholding Rādhā's moon-like face, Kṛṣṇa, the ocean of erotic mellows, bloomed with jubilation, His body undergoing transformations of amorous desire and assuming suggestive gestures, just like the ocean cresting with turbulent waves under the influence of the full moon.

Joyfully Rādhā gazed upon Hari, who was long obsessed with desire to enjoy with Her, His rapturous face appearing like Cupid himself. (refrain)

Commentary

In the nikuñja Rādhā beheld Kṛṣṇa with great affection, appreciating His unique and manifold virtues, all of which find their basis in Her. Śrī Hari is referred to as eka-rasa. The purport is that one rasa, the amorous mellow (śṛṅgāra), is primary and that Kṛṣṇa is brimming with many of its aspects.

He had been obsessed with the desire to enjoy intimacy with Her for a long time and now He was bursting with uncontrollable passion. Rādhā's presence in the pastime bower brought Him back to life. Kṛṣṇa was overwhelmed with happiness simply by seeing Her and as He broke out into sāttvika transformations He began trembling and horripilating. When Kṛṣṇa beheld Rādhā's face, which appeared as the abode of Kāmadeva, He lit up with jubilation. Rādhā's face is the full moon, upon seeing which the Kṛṣṇa ocean becomes turbulent and heaves with towering waves. Rādhā noticed that as soon as Kṛṣṇa beheld Her, He began to manifest many kinds of amatory emotions, indicating His desire to consummate Their love.

VERSE 25

*hāram amalātara-tāram urasi dadhatam parilambya vidūram sphuṭātara-phena-kadamba-karambitam iva yamunā-jala-pūram
harim eka-rasam... (2)*

A lustrous pearl necklace swinging on His broad chest appeared like masses of white foam bobbing in the dark waters of the Yamunā.

Commentary

Kṛṣṇa is compared to the broad current of the Yamunā River. An auspicious pearl necklace that hangs down to His knees, repeatedly embraces His dark blue chest, giving the impression of the Yamunā's dark waters mixed with white foam. It is also implied that profuse perspiration is clearly visible on Kṛṣṇa's body as He breaks out into sāttvika-bhāvas due to seeing Śrī Rādhā.

VERSE 26

*śyāmala-mṛdula-kalevara-maṇḍalam adhigata-gaura-dukūlam nīla-nalinam iva pīta-parāga-paṭala-bhara-valayita-mūlam
harim eka-rasam... (3)*

His delicate dark body draped with yellow garments looked like a blue lotus dusted thick with its own golden pollen.

Commentary

Having thrown a yellow shawl over His dark blue transcendental body, Śrī Hari resembles a blue lotus flower, ornately covered by its own yellow pollen. This also indicates that Rādhā's golden limbs will be even more beautiful upon Kṛṣṇa's dark blue chest. In this way, Kṛṣṇa's yellow garments herald the awaited viparīta-rati.

VERSE 27

*tarala-dṛg-añcala-calana-manohara-vadana-janita-rati-rāgam sphuṭa-kamalodara-khelita-khañjana-yugam iva śaradi taḍāgam
harim eka-rasam... (4)*

Provocative glances playing on His enchanting blue lotus face – appearing like wagtails flitting among lotus blossoms in the autumn pond – aroused Her passion.

Commentary

When Rādhā entered the nikuñja and saw Kṛṣṇa's charming face with its mild smile and eyes now restless, the desire to enjoy amorous pleasure stirred in Her heart. Kṛṣṇa's smiling face with its darting eyes resembled a fully blossomed autumn lotus upon which were sporting two wagtail birds. On beholding Rādhā, Kṛṣṇa became stunned; therefore He has been compared to an autumn lake. The restlessness of His eyes reveals His thirst for amour, and His sidelong glances inflame Rādhā's passion. His charming face awakens young women's desire for romance.

VERSE 28

*vadana-kamala-pariśilana-milita-mihira-sama-kuṇḍala-śobham smita-ruci-kusuma-samullasitādhara-pallava-kṛta-rati-lobham
harim eka-rasam... (5)*

His jeweled earrings, reflecting the morning sun, glowed like a pair of pink sun globes rising to caress His shining lotus face. His flower-bud lips blossoming into a gentle, radiant smile caused Her passion to swell.

Commentary

Kṛṣṇa's earrings appear like two rising suns reaching His cheeks to attain the touch of His blooming lotus face – the beauty of the one ascending to contact the beauty of the other. The light of dawn is a reminder that the time for amour is about to end. Even so, Kṛṣṇa's gentle, inviting smile increases the radiance of His face, and His flower-bud lips, eager to kiss Rādhā's, express His ongoing thirst for romance. As She beholds His lotus face – the ornament of the essence of beauty – the desire for amorous love also rises in Her heart.

VERSE 29

*śaṣi-kiraṇa-cchuritodara-jaladhara-sundara-sakusuma-keśam timirodita-vidhu-maṇḍala-nirmala-malayaja-tilaka-niveśam
harim eka-rasam... (6)*

The flowers strewn in His hair appeared like moonbeams piercing through a cloud bank, and the radiant sandal paste tilaka on His forehead like the full moon high in a dark sky.

Commentary

Kṛṣṇa's beautiful curling locks are adorned with radiant, fully blossomed flowers, giving the impression of the moon hidden amongst a mass of dark clouds. That is, the rays of the moon are pervading His dark tresses. The Malayan sandalwood tilaka on Kṛṣṇa's dark forehead looks like the full moon risen in the dark sky. Rādhā's presence casts a golden tint on Kṛṣṇa's clothing and ornaments and She now is beholding that golden Śyāmasundara.

VERSE 30

*vipula-pulaka-bhara-danturitam rati-keli-kalābhir adhīram maṇi-gaṇa-kiraṇa-samūha-samujjvala-bhūṣaṇa-subhaga-sarīram
harim eka-rasam... (7)*

Her glance caused His bodily hairs to bristle in excitement, His restless mind became eager for sensual play, and bedecked with luminous jewels His pleasing form glowed.

Commentary

Rādhā was astonished to see the wonderful way Kṛṣṇa's skin was rippling with pleasure and how His bodily hairs were rising up. The sight of Rādhā caused Kṛṣṇa's excitement to mount with the expectation of immanent love play as He contemplated kissing and other practices of the erotic arts. Rādhā gazed upon Kṛṣṇa, who was dazzlingly beautiful, wearing ornaments of sparkling jewels emitting effulgent rays that illuminated His whole body.

VERSE 31

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇita-vibhava-dviguṇīkṛta-bhūṣaṇa-bhāram praṇamata hṛdi vinidhāya harim suciram sukṛtodaya-sāram
harim eka-rasam... (8)*

Kṛṣṇa's ornaments indeed make Him splendid, but the ornamental language of Śrī Jayadeva's lyrical song redoubles His splendor. O rasika bhaktas, Kṛṣṇa is the fruit of all your pious activities. With great care, may you hold Him within your hearts and reverentially adore Him forever.

Commentary

To conclude, Śrī Jayadeva says, "O devoted ones! The poetry of the crest jewel of bards, Śrī Jayadeva, has doubled the beauty of Kṛṣṇa's ornaments. In other words, the highly embellished flowery language of this narration heightens Kṛṣṇa's grandeur. Kṛṣṇa's appearance in the heart is the fruit of all your pious activities accumulated over a vast period of time. Treasure Him and bow before Him."

When Kṛṣṇa unites with Rādhā, His attributes are greatly enhanced, being decorated by Her ornaments also and again by the influence of Their meeting. "May that very Kṛṣṇa, upon whom Śrī Rādhā gazes incessantly, be graciously present within your heart for eternal time." Such a captivating appearance of Kṛṣṇa arises within one's heart as a result of immense piety.

This Twenty-second Song of Śrī Gīta-govinda is entitled Sānanda-govinda-rāga śreṇi-kusumābharāṇa, "The Flower Garland of the Blissful Govinda's Vehement Desires."

VERSE 32

atikramyāpāṅgaṁ śravaṇa-patha-paryanta-gamana prayāsenevākṣṇos taralātara-tāraṁ patitayoḥ tadānīm rādhāyāḥ priyatama-samāloka-samaye papāta svedāmbu-prakara iva harṣāśru-nikaraḥ (9)

As Radha's hungered eyes happily fell upon Her lover, they strained so much in their attempt to swallow Him that they practically touched Her ears, giving rise to tears of joy that fell like a stream of perspiration.

Commentary

After agonizing in separation for such a long time, when Rādhā finally met with Kṛṣṇa, She experienced a jubilation that knew no bounds, and that overflowed from Her large eyes. These tears appeared like the perspiration that comes from relishing love play. Alternatively, Her eyes tried to overreach their corners and stretch to Her ears in an attempt to hear something. It was as if the perspiration, arising from the hard endeavor of Her fatigued, half-closed eyes, was falling like tears of joy. Rādhā's eyes were also overly restless due to their intense hankering to feast upon Her beloved.

This verse, which reveals Rādhā's sāttvika-bhāva, features upamā alaṅkāra and śikharīṇī chanda. Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī quotes this verse in Ujjvala-nīlamanī (12.25) to illustrate aśru sāttvika-bhāva, the flowing of tears out of joy.

VERSE 33

bhajantyās talpāntaṁ kṛta-kapaṭa-kaṇḍūti-pihita smitaṁ yāte gehād bahir avahitāli-parijane priyāsyam paśyantyāḥ smara-śara-samāhūta-subhagam salajjā lajjāpi vyagamad iva dūraṁ mṛga-dṛśaḥ

As the doe-eyed Rādhā took Her seat upon the flower couch, Her companions were eager to make Her happy. They tactfully concealed their smiles by pretending to scratch their faces and came out from the nikuñja. Kindled by erotic desire, She fired a charming sidelong glance at Her lover, causing Her shyness to flee away in embarrassment.

Commentary

The moment Rādhā sat down on the bed, Her considerate sakhīs understood that it would not be proper for them to stay there any longer, as their presence would impede Śrī Rādhā-Mādhava's sweet meeting. Smiling and scratching their ears and making various excuses, those shrewd sakhīs exited from the flowery arbor. Now alone with Her sweetheart, Rādhā came totally under the spell of Kāmadeva's arrows and gazed at Him as if to pierce Him with those same arrows. Witnessing Rādhā's boldness, the goddess of shyness herself became embarrassed, just like the sakhīs, and abandoned the doe-eyed Rādhā. Now, how will inhibition remain in this amorous affair? With Her unremitting stare, Rādhā took complete possession of Her beloved.

This verse features rasavad alaṅkāra and śikhariṇī chanda.

VERSE 34

sānandaṁ nanda-sūnur diśatu mita-param sammadaṁ manda-mandaṁ rādhāṁ ādhāya bāhvor vivaram anu dṛḍhaṁ pīdayan prīti-yogāt tuṅgau tasyā urojāv atanu-vara-tanor nigatau mā sma bhūtām pṛṣṭhaṁ nirbhīdya tasmād bahir iti valita-grīvam ālokyan vaḥ

The son of Nanda slowly and gently took Rādhā in His arms. His embrace tightening with affection, He felt as if Her protruding breasts might pierce through His back. May that Śrī Kṛṣṇa confer bliss upon all.

Commentary

Nanda's son, Śrī Gopāla, and Rādhā have met together alone. Now fully enraptured, Kṛṣṇa slowly and tenderly enfolded Her in His embrace. As Rādhā is more delicate than an acacia flower, Kṛṣṇa held Her gently in His arms, but, driven by increasing thirst for Her love, He tightened His embrace. Kṛṣṇa felt as if Rādhā's pointed breasts were about to pierce all the way through His back. In this context, the hard and penetrating nature of Her breasts is being revealed, indicating the extreme sensual appeal and fresh feminine youthfulness of Her natural beauty. Otherwise She is softer than a flower.

This verse features śṛṅgāra-rasa, vaidarbhī rīti, prasāda guṇa and sragdharā chanda.

VERSE 35

jayaśrī-vinyastair mahita iva mandāra-kusumaiḥ svayaṁ sindūreṇa dvipa-raṇa-mudā mudrita iva bhujāpīḍa-kṛīḍā-hata-kuvalayāpīḍa-kariṇaḥ prakīrṇāśrg-bindur jayati bhujā-daṇḍo murajitaḥ

When Kṛṣṇa playfully killed the elephant Kuvalayāpīḍa, His broad arms were spattered with drops of blood. It seemed that they had been anointed with red sindura out of joy in fighting and that they had been worshiped with a shower of red mandāra flowers by the Goddess of Victory. May Murajita's strong arms be ever triumphant.

Commentary

Śrī Jayadeva says, "May Śrī Kṛṣṇa's excellent arms confer auspiciousness upon you all. They are praiseworthy throughout the entire universe. He is known as Murajita because His arms, like rods of chastisement, brought an end to the Mura demon.

His formidable arms also sportively dispatched Kaiṣa's elephant, Kuvalayāpīḍa. When drops of the elephant's blood splattered on His arms, it seemed as if the Goddess of Victory was personally worshiping Him with pārijāta flowers. Kṛṣṇa's delight in killing the elephant assumed the form of vermilion." It is said that Kṛṣṇa remembered Rādhā when He saw the elephant's protruding cranial globes. Therefore, although His arms were beautified by drops of blood, they seemed to be decorated with the vermilion of bliss or by mandāra flowers offered by Vijaya-Lakṣmī, the Goddess of Victory.

"May those strong arms bestow auspiciousness upon all. O Śrī Kṛṣṇa's arms, triumph unto you! Triumph!"

This verse features śikhariṇī chanda, anuprāsa and utprekṣā alaṅkāras, pāñcālī rīti, ārabhaṭī vṛtti and vira-rasa.

VERSE 36

saundaryaika-nidher anaṅga-lalanā-lāvanya-lilā-juṣo rādhāyā hydi palvale manasija-kṛīdaika-raṅga-sthale ramyoroja-saroja-khelana-rasivād ātmanah khyāpayan dhyātur mānasa-rāja-hamsa-nibhatām deyaṅ mukundo mudam

Śrī Rādhā, the ocean of all beauty, is more lustrous than Cupid's consort Rati-devi. Mukunda, the king of swans, is engrossed in play with Her lotus breasts upon the enchanting stage of the lake of Her heart, just as the regal swans of Mānasa-sarovara play among its lotus flowers. May Śrī Mukunda, who praises those who cherish this vision of Him in their hearts, bestow happiness upon all.

Commentary

Mukunda refers to He who releases everyone from distress and bestows bliss. In this verse the crest jewel of poets, Śrī Jayadeva, gives a benediction to his readers and audience by describing Rādhā as the exclusive ocean of all beauty and Her bosom as Śrī

Kṛṣṇa's playground. The poet has compared Rādhā's chest to a lake upon which are growing the two enchanting lotus flowers of Her breasts. The playful Kṛṣṇa is the king of swans who takes His pleasure there. That Kṛṣṇa swan also sports on Mānasa-sarovara, the lake of the hearts of those swan-like sages who meditate upon that vision of Him. May this rāja-hamsa Mukunda confer auspiciousness upon all His devotees.

THUS ENDS THE BĀLABODHINĪ-PRAKĀŚA COMMENTARY ON ACT ELEVEN OF ŚRĪ GĪTA-GOVINDA, ENTITLED SĀNANDA-DĀMODARAḤ, “EXUBERANT DĀMODARA.”

Act Twelve

SUPRĪTA-PĪTĀBARAH – PĪTĀBARA PERFECTLY PLEASED

Act Twelve

SUPRĪTA-PĪTĀBARAH – PĪTĀBARA PERFECTLY PLEASED

VERSE 1

gatavati sakhī-vṛnde 'manda-trapā-bhara-nirbhara smara-śara-vaśākūta-sphīta-smīta-snapitādharaṁ sarasa-manasaṁ dṛṣṭvā rādhāṁ muhur nava-pallava prasara-śayane nikṣiptākṣim uvāca hariḥ priyām

When Her friends had left, the shy Rādhā became possessed by Kāmadeva. Her lips bathed with a broad smile, She stared wistfully at His bed of tender petals, Her passion for love play growing. Seeing Her mood, Hari spoke to His sweetheart.

Commentary

When in the vine-covered nikuñja Rādhā approached the love couch, Her sakhīs felt like intruders and excused themselves. Kṛṣṇa observed that Rādhā had been feeling overly shy, and now influenced by kāma, an open smile was playing on Her lips as She looked expectantly at the bed of tender petals. Her mind filled with unquenchable desire as the fresh flower couch gripped Her attention, leaving Her unable to speak. Seeing Rādhā's disposition, Hari spoke to Her with intense passion.

The meter of this verse is hariṇī. This act describes the svadhīna-bhartṛkā heroine, who completely subjugates her compliant lover.

❧ Song Twenty-three ❧

The musical mode is vibhāsa rāga. The rhythm is ekatāli tāla.

VERSE 2

kisalaya-śayana-tale kuru kāmīni caraṇa-nalina-viniveśam tava paḍa-pallava-vairi-parābhavam idam anubhavatu suveśam (1)

kṣaṇam adhunā nārāyaṇam anugatam anusara rādhike! (refrain)

“O amorous one, place Your flower-like feet upon this bed of tender petals. Rivaling the softness of Your velvety feet, My bed of fresh petals should now feel the humiliation of defeat.

“O Rādhikā, I am Your subservient Nārāyaṇa. Come to Me now.” (refrain)

Commentary

Śrī Hari said to Rādhā, “O impassioned maiden, place Your lotus feet on this bed of soft petals, the competitors of Your petal-like feet. Crush them with Your feet, and let them realize defeat. This is how an adversary conquers his enemy. My love, seeing You is a happy event for Me. Let this joyful moment continue by allowing Me to partake of the delightful festival of union with You. Now the moment has come to enjoy amour with Your subservient Nārāyaṇa.”

To set the ground for the creation of rasa, Kṛṣṇa said, “I am Nārāyaṇa.” Nārāyaṇa has two meanings: He who resides (ayana) in the water (nāra); and He who is the shelter (ayana) of all living entities (nāra). By this Kṛṣṇa implies, “Playing in the ocean brings joy to a distressed person. So come and sport in the ocean of My prema. Enjoy love play and relieve Your burning desire, thus making the two of Us refreshed and happy.”

The word anugata (subordinate) implies, “Although I am the beloved of many, You are the only love of My life.” The phrase ‘place Your feet’ on the bed reveals that Kṛṣṇa has a specific activity in mind.

VERSE 3

*kara-kamalena karomi caraṇam aham āgamitāsi vidūram kṣaṇam upakuru śayanopari mām iva nūpuram anugati-śūram
kṣaṇam adhunā... (2)*

“My dear one, You have walked so far. Let Me soothe Your feet with My lotus hands. As I am a valiant follower of Your anklebells, come and favor Me upon My bed for a moment.”

Commentary

Śrī Kṛṣṇa says, “O Rādhā, You have traveled such a long distance. Come, let Me worship Your lotus feet by massaging them with My hands. Like Your anklebells, I am always ready to follow You wherever You go. Likewise, I am also eligible for Your favor. So bless Me by gracing My bed, just as You favor Your anklebells by wearing them.”

VERSE 4

*vadana-sudhā-nidhi-galitam amṛtam iva racaya vacanam anukūlam viraham ivāpanayāmi payodhara-rodhakam urasi dukūlam
kṣaṇam adhunā... (3)*

“Speak pleasant words that trickle like nectar from the moon of Your face. I desire to remove separation personified in the form of the garment that covers Your breasts and obstructs Our togetherness.”

Commentary

“O Rādhā, kindly utter sweet words that will arouse love. I have been suffering in separation from You. As nectar flows from the moon, please shower Me with the nectar of Your mellifluous love talk flowing from Your moon-like face.” According to the principle of correlation between the subject and object of a simile, it is equally valid to say, ‘I remove the separation which is like a fine cloth,’ or, ‘I remove the fine cloth of separation.’ “As separation obstructs Our union, the fine cloth upon Your breasts impedes Our meeting. Therefore allow Me to remove this barrier. The breasts of passionate women wither in separation; furthermore, they do not flourish when hidden by a garment, so I will remove the covering of separation that checks the radiance of Your bosom.”

VERSE 5

*priya-parirambhaṇa-rabhasa-valitam iva pulakitam ati-duravāpam mad-urasi kuca-kalaśam viniveśaya śoṣaya manasija-tāpam
kṣaṇam adhunā... (4)*

“My dear, Your full breasts, prohibited to the touch, now throb in excitement, eager for the embrace of Your beloved. Press them on My chest and vanquish the heat of My unfulfilled desires.”

Commentary

“O Rādhā, hold your pitcher-like breasts on My chest as if placing vessels upon a sacrificial altar. Thus cool the heat of My passion, as heat is vanquished by the presence of a water pot. Your ample breasts are pulsating in excitement. Without Your assent, the touch of Your breasts is next to impossible, but now they are primed for Your sweetheart’s embrace. Therefore, place them on My heart and drive away My burning kāma.”

VERSE 6

*adhara-sudhā-rasam upanaya bhāmini jīvaya mṛtam iva dāsam tvayi vinihita-manasaṁ virahānala-dagḍha-vapuṣam avilāsam
kṣaṇam adhunā... (5)*

“My heart, burning from rejection and bereft of all pleasure, knows only You. Bhāmini, O haughty girl, revive this dying slave with Your lips’ ambrosia.”

Commentary

“O Bhāmini, My dear indignant one! I am nothing but a slave at Your feet. Be gracious and give up Your contrary behavior – be done with Your anger. I have been burning with loneliness and I could not stop thinking about You. Rejuvenate this dying servant with the nectar of Your lips and bring Me back to life. It is common knowledge that amṛta can infuse new life into a dead person. Even though deprived of all happiness, still My heart is fully fixed on You. Your spurning has reduced Me to cinders, so kindly sprinkle Me with the nectar of Your lips.”

VERSE 7

*śaśimukhi mukharaya maṇi-raśanā-guṇam anugūṇa-kaṅṭha-ninādam śruti-puta-yugale pika-ruta-vikale śamaya cirād avasādam
kṣaṇam adhunā... (6)*

“O beautiful moon-faced girl, let the jewels on Your cummerbund resonate along with Your sweet voice. Soothe the long torture My ears have suffered from the cuckoo’s harsh call.”

Commentary

“He candrānane, O radiant moon-faced maiden, You are the moon dripping with nectar. Make the jeweled bells on Your girdle sing out in harmony with Your sweet voice so that when You take the lead in lovemaking those bells will mark rhythm along with Your rapturous cooing. For lonely lovers, the cuckoos’ call is simply painful. Their singing, stimulating memories of You, brought distress to My ears; now fill them with Your music and allay this long deprivation.”

VERSE 8

*mām ati-viphala-ruṣā vikalī-kṛtam avalokitum adhunedam mīlita-lajjitam iva nayanam tava virama viśṛja rati-khedam
kṣaṇam adhunā... (7)*

“Your furious eyes cast Me into distress. Having tortured Me with baseless anger, they now half closed in shame. Glance in My direction and set Our passion free.”

Commentary

“O Rādhā, You glared at Me with anger in Your eyes for no reason, thus causing Me distress. Your show of wrath has left Me shattered. But now Your glance is showering prema. The furious glance is ashamed, so Your eyes are half closed. Now they should also give up this useless expression. Be pleased with Me and enthusiastically cast aside Your reluctance for romance.”

Verse 9

*śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam anupadanigadita-madhuripu-modam janayatu rasika-janeṣu manorama-rati-rasa-bhāva-vinodam
kṣaṇam adhunā... (8)*

Every word of Śrī Jayadeva’s poem resounds with the rapture of Madhuripu Śrī Kṛṣṇa. May this song arouse the pleasure of these delightful amorous pastimes in the hearts of rasika devotees.

Commentary

In this song, entitled Madhuripu-moda-vidyādhara-līlā, “Madhuripu Enjoying Amorous Affairs,” Śrī Jayadeva has encapsulated Madhusūdana’s ever increasing ecstasy. The incomparable nature and pre-eminence of śṛṅgāra-rasa is accepted unanimously among the expert devotees. “May this song awaken the enchanting joy of the erotic mellow in the hearts of connoisseurs of spiritual love.”

This composition is pleasing to Śrīpati Śrī Kṛṣṇa, for it awakens sambhoga śṅgāra-rasa and brings amorous emotions into full bloom.

VERSE 10

pratyūhaḥ pulakānkureṇa nividāśleṣe nimeṣeṇa ca krīḍākūta-vilokite 'dhara-sudhā-pāne kathā-kelibhiḥ ānandādhigamena manmatha-kalā-yuddhe 'pi yasminn abhūd udbhūtaḥ sa tayor babhūva suratārambhaḥ priyam bhāvukāḥ

They began Their long-awaited amorous contest, intent on tasting pleasure. But Their rapture was interrupted – by horripilation from the thrill of Their deep embrace, by blinking eyes unable to observe each other’s expert tactics, by erotic sweet talk impeding drinking the nectar of each other’s lips. And even rapture itself became an obstacle in Their artful conjugal sparring.

Commentary

In this verse Śrī Jayadeva explains that Rādhā-Mādhava have now begun Their long-awaited and intensely pleasureable amorous play. At the onset of Their love games, the rapturous rippling of Their skin created an obstacle, as the bristling of Their hairs naturally impeded Their coming together in an embrace. Furthermore, the blinking of Their eyes, obstructing Their careful observation of each other, became intolerable as They were eager to watch each other’s special intentions. As They drank the nectar of each other’s lips, Their love chatter just seemed to get in the way. After all, when lovers are kissing, even sweet talk is intolerable – tasting each other’s lips becomes much more pleasureable than inciting each other with provocative words. Even the attainment of rapture seemed to be an impediment in the amorous battle.

Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī has quoted this verse in Ujjvala-nīlamañi (15.256) as an example of samprayoga-līlā, conjugal union. This verse features śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda, yathāsaṅkhyā alānkāra and the śṛṅgāra-rasa called sambhoga. The present verse is an introduction to the Twenty-fourth Song entitled Candrahāsa, “Kṛṣṇa – the Beaming Moon.”

VERSE 11

dorbhyām samyamitaḥ payodhara-bhareṇāpīḍitaḥ pāñijair āviddho daśanaīḥ kṣatādharma-putaḥ śronī-tateṇāhataḥ hastenānamitaḥ kace 'dhara-madhu-syandena sammohitaḥ kāntaḥ kām api tṛptim āpa tad aho kāmasya vāmā gatiḥ

Bound by Her arms, crushed under the weight of Her breasts, scratched by Her fingernails, bitten on the lips by Her teeth, pummeled by Her hips, held down by the hair with Her hand, and enraptured by the stream of sweet honey from Her lips, yet Her beloved attained an inexpressible elation. The ways of love are indeed mysterious.

Commentary

The poet Śrī Jayadeva is describing viparīta-rati in this verse. He states that Kṛṣṇa has attained an indescribable fulfillment. Therefore it is said that the ways of kāma are contradictory and beyond ordinary experience. This paradox arises from the appearance of another rasa. As a criminal takes shelter of chivalry (vīra-rasa) to accept his punishment, Kṛṣṇa took shelter of vīra-rasa and progressed through the stages of being arrested, beaten, pierced, bound, wounded and forced to submit. Finally He fell into an embarrassed stupor.

Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa’s enthusiasm is relentless, and neither side is prepared to withdraw from this love battle. Rādhā inflicted a variety of punishments on Kṛṣṇa through viparīta-rati: She bound Him in the prison of Her arms, oppressed and trounced Him with the weight of Her breasts, wounded Him with Her nails and bit His lips with Her teeth, bashed Him with Her broad hips, and grabbed His hair with Her hands as She drank the current of honey from His lips. Thus, Rādhā brought Her lover to the point of complete bewilderment. Such love is a matter of great wonderment!

This verse features śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda and rasavad alankāra. Some scholars also refer to this verse as a specific sub-section entitled Kāminīhāsa, “The Laughing, Impassioned Heroine.”

VERSE 12

mārāṅke rati-keli-saṅkula-ṛaṅārambhe tayā sāhasaprāyaṁ kānta-jayāya kiṅcid upari prārambhi yat-sambhramāt niṣpandā jaghana-sthālī śīthilatā dor-vallir utkampitaṁ vakṣo mīlitam akṣi pauruṣa-rasaḥ strīṅām kutah sidhyati

At the onset of the love battle, Śrī Rādhā, spurred by kāma, initiated a vigorous assault, assuming the dominant role in an attempt to gain a hasty victory over Her lover. But She soon languished – Her hips stilled, Her vine-like arms slackened, Her breasts heaved and Her eyes closed. Indeed, how can a woman ever be successful in assuming the masculine role in love?

Commentary

Continuing the previous description, the author presents a further development of śṛṅgāra-rasa amalgamated with vīra-rasa. Therefore this verse should be accepted in the context of the previous one. From the perspective of philosophical principles (tattva-vicāra), Rādhā is present in the left side of Kṛṣṇa’s body. As Their intense amorous war began, Rādhā, full of fighting spirit, strove for victory and impetuously assailed Her lover, aggressively binding and striking Him, etc. However, She eventually became completely exhausted. Her hips stopped moving, and Her arms fell limp. Unable to move, She could no longer bind Him. Her breasts began to heave deeply and Her eyes closed. Some people say that women are weaker and they cannot maintain the dominant male position (pauruṣatva). How can vīra-rasa possibly arise in them?

Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī has quoted this verse in Ujjvala-nīlamaṇi (13.18) as an example of the sañcāri-bhāva, ‘surata-hetu-glāni’, weariness resulting from amorous play. Some scholars call this verse Pauruṣa-prema-vilāsa, “The Masculine Role in Romance.” It features śārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda, viśeṣokti alaṅkāra and sambhoga-śṛṅgāra-rasa.

VERSE 13

tasyāḥ pātala-pāñijānkitam uro nidrā-kaṣāye dṛṣau nirdhauto ’dhara-śoṇimā vilulitāḥ srasta-srajo mūrdhajāḥ kāñcī-dāma dara-ślathāncalam iti prātar nikhātair dṛṣor ebhiḥ kāma-sarais tad-adbhutam abhūt patyur manaḥ kīlitam

He contemplated Her condition at dawn – Her breasts now pink with fingernail marks, Her sleepy eyes red, Her scarlet lip gloss washed away from profuse kisses, the flowers in Her disheveled hair withered, Her waistbelt and shawl loose. And again Kāmadeva’s five flowery shafts pierced Kṛṣṇa’s heart. How astonishing!

Commentary

Here Śrī Jayadeva adds that Rādhā’s five lust-provoking arrows penetrated Kṛṣṇa’s mind again, even when Their lovemaking was over. Astounding, is it not! In the early morning, Kṛṣṇa’s amorous desires reawakened. His mind was naturally pierced on beholding Rādhā. Her limbs are the embodiment of Cupid’s powerful arrows, which entered His heart through the pathway of His eyes. In which of Her limbs did Kṛṣṇa see the arrows that excited His kāma? In answer Śrī Jayadeva says:

(1) Palāśa puṣpa-bāṇa – Kṛṣṇa had marked Rādhā’s breasts with His fingernails while They were making love. Therefore Her breasts are the pink crocus flower arrow.

(2) Kamala puṣpa-bāṇa – Her eyes had become red from being awake throughout the night. Therefore Her eyes are the lotus flower arrow.

(3) Bandhujīva puṣpa-bāṇa – When Rādhā's red lip gloss was washed away, Her lips' natural luster was revealed. Therefore Her lips are the phoenicia flower arrow.

(4) Mālatī puṣpa-bāṇa – The flower garland adorning Rādhā's dishevelled hair withered and fell, having been crushed during Their love games. Therefore this wilted garland is the jasmine flower arrow.

(5) Kusumāstra-bāṇa – Rādhā's sash and veil had become slack. They are Kāmadeva's golden arrows such as the bauhinia flower.

This verse is a specific sub-section entitled Kāmādbhutābhinava-mṛgāṅka-lekha, "Astonishing New Acts of Amour Etched like Marks on the Moon." The chanda is sārdūlavikrīḍita and the rasa is adbhuta-rasopabṛmhita śṛṅgāra.

VERSE 14

vyāloḥ keśa-pāśas taralitam alakaiḥ sveda-lolau kapolau kliṣṭā dṛṣṭādharma-śrīḥ kuca-kalaśa-rucā hāritā hāra-yaṣṭiḥ kāñci-kāñcid gatāśāṁ stana-jaghana-padaṁ pāṇinācchādyā sadyaḥ paśyantī satrapaṁ mām tad apī vilulita-srag-dhareyaṁ dhinoti

Her hair loose, curling locks waving around Her face, Her cheeks studded with drops of sweat, Her lips bitten and faded, Her full breasts stealing the gleam of Her pearl necklace, Her glowing hips making Her golden waistbells hopeless, Her hands screening Her feminine charms, bashfully Rādhā gazed upon Kṛṣṇa, who took great delight in Her captivating loveliness.

Commentary

Rādhā, thoroughly drained from lovemaking, was overwhelmed with fatigue. At dawn, in shyness She swiftly covered Herself, Her tender feminine beauty stealing Her beloved's heart as She gazed upon Him. Her braid undone, Her curling locks hovered about Her face. Her cheeks were stained from dried-up perspiration. The luster of her bimba-fruit lips had paled. The splendor of Her necklace had lost hope before the radiance of Her round breasts. In the absence of Her bodice, Her necklace seemed pallid and the luster of the sash on Her hips also faded against the background of Her bare beauty.

Appropriately, the chanda of this verse is sragdharā (wearing garlands).

VERSE 15

iṣan-mīlita-dṛṣṭi mugdha-vilasat-sītkāra-dhārā-vaśād avyaktākula-keli-kāku-vikasad-dantāmsu-dhautādharām śvāsonnaddha-payodharopari-pariṣvaṅgāt kuraṅgī-dṛśo harṣotkarṣa-vimukti-nihṣaha-tanor dhanyo dhayatya ānanam

Blessed indeed are they who drink the sweetness of the doe-eyed Rādhā's face rapturous in the aftermath of lovemaking – eyes only slightly open, lips bathed by the rays of Her teeth as She emitted indistinct sweet murmurs combined with continuous sighs, Her body lost in lassitude, Her breasts slightly trembling in Kṛṣṇa's compelling embrace.

Commentary

The poet says that Rādhā's amorous play afforded Her extreme euphoria, and, on being released from Kṛṣṇa's embraces and kisses, She drowned in a joy unique and unbounded. Her body, fully overwhelmed by kāma, could do nothing more. Kṛṣṇa had embraced Her so tightly that Her breasts were pressed down; they were thus prevented from swelling with pleasure, and they became hard. When Her lover Śrī Kṛṣṇa saw the doe-eyed girl's face with eyes half closed, He wanted to embrace and kiss Her all over again.

Rādhā was gasping over and over again in intense ecstasy. As indiscernible, charming sounds issued from Her mouth, Her lips were washed in the rays emanating from Her sparkling teeth. Only those who have accrued substantial spiritual merit (sukṛti) can see Rādhā's face in this condition. Indeed, only Śrī Kṛṣṇa and Śrī Rādhā's maidservants, Her mañjarīs, possess this good fortune.

This verse features sārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda, jāti alankāra, pāñcālī rīti, māgadhī gīti, bhāratī vṛtti. The song features sthita laya. Śrī Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa's embrace is called vṛkṣādhirūḍhakam āliṅgana, the creeper twining around the tree.

VERSE 16

[atha sā nirgata-bādhā rādhā svādhīna-bhartṛkā nijagāda rati-klāntam kāntam maṇḍana-vāñchayā]

atha sahasā supṛītam suratānte sā nitānta-khinnāṅgī rādhā jagāda sādaram idam ānandena govindam

[Her passion pacified, the triumphant Rādhā expressed Her desire that Her sweetheart, exhausted from lovemaking, should decorate Her.]

When Their lovemaking came to an end, the blissfully exhausted Rādhā began to speak courteously to Govinda.

Commentary

Their blissful dalliance finished, the fatigued Rādhā saw that Her sweetheart Govinda was joyful and spoke to encourage Him. When one's lover is completely absorbed in affection, one's request is sure to be fulfilled – this is an accepted fact. Therefore, Rādhā smiled. The words She spoke to Kṛṣṇa are described in the next song.

 Song Twenty-four

The musical mode is rāmakarī rāga. The rhythm is yati tāla.

VERSE 17

kuru yadunandana candana-śīśiratareṇa kareṇa payodhare mṛgamada-patrakam atra manobhava-maṅgala-kalaśa-sahodare (1)

nijagāda sā yadunandane krīḍati hṛdayānandane (refrain)

“O Yadu-nandana, with Your hands more cooling than sandal paste, paint a leafy creeper in musk on My breasts, Kāmadeva’s auspicious vessels.”

She spoke to the son of Yadu, whose love play delighted Her heart. (refrain)

Commentary

Krīḍati hṛdayānandane in the refrain means that Kṛṣṇa had awakened bliss (ānanda) in Rādhā’s heart (hṛdaya). Yadu-nandana refers to the son of Nanda Mahārāja, Śrī Kṛṣṇa, who appeared in the Yadu dynasty. Seeing Kṛṣṇa intent to continue Their play, Rādhā said, “Decorate Me with Your hands in such a way that You make Me kṛṣṇa-mayī – take possession of My whole being. First, with Your cool hand, more refreshing than sandal pulp, paint a leafy vine in musk upon My pot-like breasts, in the same way that Kāmadeva’s sacred jugs are decorated with dark mango leaves for his procession around the universe.” In this way She courteously requested Her sweetheart to paint artistic designs on Her bosom.

This verse also alludes to a specific type of nail mark called mayūra-padaka, which resembles the impression made by a peacock’s foot, by which a ladylove will remember her beloved.

VERSE 18

*ali-kula-gaṅjana-sañjanakaṁ rati-nāyaka-sāyaka-mocane tvad-adhara-cumbana-lambita-kajjalam ujjalaya priya locane
nijagāda sā yadunandane... (2)*

“My love, besmear My eyes with shiny collyrium eclipsing the beauty of a swarm of dark bumblebees. Your lips kissed away the black kajjala lining My eyes, the bow that discharges Cupid’s arrows.

Commentary

Rādhā continued, “O love of My life, anoint My eyes with this fresh eyeliner which excels the splendor of a swarm of bumblebees. Kāmadeva’s arrows fly from My sidelong glance. The collyrium on My eyes has been smudged off by the kissing of Your lips.” This verse reveals Kṛṣṇa’s pastime of kissing Rādhā’s eyes. She implies, “My darling, You are the black ointment lining My eyes!”

VERSE 19

na yana-kuraṅga-taraṅga-vikāsa-nirāsa-kare śruti-maṅḍale manasija-pāśa-vilāsa-dhare śubha-veśa niveśaya kuṅḍale nijagāda sā yadumandane... (3)

“O dashing fellow! My earrings defeat the leaping deer of My eyes. Decorate My ears with those earrings, the snares of Kāmadeva.”

Commentary

Rādhā instructs Kṛṣṇa, “My love, enchantingly dressed in yellow, O dedicated lover! Decorate My ears with these ornaments, the elegant trap of love. My ears prevent the deer of My eyes from bounding away. O delight of My heart, set aright those earrings that bewilder the hearts of young men.”

This verse describes how Rādhā's eyes are so elongated that they reach around to Her ears. They are compared to a deer because of their restlessness and their oblique movements.

VERSE 20

*bhramara-cayaṁ racayantam upari ruciraṁ suciraṁ mama sammukhe jita-kamale vimale parikarmaya narma-janakam alakaṁ mukhe
nijagāda sā yadunandane... (4)*

“Brush aside the curls of hair falling like a swarm of splendid bumblebees on the exquisite lotus of My perfect face. Braid My hair lest ridicule be aroused.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā said, “O Yadunandana, arrange the locks of hair falling over My charming, unblemished and perfect face, which defeats the luster of a lotus. My disarrayed tresses may prompt others to pass joking comments. Or one might mistake My curls for a crowd of bumblebees who always hover about a lotus flower. O Kṛṣṇa, indeed You are the curling black locks playing about the lotus of My face!”

The similarity of Rādhā's tresses to a formation of bumblebees supports the comparison of Her face to a lotus flower. This is an example of utprekṣā alaṅkāra.

VERSE 21

*mṛgamada-rasa-valitaṁ laliṁ kuru tilakaṁ alika-rajani-kare vihita-kalaṅka-kalaṁ kamalānana viśramita-śrama-śikare
nijagāda sā yadunandane... (5)*

“O lotus-faced one, draw a captivating musk tilaka upon the half-moon of My forehead bedewed with the perspiration from fatigue of amour, and let it look like the deer-shaped mark on the moon.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā said to Śrī Kṛṣṇa, “O lotus-faced one, O joy of My heart, the sweat from love’s labor has dried up on My broad, moon-like forehead. Paint an enchanting tilaka with liquid musk there, in the same way that a half-moon is decorated with the mark of a deer skin.

As with the previous verses, this verse also reveals a specific excitant (uddīpana-vibhāva) of the permanent ecstatic emotion. Rādhā’s inner feeling is, “O Kṛṣṇa, You are the central point of My good fortune – You are the tilaka on My forehead!”

VERSE 22

*mama rucire cikure kuru mānada mānasaja-dhvaja-cāmare rati-galite lalite kusumāni śikhaṇḍi-śikhaṇḍaka-ḍāmare
nijaḡāda sā yadunandane... (6)*

“O Mānada, respectful one, My hair fell loose in Our amorous play. Weave flowers into My tresses, which are like the whisk of Kāmadeva’s flag and which are more captivating than peacock plumes.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā addresses Kṛṣṇa as Mānada, one who gives honor (māna) to His beloveds, or who breaks the contrary mood of indignant lovers. “O Kṛṣṇa, Your luster eclipses the iridescent tail feathers of a peacock. My black hair, charming and attractive as the whisk of Kāmadeva’s flag, came undone in the flurry of love. Please decorate My braid with flowers. Indeed, become My flower-laden braid, and diffuse Your fragrance.”

VERSE 23

*sarasa-ghane jaghane mama śambara-dāraṇa-vāraṇa-kandare maṇi-raśanā-vasanābharaṇāni śubhāśaya vāsaya sundare
nijaḡāda sā yadunandane... (7)*

“O pure-hearted one, please array My beautiful, broad loins – the cave of that madly passionate elephant Kāmadeva – with a jeweled girdle, fine cloth and ornaments.”

Commentary

Śrī Rādhā says, “O virtuous one! Delight of My heart! O love of My life! Your lotus hands are the abode of all good fortune. Your heart, being full of rasa, is the root of all auspiciousness. Kindly drape My sloping hips with a gem-studded sash, silk and ornaments. My lovely loins – soft and voluptuous – are alluring like the dark, cavernous habitat of the madly impassioned elephant Kāmadeva, who killed the demon Śambara. Dress them with garments and ornaments. Actually, You are the decoration of My loins.”

In this song, the hero is anukūla nāyaka (compliant lover dedicated to one heroine), the heroine is pragalbhā nāyikā (mature, clever, intrepid and arrogant) and the rasa is sambhoga-śṛṅgāra.

VERSE 24

śrī-jayadeva-vacasi jayade hṛdayaṁ sadayaṁ kuru maṇḍane hari-caraṇa-smaraṇāmṛta-kṛta-kalikaluṣa-bhava-jvara-khaṇḍane nījagāda sā yadumandane... (8)

Adorn yourself with Śrī Jayadeva’s words, which bestow auspiciousness and enchant the heart; thus your spirit will become tender. The nectar of remembrance of Śrī Hari’s lotus feet is the panacea against fevers of Kali.

Commentary

This song reveals the progressive path of Rādhā’s prema leading to its ultimate expression – Her craving to melt and completely blend with Kṛṣṇa. She yearns for the touch of His hands to make Her kṛṣṇa-maya, fully one with Him, sharing the same heart, and for Him to become all Her finery. In this song the high level of prema that Rādhā is tasting turns into liquid rasa and runs down like rain. Rādhā says, “O Yadu-nandana, make Your heart soft. Let it become My ornament and revel with Me.”

From another perspective, the subject of this song, śṛṅgāra-rasa, the mellows of amorous love, is described by Śrī Jayadeva in most eloquent speech, which has become more relishable due to the inspiration of Jayadeva’s wife. “As You graciously decorate Rādhā, kindly favor me by accepting my words as Your ornaments.” Therefore, each verse can be interpreted as a specific reference to either Rādhā’s ornaments or Jayadeva’s words.

This lyrical composition streams with the nectar of remembrance of Śrī Hari’s lotus feet. Such nectar pacifies the furious fever of immorality in the age of Kali and destroys all sins. Simply remembering the nectar shower of Śrī Jayadeva’s eloquent poetry bestows auspiciousness upon all.

VERSE 25

racaya kucayoḥ patraṁ citraṁ kuruṣva kapolayor ghaṭaya jaghane kāñcīm añca srajā kabārī-bharam kalaya valaya-śreṇīm pāṇau pade kuru nūpurāv iti nigaditaḥ prītaḥ pītāmbaro 'pi tathākarot

Paint leaves upon My breast and pictures on My cheeks. Wrap My hips with a jeweled sash. Weave My braid with flowers. Bedeck My wrists with bangles and My feet with anklebells.” Pītāmbara lovingly did whatever Rādhā bid Him.

Commentary

Śrī Jayadeva sums up this song in brief and adds that Pītāmbara-dhārī Kṛṣṇa, who wears yellow cloth, gladly complied with Rādhā’s commands, exactly as She desired. This is indicated by the word api. She insisted politely, “O Yadunandana, paint a leafy creeper on My breasts. Draw makara and other pictures on My cheeks. Tie a sash around My hips. The garland has fallen from My hair. Weave another string of charming flowers into My braid. Place bangles on My wrists and jeweled anklebells on My feet.” In great delight, Kṛṣṇa lovingly arranged all these decorations. How? By personally becoming all of Rādhā’s ornaments.

The heroine is svādhīna-bhartṛkā-nāyikā, who controls Her lover, and the hero is anukula nāyaka, submissive. The rasa is the sāmyoga aspect of śṛṅgāra-rasa.

VERSE 26

yad-gāndharva-kalāsu kauśalam anudhyānam ca yad-vaiṣṇavam yac chrṅgāra-viveka-tattvam api yat kāvyeṣu līlāyitam tat sarvaṁ jayadeva-pañḍita-kaveḥ kṛṣṇaika-tānātmanah sānandāḥ pariśodhayantu sudhiyaḥ śrī-gīta-govindataḥ

Scholarly devotees who are acquainted with the musical genius of the Gāndharvas, all Vaiṣṇava meditations on Śrī Kṛṣṇa, knowledge of the true nature of śṛṅgāra-rasa, and pastimes described in the Kāvya, will recognize that the master poet Jayadeva has most expertly blended all of these into his epic poem. May these devotees deeply enter into his Gīta-govinda and blissfully sing it out for the benefit of others.

Commentary

On the pretext of praying to the learned devotees, Śrī Jayadeva promulgates his own glories. “O scholars, my Gīta-govinda is the topmost of all literatures. May you realize its profundities. Test it to see how it is full of rasa and then share it with others.”

The authenticity of this composition is substantiated by references to these other writings. Gāndharva-vidyā refers to literatures on the musical arts (saṅgīta-śāstra). The poet has captured in his poem all the musical expertise described in Gāndharva-vidyā. Vaiṣṇava meditation on Bhagavān ultimately yields rasa, and Gīta-govinda proves this. Whatever deliberations have been made previously about śṛṅgāra-rasa, in both meeting and separation, have been presented here in a superior way. And whatever pastimes have been depicted in the highly revered Kāvya, the prominent poems about erotic love, are more brilliantly manifested here. Śrī Jayadeva's heart and intelligence are exclusively absorbed in Kṛṣṇa. The purpose of his composition is to induce one-pointed meditation on his Lord. If devotees want to get a glimpse of the sheer astonishment coming from the best of artistic and finely discerning writing, meditation and descriptions of pastimes, then they may do so through this epic poem, Śrī Gīta-govinda.

VERSE 27

*sādhvī mādhvika cintā na bhavati bhavataḥ śarkare karkaśāsi
drākṣe drakṣyanti ke tvām amṛta mṛtam asi kṣīra nīraṁ rasas te mākanda kranda kāntādhara dharaṇi-talam gaccha yacchanti yāvad bhāvaṁ śṛṅgāra-sārasvatam iha jayadevasya viṣvag-vacāmsi*

O powerful wine, do not think you are so intoxicating. O sugar, you are harsh. O grapes, who will look at you? O nectar (amṛta), you are indeed lifeless (mṛta). O milk, you taste like water. O ripe mango, now go and weep. O lips of a ladylove, now you can go to hell. All of you no longer have any value as long as Śrī Jayadeva's eloquent, essential description of erotic love is manifest in this world.

Commentary

In this verse Śrī Jayadeva is describing the sweet artistry of his Gīta-govinda, which is a tribute to the glories of the most brilliant śṛṅgāra-rasa in its most refined form. Its unparalleled sweetness renders all other substances in the world insipid; for the learned devotees there is nothing else sweeter. Śrī Jayadeva's ingenious composition, the ultimate expression of the essence of all romantic sentiments (śṛṅgāra-rasa), is the very personification of auspiciousness.

Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa's auspicious adventures are the exclusive embodiment of good fortune. For the rasika devotees, the astonishingly delightful taste of the rasa of Gīta-govinda is not available anywhere else. If one gathers together all the sweetness in the entire world in one place, it will be tasteless in the face of this lyrical song. The author says, "Hey wine, what do you think about yourself now? Your sweetness is useless – what power do you have to intoxicate the righteous devotees? Hey sugar, what happened to your sweetness? How bitter you are. You have lost your flavor, so who would bother with you now? Hey grapes, beware! Why would any connoisseur of rasa ever even look in your direction? Hey nectar, you no longer have any reason to be proud. You are mortal. Hey milk, do not proudly think "I am rasa," because your rasa is just water. Hey ripe mango, you have to cry. The rasika devotees will take no heed of your growing old and drying up. Hey lips of passionate maidens! You also have no place. Go to Pātāla, the residence of the infernals. None of you can provide any sweetness for those who are expert in relishing the rasa of this poetry."

This literary composition is nothing but auspiciousness through and through, from the beginning to the end. Therefore it is the ingredient cause of the word śubha (auspiciousness). The present verse features sragdharā chanda, āramayī vṛtti, vaidarbhī rīti, tiraskṛtopadā alaṅkāra and the nāṭya alaṅkāra called guṇa-kīrtana.

VERSE 28

itthaṁ keli-tatīr vihr̥tya yamunā-kūle samam rādhayā tad-romāvali-mauktikāvali-yuge veṇī-bhramam bibhrati tatrāhlādi-kuca-prayāga-phalayor lipsāvator hastayār vyāpārāḥ puruṣottamasya dadatu sphītām mudā sampadam

In this way, Kṛṣṇa enjoyed many love games with Rādhā on the banks of the Yamunā. He mistook the meeting of the row of hairs above Her navel with Her pearl necklace to be the Prayāga confluence. And Her delightful breasts, the fruits offered by that Prayāga, are the cherished goal of that best of males, Puruṣottama. May the affairs of His two lotus hands bestow the wealth of happiness upon the reciters and the audience of this poem.

Commentary

Śrī Jayadeva says, “May the activities of the hands of Puruṣottama Śrī Kṛṣṇa bestow immense happiness upon my reciters and my audience.” The speciality of His hands is that they perpetually find joy in the Venī-saṅgama, or Prayāga confluence, which awards the fruit of Her breasts. According to His own desires, Kṛṣṇa plays many games with the dominant heroine, Rādhā, on the banks of the Yamunā. The meeting of Rādhā’s row of hairs (romāvalī) above Her navel with Her pearl necklace inspires remembrance of the playful confluence of the Ganges and Yamunā Rivers. Her romāvalī, dark like Kṛṣṇa, has been compared with the Yamunā, and Her bright pearls to the Ganges. Their meeting place must surely be Prayāga. Śrī Rādhā is Herself Prayāga and the fruits of bathing in this Prayāga are Her breasts. “May whatever activities Śrī Kṛṣṇa’s hands perform, impelled by the desire to attain this Prayāga’s delightful fruit, confer ever increasing bliss upon all those who recite and hear this poem.”

This sub-section is entitled Suprīta-pītāmbara-tālaśreṇī, “Perfectly Pleased Pītāmbara Decorating Rādhikā with Wreaths of Rhythmic Melodies.” It features sāṅga-rūpaka alaṅkāra, sārdūla-vikrīḍita chanda, pāñcālī rīti and gīti and bhāratī vṛtti. The heroine is svādhīna-bhārtṛkā nāyika and the hero is uttama nāyaka with the attributes of dhīrodātta (grave, gentle, merciful, determined, humble, highly qualified, chivalrous and physically attractive).

VERSE 29

panyaṅkī-kṛta-nāga-nāyaka-phaṇā-śreṇī-maṇinām gaṇe saṅkrānta-pratibimba-saṅkalanayā bibhrad vibhu-prakriyām pādāmbhoruha-dhāri-vāridhi-sutām akṣṇām didṛkṣuḥ sataih kāya-vyūham ivācarann upacitibhūto hariḥ pātu vaḥ

He whose bed is Śeṣa-rāja, the chief of all serpents, unlimitedly expanded His splendor by reflecting in the jewels upon the serpent's innumerable hoods, and thus assumed a host of forms with thousands of eyes desiring to gaze upon Goddess Lakṣmī as She massages His lotus feet. May that Śrī Hari protect you all.

Commentary

As Lord Nārāyaṇa rested upon His serpent-couch, Śeṣa-rāja, He assumed a multitude of forms by reflecting Himself in the many jewels on the snake's hoods. Thus, He took on thousands of eyes desiring to gaze upon Mahā-Lakṣmī. Similarly, Śrī Kṛṣṇa hankers for thousands of eyes to look at His Rādhārāṇī.

VERSE 30

tvām aprāpya mayi svayaṁvara-parām kṣīroda-tīrodare śaṅke sundari kālakūṭam apivat mūḍho mṛḍāni-patiḥ ittham pūrva-kathābhir anya-manaso vikṣīpya vakṣo 'ñcalam rādhāyāḥ stana-korakopari-milan-netro hariḥ pātu vaḥ

“O beautiful one! When the Lord of Pārvatī (Śiva) could not attain You on the shore of the Ocean of Milk, bewildered by Your breathtaking beauty, he swallowed the deadly kālakūṭa poison. Then You selected Me as Your consort.”¹ Remembering this previous conversation, Kṛṣṇa repeatedly filled His eyes with the sight of the treasured mahāpadma jewels of Śrī Rādhā's breasts. May that Śrī Hari protect you all.

Commentary

Śrī Kṛṣṇa was very eager to have Rādhā's darśana, to see the wonder of Her beauty. Which Kṛṣṇa? He who is removing the cover over Rādhā's breast and is looking at Her upper bosom. How is that Rādhārāṇī? Her beauty is contained in the Ocean of Milk. “Śivajī was looking for Lakṣmī in the Milk Ocean but, because he could not find Her, he drank kālakūṭa poison. Śivajī

1. This is a reference to Śrīmad-Bhāgavatam 8.8.8–24.

did not get You, O beautiful one. And if I don't get You, I will do the same thing – I will take poison and die.” May that Kṛṣṇa protect you.

VERSE 31

śrī-bhojadeva-prabhavasya rāmādevī-suta śrī-jayadevakasya parāśarādi-priya-bandhu-kaṅṭhe śrī-gīta-govinda-kavitvam astu

May the melodious poetry of Śrī Gīta-govinda of Śrī Jayadeva, the son of Śrī Bhoja-deva and Rāmā-devī, decorate the voices of Parāśara and other dear friends.

Commentary

This Gīta-govinda of Śrī Jayadeva, the son of Śrī Bhoja-deva and Rāmā-devī, has been composed for decorating the voices of Bhagavān's confidential devotees like Parāśara. “Their reciting of this poem should unendingly reverberate throughout the sky. May this unprecedented picture of pastimes continue to be beautified eternally in the hearts of the devotees. May Śrī Gīta-govinda become their beloved, indeed their most beloved all-inclusive life's breath, for awakening remembrance of Śrī Kṛṣṇa, the embodiment of rasa.”

THUS ENDS THE BĀLABODHINĪ-PRAKĀŚA COMMENTARY ON ACT ELEVEN OF ŚRĪ GĪTA-GOVINDA, ENTITLED SUPRĪTA-PĪTĀMBARA, “PĪTĀMBARA PERFECTLY PLEASED”

The End

Verse Index

A

abhinava-jaladhara-sundara	34
adhara-sudhā-rasam upanaya bhāmini	265
adhigatam akhila-sakhībhīr idam	238
adyotsaṅga-vasad-bhujāṅga-kavala	50
ahaha kalayāmi valayādi	163
aham iha nivasāmi na	164
aham iha nivasāmi yāhi rādhām	129
akṣṇor niṣpīpad añjanam śravaṇayos	124
alasa-nimīlita-locanayā	80
ali-kula-gaṅjana-sañjanakam	276
amala-kamala-dala-locana	32
amṛta-madhura-mṛdutarā-vacanena	184
aneka-nārī-parīrambha-sambhrama	52
aṅgeṣv ābharaṇam karoti bahusāḥ	155
anila-tarala-kisalaya-nikareṇa	236
anila-tarala-kuvalaya-nayanena	183
antar-mohana-mauli-ghūrṇana-calan	205
āsleṣād anu cumbanād anu nakho	142
athāgatām mādhavam antareṇa	167
atha katham api yāminīm vinīya	194
atha sahasā supṛitam surātānte	274
atha sā nirgata-bādhā rādhā	274
atha tām gantum aśaktām	149
atikramyāpāṅgam śravaṇa-patha	256
atrāntare ca kulaṭā-kula-vartma-pāta	160
atrāntare masṛṇa-roṣa-vaśām aśīma	217
āvāso vipināyate	115
avirala-nīpatita-madana-śarād iva	109

B

bādhām vidhehi malayānila	190
bahir iva malinatarām tava kṛṣṇa	200
bandhūka-dyuti-bāndhavo	228
bhajantyās talpāntam	256
bhaṇati kavi-jayadeve	132
bhavati vilambini vīgalita-lajjā	153
bhramara-cayaṁ racayantam upari	277
bhramati bhavān abalā-kavalāya	201
bhrū-cāpe nihitaḥ kaṭākṣa-viśikho	101
bhrū-pallavo dhanur apāṅga	100

C

cala-malaya-vana-pavana-surabhi-śīte	246
cañcala-kunḍala-lalita-kapolā	170
candana-carcita-nīla-kalevara	52
candraka-cāru-mayūra-śikhaṇḍaka	69
carāṇa-kamala-galad-alaktaka-siktam	199
carāṇa-kisalaye kamalā-nilaye	178
carāṇa-raṇita-maṇi-nūpurayā	82
chalayasi vikramaṇe	18
cintayāmi tad-ānanam	94

D

dahati śiśira-mayūkhe	131
dara-vidalita-mallī-valli	49
daśana-padam bhavad-adhara-gatam	200
dayita-vilokita-lajjita-hasitā	170
dhīra-samīre yamunā-tīre	135
dhvanati madhupa-samūhe	131
dhyāna-layena puraḥ parikalpya	112
dina-maṇi-maṇḍala-maṇḍana	29
diśi diśi kirati sajala-kaṇa-jālam	180
dorbhyām saṁyamitaḥ payodhara	269
ḍṛṣau tava madālase	229

dṛśyase purato gatāgatam	95
durāloka-stoka-stabaka	86

G

gaṇayati guṇa-grāmaṁ bhrāmaṁ	73
gataṁ sakhī-vṛnde 'manda	262
ghana-caya-rucire racayati cikure	175
ghana-jaghana-stana-bhāra-bhare	235
ghaṭayati sughane kuca-yuga-gagane	175
gopa-kadamba-nitambavatī	70

H

hāram amalātara-tāram urasi	251
hārāvalī-tarala-kāñcana-kāñci-dāma	244
hari-caraṇa-śaraṇa-jaya	165
hari! hari! hatādaratayā	92
hari! hari! yāhi mādḥava yāhi keśava	195
hari-parirambhaṇa-valita-vikārā	169
harim eka-rasaṁ ciram	250
harir abhimānī rajanir idānīm	139
harir abhisarati vahati madhu-pavane	209
harir iha mugdha-vadhū-nikare	52
harir iti harir iti japatī sa-kāmam	119
harir upayātu vadatu bahu-madhuram	212
hasta-srasta-vilāsa-vaṁśam anrju	85
hṛdi visa-latā-hāro nāyam	97

I

iha rasa-bhaṇane kṛta-hari-guṇane	180
iṣan-mīlita-dṛṣṭi mugdha-vilasat	273
itas tatas tām anusṛtya rādhikām	91
iti caṭula-cāṭu-ṣaṭu	224
itthaṁ keli-tatīr viḥṛtya yamunā	283

J

jalada-pātala-valad-indu-vinindaka	71
janaka-sutā-kṛta-bhūṣaṇa	33
janayasi manasi kim iti guru-khedam	212
jayaśrī-vinyastair mahita iva	258
jita-bisa-śakale mṛḍu-bhuja-yugale	176

K

kajjala-malina-vilocana-cumbana	197
kāliya-viṣa-dhara-gaṅjana	30
kaṁsārīr api saṁsāra	90
kanaka-nikaṣa-ruci-śuci-vasanena	186
kandarpa-jvara-saṁjvarātura-tanor	124
kāpi kapola-tale militā	56
kāpi madhuripuṇā	168
kāpi vilāsa-vilola-vilocana	55
kara-kamalena karomi caraṇam aham	264
kara-tala-tāla-tarala-valayā	57
kāsmīra-gaura-vapuṣām	242
kathita-samaye 'pi harir	161
kati na kathitam idam	210
keli-kalā-kutukena ca kācid	57
keśava dhṛta	13
kim iti viśīdasi rodiṣi vikalā	211
kiṁ kariṣyati kiṁ vadiṣyati	93
kiṁ viśrāmyasi kṛṣṇa-bhogi-bhavane	156
kisalaya-śayana-niveśitayā	80
kisalaya-śayana-tale kuru kāmīni	263
kokila-kalarava-kūjitayā	81
kṣaṇam adhunā	263
kṣaṇam api virahaḥ purā na sehe	125
kṣamyatām aparām kadāpi	96
kṣatriya-rudhira-maye	19
kṣitir ati-vipula-tare	15
kuru yadunandana candana	275

kusuma-caya-racita-śuci-vāsa-gehe	245
kusuma-sukumāra-tanum	164
kusuma-viśikha-śara-talpa analpa	110

L

lalita-lavaṅga-latā-pariśīlana	42
---	----

M

madana-mahīpati-kanaka-daṇḍa-ruci	46
mādhava manasija-viśikha-bhayād	108
mādhava mā kuru mānini	209
mādhavikā-parimala-lalite	47
madhu-mudita-madhupa	247
madhu-mura-naraka-vināśana	31
madhuratara-pika-nikara	247
mañimaya-makara-manohara-kuṇḍala	71
mañjutara-kuñja-tala-keli-sadane	244
mām ahaha vidhurayati	162
mama maraṇam eva varam	162
mama rucire cikure kuru mānada	278
mām ati-viphala-ruṣā vikālī-kṛtam	267
mām iyaṁ calitā vilokya	92
manobhavānandana candanānila	188
mārāṅke rati-keli-saṅkula	270
meghair meduram ambaraṁ	1
mleccha-nivaha-nidhane	23
mṛdu-cala-malaya-pavana-surabhi-śīte	246
mṛgamada-rasa-valitaṁ lalitaṁ	277
mṛgamada-saurabha	45
mugdhe! madhu-mathanam anugatam	234
mugdhe vidhehi mayi	225
muhur avalokita-maṇḍana-līlā	151
mukharam adhīraṁ tyaja mañjīraṁ	137

N

nāma-sametam kṛta-saṅketam	136
nātha hare! sīdati rādhā vāsa-grhe	150
nava-bhavad-aśoka-dala-śayana-sāre	245
nayana-kuraṅga-taraṅga-vikāsa	276
nayana-viśayam api kisalaya-talpam	119
nāyātaḥ sakhi nirdayo yadi śaṭhas	181
nibhṛta-nikuṅja-grhaṁ gatayā	76
nijagāda sā yadunandane	275
nīla-nalinābham api	220
nindasi yajña-vidher	22
nindati candanam indu-kiraṇam anu	108

P

padmā-payodhara-taṭi	36
pāṇau mā kuru cūta-sāyakam	99
parihara kṛtātanke saṅkām	225
paryāṅkī-kṛta-nāga-nāyaka-phaṇā	284
paśyati diśi diśi rahasi bhavantam	150
patati patatre vicalati patre	136
pīna-payodhara-bhāra-bhareṇa	54
pralaya-payodhi-jale	13
prasarati śaśadhara-bimbe	160
prātar nīla-nicolam acyutam uraḥ	191
prathama-samāgama-lajjitayā	79
prati-padam idam api nigadati	112
pratyūhaḥ pulakāṅkureṇa nividā	268
praviśa rādhē! mādharma-samīpam iha	244
priya-parirambhaṇa	265
priye! cāruśīle!	218
pūrvam yatra samam tvayā rati-pater	133

R

racaya kucayoḥ patram citram	280
rādhā-mugdha-mukhāravinda	145

rādhā-vadana-vilokana-vikasita	250
rādhikā virahe tava keśava	116
rajani-janita-guru-jāgara-rāga	195
ramate yamunā-pulina-vane	174
ramayati subhṛṣaṁ kām api sudṛṣaṁ	179
rāse harim iha vihita-vilāsaṁ	68
rāsollāsa-bhareṇa vibhrama-bhṛtām	63
rati-gr̥ha-jaghane vipulāpaghane	177
rati-sukha-samaya-rasālasayā	83
rati-sukha-sāre gatam abhisāre	135
ripur iva sakhī-samvāso 'yam	189

S

sa-bhaya-cakitaṁ vinyasyantīm	145
sā māṁ drakṣyati vakṣyati	240
sa prītiṁ tanutām hariḥ	230
sā romāñcati sīt-karoti vilapaty	121
sā sa-sādhvasa-sānandaṁ	250
sā virahe tava dīnā	108
sādhvī mādhvika cintā	282
sajala-jalada-samudaya-rucireṇa	186
sajala-nalinī-dala-śilita-śayane	211
sakala-bhuvana-jana-vara-taruṇena	187
sakhi he keśi-mathanam udāraṁ	76
sakhi! yā ramitā vanamālinā	183
sākūta-smitam ākulākula	87
samudita-madane ramañi-vadane	174
sānandaṁ nanda-sūnur	257
sañcarad-adhara-sudhā	68
sāndrānanda-purandarādi-diviṣad	214
sarasa-ghane jaghane mama śambara	278
sarasa-masṛṇam api malayaja-paṅkam	117
śaśi-kiraṇa-cchuritodara-jaladhara	254
śaśimukhi mukharaya	266
śaśimukhi tava bhāti bhaṅgura-bhrū	226

satyam evāsi yadi 219
saundaryaika-nidher anaṅga-lalanā	259
śikhaṇḍa-barhoccaya-baddha-cūḍaḥ	42
śliṣyati cumbati jaladhara-kalpam	152
śliṣyati kām api cumbati kām api	58
smara-garala-khaṇḍanam	223
smara-samarocita-viracita-veśā	168
smara-śara-subhaga-nakhena kareṇa	238
smarāturām daivata-vaidyā-hṛdyā	123
snigdhe yat parusāsi yat praṇamati	213
sphurad-atimukta-latā-parirambhaṇa	47
sphuratu kuca-kumbhayor	221
sphuritam anaṅga-taraṅga-vaśād iva	237
śrama-jala-kaṇa-bhara-subhaga-śarīrā	171
śrī-bhōjadeva-prabhavasya vāmā	286
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇita-hari-ramitam	172
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇita-rati-vañcita	202
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇita-vacanena	188
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇita-vibhava	255
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam adharīkṛta	239
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam ati-lalitam	213
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam ati-sundara	73
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam adbhuta	59
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam adhikaṁ	113
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam anupada	267
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam atisāya	84
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam idam udayati	48
śrī-jayadeva-bhaṇitam iti gītam	120
śrī-jayadeva-kaver idam kurute	35
śrī-jayadeva-kaver idam uditam	153
śrī-jayadeva-kaver idam uditam udāram	24
śrī-jayadeva-vacasi jayade	279
śrī-jayadeve kṛta-hari-seve	139
śṛṇu ramaṇīya-taraṁ taruṇī-jana	235
śrita-kamalā-kuca-maṇḍala	27

stana-vinihitam api hāram udāram	116
sthala-jalaruha-ruci-kara-caraṇena	185
sthala-kamala-gaṅjanam	222
suciram anunayena pṛiṇayitvā	233
śvasita-pavanam anupama-pariṇāham	117
śyāmala-mṛdula-kalevara-maṇḍalam	252

T

tāla-phalād api gurum ati-sarasam	210
tām aham hṛdi saṅgatām	94
tām atha manmatha-khinnām	208
tāni sparśa-sukhāni te ca taralāḥ	102
tanvi khinnam asūyayā	95
tarala-dṛg-añcala-calana-manohara	252
tasyāḥ pātala-pānijāṅkitam uro	271
tat kiṁ kām api kāmīnīm abhisṛtaḥ	165
tava caraṇe praṇatā vayam	35
tava kara-kamala-vare	17
tava virahe vanamālī sakhi sīdati	130
tavedam paśyantyāḥ	203
tiryak-kaṇṭha-vilola-mauli	103
tvad-abhisaraṇa-rabhasena valantī	150
tvad-vāmyena samam samagram	141
tvām aprāpya mayi svayaṁvara-parām	285
tvam asi mama bhūṣaṇam	220
tvām cittena ciraṁ vahann ayam ati	249
tvaritam upaiti na katham abhisāram	152
tyajati na pāṇi-talena kapalam	118

U

unmada-madana-manoratha-pathika	44
unmīlan-madhu-gandha-lubdha	51
urasi murārer upaḥita-hāre	137

V

vācaḥ pallavayaty umāpatidharaḥ	10
vadana-kamala-parīśilana-milita.....	253
vadana-sudhā-nidhi-galitam.....	264
vadasi yadi kiñcid api.....	218
vāg-devatā-carita-citrita-citta-sadmā.....	6
vahasi vapuṣi viśade	21
vahati ca valita-vilocana-jaladharam.....	110
vahati malaya-samīre.....	130
vapur anuهارati tava smara-saṅgara	198
varṇitam jayadeva-kena	97
vasante vāsantī-kusuma.....	38
vasati daśana-śikhare.....	16
vasati vipina-vitāne	132
vedān uddharate jaganti vahate.....	25
vicalad-alaka-lalitānana-candrā	169
vigalita-lajjita-jagad.....	46
vigalita-vasanam parihrta-rasanam	138
viharati harir iha sarasa-vasante	42
viharati vane rādhā	66
vihita-padmāvatī-sukha-samāje	248
vihita-viśada-bisa-kisalaya-valayā.....	151
vikasita-sarasija-lalita-mukhena.....	184
vikirati muhuḥ śvāsān āśāḥ.....	140
vilikhati rahasi kuraṅga-madena	111
vipula-pulaka-bhara-danturitam	254
vipula-pulaka-bhujā-pallava-valayita	70
vipula-pulaka-pāliḥ	154
vipula-pulaka-prthu-vepathu-bhaṅgā.....	171
viracita-cātu-vacana-racanam	234
viraha-pāṇḍu-murāri-mukhāmbuja.....	172
vitarsa dikṣu raṇe.....	20
viśada-kadamba-tale militam.....	72
viśveṣām anurañjana janayann.....	60

vitata-bahu-valli-nava-pallava-ghane	246
vṛṣṭi-vyākula-gokulāvana-rasād	126
vyāloḥ keśa-pāśas taralitam alakaiḥ	272
vyathayati vṛthā maunaṁ	227

Y

yad-anugamanāya niśi	161
yad-gāndharva-kalāsu kauśalam	281
yadi hari-smaraṇe sarasaṁ mano	8
yāmi he! kam iha śaraṇaṁ	161
yamunā-tīra-vānīra	107

Worldwide Centers & Contacts

SEE COMPLETE LIST AT WWW.PUREBHAKTI.COM

INDIA

- Mathura - Sri Kesavaji Gaudiya Matha
Jawahar Hata, U.P. 281001 (Opp. Dist. Hospital)
Tel: 0565 250-2334, Email: mathuramath@gmail.com
- New Delhi - Sri Ramana-vihari Gaudiya Matha
Block B-3, Janakpuri, New Delhi 110058
(Near musical fountain park) Tel: 011 25533568, 9810192540
- New Delhi - Karol Bagh Center - Rohiṇī-nandana
9A/39 Channa Market, WEA, Karol Bagh
Tel.: 9810398406, 9810636370, Email: purebhakti.kb@gmail.com
- Vrndavana - Sri Rupa-Sanatana Gaudiya Matha
Dan Gali, U.P. Tel: 0565 244-3270
- Vrndavana - Gopinath Bhavan
Ranapat Ghat, Seva Kunja, Vrindavan 281121, U.P.
Tel: 0565 244-3359, Email: vasantidasi@gmail.com
- Bangalore - 245/1, 29th cross Kaggadasa Pura,
C.V. Ramanagar Post, Bangalore - 93, Tel. 9341-484-903

UNITED KINGDOM

- London - Ganga-mata Gaudiya Matha
Email: gangamatajis@yahoo.co.uk
- Birmingham - International Distributor
Tel: (44) 153648-1769, Email: jivapavana@googlemail.com

USA

- California - New Braj - 51869 Eshom Valley Drive, Badger, CA 93603, Tel:(1) 559-337-2304, www.newbraj.com
- Houston - Preaching Center
Tel: (1) 713-984 8334, Email: byshouston@gmail.com
- Gaudiya Vedanta Publications Offices
Tel: (800) 681-3040 ext. 108, Email: orders@bhaktiprojects.org

WORLD WIDE

www.purebhakti.com